.93 of an inch of rain fell last evening in 15 minutes. Crops are doing well in this section and if the outside world will remember that we are located less than 80 miles from the Missouri river and that our rainfall is as steady as that of other similar sections within the same distance from the Missouri they need not wonder that farmers around Valentine raise as good average crops as some who think they live in the most favored section in the eastern part of Nebraska or Kansas. We have fewer hot winds and tornadoes and our evenings are always cool enough to encourage healthy sleep.

"ON THE GREAT DIVIDE"

Famous Drama of Western Life To Be Presented By The Yeomen.

On Monday, July 29, the Yeomen Lodge will present, by local talent, "On The Great Divide." This play has been described as the greatest play ever written to depict and characterize the true spirit of America. The scenes are laid among the mountains, the characters drawn from the type of man in America who is gentle as well as strong, and of women whom hardship has not robbed of woman's tenderness. Charles Dazey, the author, is the same writer who gave to the world "In Old Kentucky," the play which has been described as ranking second only in fame and popularity to Uncle Tom's Cabin.

"On the Great Divide," combines a plot of originality which holds the interest of everyone, with scenes of comedy and pathos so natural and true as to bring the commendation of the press, public and pulpit.

The Yeomen have selected some of the best talent in Valentine and have secured S. Leaming, leading man with Sanford Dodge to direct. Mr. Leaming is at liberty for two weeks, while Mr. Dodge is undergoing treatment in Hot Springs, S. D.

The arrangements practically guarantee that the Yeomen will offer as perfect a production of a great play as the most exacting taste could demand.

S. F. Gilman is putting in a new flume and water wheel so that he can run the mill and electric lights and do the city pumping at the same time. It was a big task to handle the big tubing and waterwheel without a derrick but they have it located and nearly ready to operate. The water in the dam had to be lowered ten feet but most of the fish were kept in with a screen wire.

Abraham Joseph came to town Tuesday with his head bandaged, the result of an encounter with some young men out his way the day before. Joseph says they tried to kill him at his own home. He made complaint against them and had John Deihl and Earl and George Bunnell arrested and lodged in jail for the assault. The young desperadoes stood Albert Joseph and Henry Taylor off with guns and threats to shoot while beating up Abraham Joseph. They will have a preliminary trial Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock before Judge Layport.

Leaky Barrels as Coops. If barrels that are laid on their sides are used for coops, be sure to cover them well with oilcloth or some other covering that will keep out rain. A leaky barrel will hold the water and drown the chicks.

Penbrook Quills.

The farmer wears a smiling face these days.

The rye harvest is clashing with corn plowing this year.

E. L. Hutchison and W. H. Ryder have commenced haying.

Haying time is commonly raining time in this country.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hamar, a son. As this is the sixth boy it was suggested to call him Sextus.

Elders Beams and Miller of the Seventh Day Adventist faith have held a series of meetings at the Penbrook school house. While the attendance was not large, the word spoken made a deep impression upon the people. Personally, we found them most courteous gentlemen—christians. EAGLE.

There are about 400 Indians in town, parading the streets horseback and in springwagons and dancing as we go to press. They have been gathering in town since yesterday. Their familiar yells and songs sound like the stories we used to hear when Indians were a terror to the white race.

REARING LAYERS.

An Expert Poultryman Tells How This Can Be Done Successfully.

H. P. Rankin has the following words of wisdom in the American Agriculturist concerning the difficult problem of rearing chicks designed especially for development into persistent layers:

When the chicks first come out of the shell, I leave them in the incubator till the last hatched is twenty-four hours old, then remove to a brooder with a temperature of 90 degrees, the brooder floor being first covered with a thin layer of sand and one inch of cut alfalfa, and give grit and water two hours before feeding. I feed a dry grain chick food containing 20 per cent chick grit and 5 per cent small granulated charcoal. The brooder is cleaned every day by sifting sand through a cornmeal sieve. Beef scraps are kept before them after they are four days old. This is their feed till they are six weeks old, when they are given free range and are fed but three times a day, corn being mixed with their food, one part cracked corn, one part wheat, three parts ground oats in bulk with fine meal sifted out. I always feed in a litter to keep them busy.

When they are four months old, I feed one part corn, one part wheat, one part barley and two parts oats three times a day with coarser charcoal in the same proportion or fed in hoppers always before them. At five months old I begin feeding one part corn, one part wheat, one part barley and two parts oats three times a day with coarser charcoal in the same proportion, or fed in hoppers always before them, with green stuff of some sort always near. Steamed cut alfalfa and cabbage are best in winter. In rearing laying chickens it is most important to keep them growing all the time and always busy. Nothing ever has been or will be profitable brought up in idleness.

By following the above regimen and attending to proper cleaning of the chicken houses, destroying all injurious vermin, insects, etc., and using scrap meats exclusively, I have reared chickens that have no superiors in laying qualities. I do not breed for yearly records, wanting eggs only from Nov. 1 to July 1, and I select none for breeders that do not lay at least 150 eggs in that period. In selecting my breeders I weigh their breeding, laying qualities and standard points.

Fighting Vermin.

It is a waste of time to fight vermin so long as the droppings are allowed to remain in the houses week after week. Clean up each morning. It takes but a minute or two each day, and with the occasional assistance of kerosene the vermin cause any trouble.

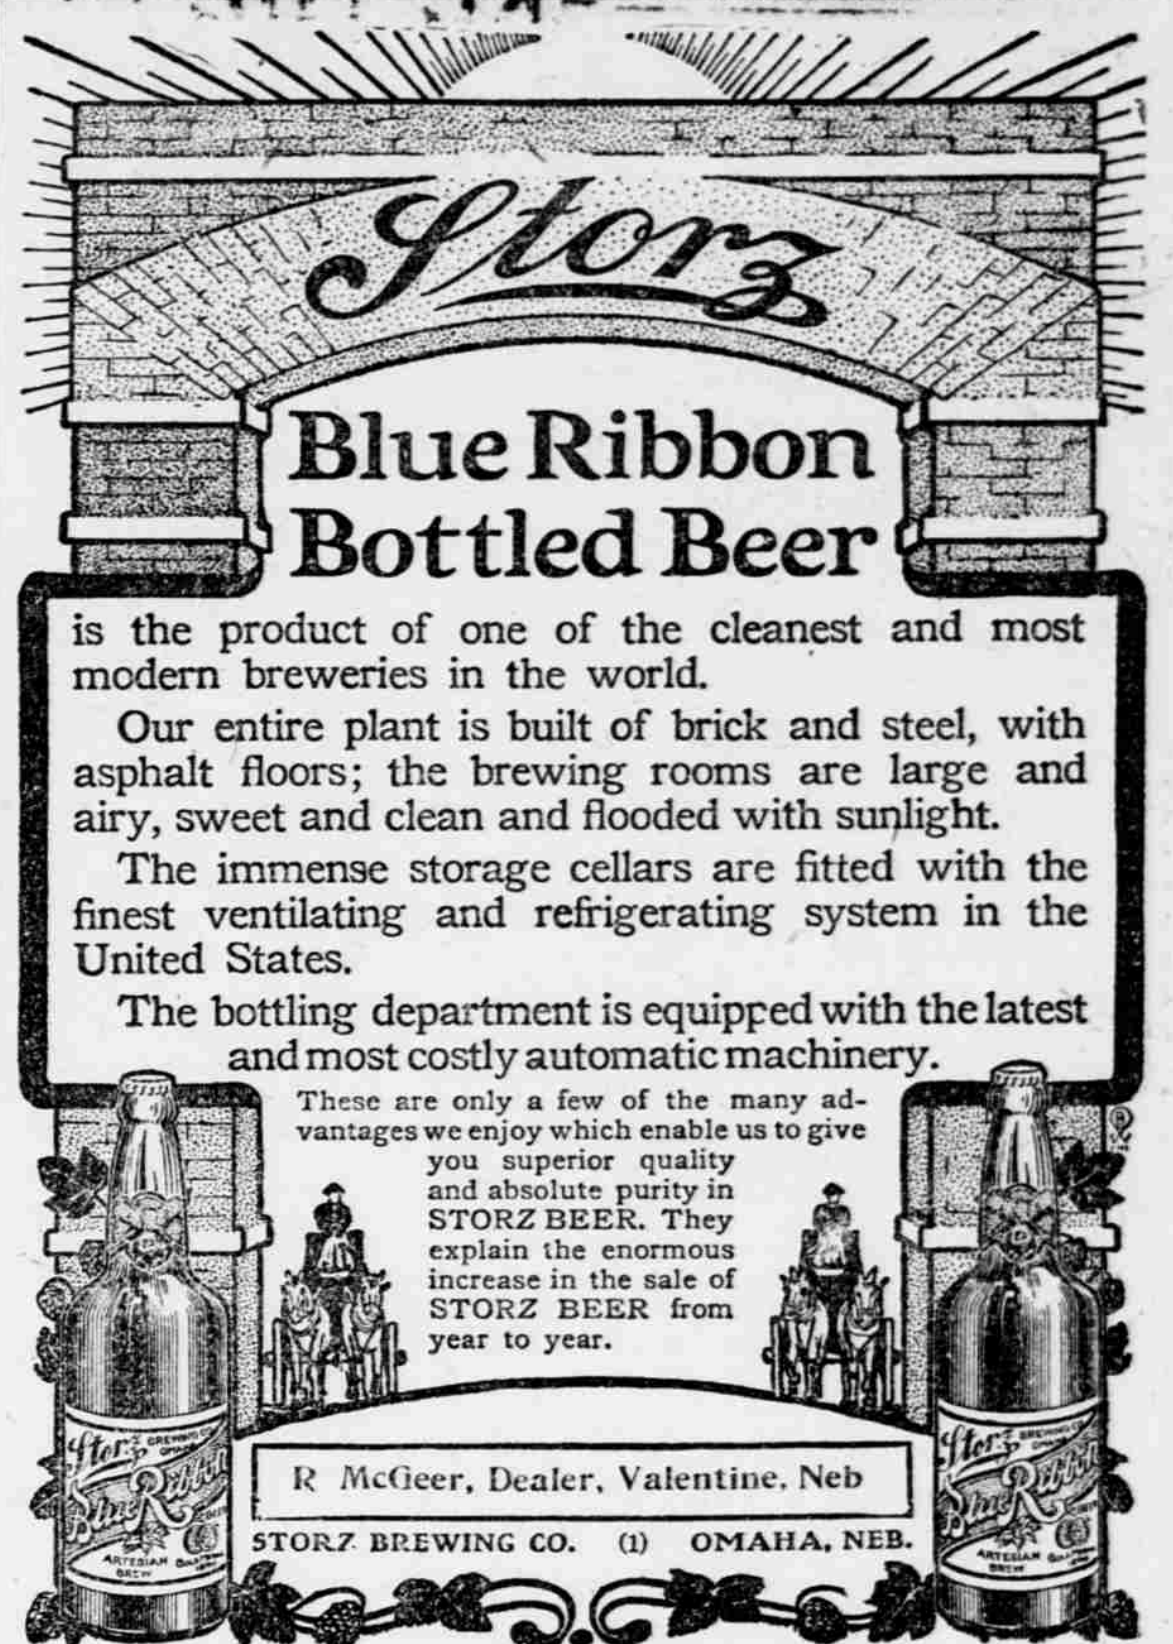

Remove the nest boxes and fixtures from the houses and fairly saturate them with kerosene, then go inside and with a spray pump send the kerosene into every crack and crevice. It does noble work, and your hens will bless you for it.

Another good precaution is to use insect powder liberally in the nest boxes. It will kill such vermin as are lodged in the feathers of the hens.

If the young chicks are drooping, examine their heads, and the chances are that a large gray louse will be found. A drop of sweet oil will soon settle the matter.

Preparing Fattening Food.

Where soft food is used extensively for fattening purposes the food is heated in large cast iron cook kettles holding from 100 to 150 gallons. These kettles are made specially for cooking food for stock and are supplied by all poultry supply and farm implement houses. A lot of food cooked in one of these covered kettles will keep hot from ten to twelve hours after the fire under the kettle is out.
