OBITUARY.

W. H. McCloud died at his home in this city last Friday after several weeks illness. He had been ailing all summer and recently complained of being tired and sore which constantly annoyed him. He had always been a stout, healthy, hard working man until last winter when a spell of the grippe got the best of him and since that time complained a great deal that he wasn't feeling so well any more and wasn't able to work like he used to.

William Henry Harrison McCloud was born at Columbus, O., Oct. 15, 1836 and when about 10 years old the family moved to Illinois. He was married to Amanda McFadden in December, 1859 and in 1865 moved to Iowa, and moved to Valentine in 1893, first living on a homestead, but since 1898 the family has lived in town.

Four daughters and a son, all grown up, besides his estimable wife, survive him: Mrs. Ida E. Tharp of Abbia, Iowa, Mrs. Ida A. Holselaw and Miss Leila McCloud of Valentine, Mrs. Sallie M. Ayers of Crookston and J. W. McCloud of Simeon, all of whom were present at his death.

The funeral was held at the home at 4 p. m. Saturday by Rev. Connell and the remains laid to rest in Mount Hope cemetery.

Through an oversight we omitted the name of James Mone of Cody who was nominated by the democrats for county commissioner of the 3rd district. He is a good man and ought to be elected.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Webb is very ill yet with fever and cholera infantum, with little hope for recovery. The child has been ill for about three weeks and several times was very low but last week was thought to be recovering.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

What to Do When Table Linen Grows Thin—Helpful Hints.

Too little attention is paid to the wear and tear of tablecloths and napkins, as a rule. They are washed and ironed and put away regardless of the places that are becoming thin and worn until these spots become holes and it suddenly dawns on the dismayed housekeeper that her table linen is "going all to pieces."

If tiny holes are found in table linen the first thing to do is to darn them neatly, selecting the numbers of thread or cotton best suited to the material to be darned, using as fine a needle as possible. If the material is much worn it is best to lay a piece of the same under the thin place and darn down upon it. This gives strength, though it does not look quite as neat as it would without the extra piece of material beneath. A ragged tear always must have an extra piece beneath.

Kitchen Help.

Those who have tried it say that to hold a pin or needle between the teeth when paring onions keeps the eyes from watering.

A jelly tumbler with close fitting cover is a good receptacle for the sifted flour which is so handy to have ready for thickening gravy.

Soaking ham overnight in sweet milk before boiling or frying improves the flavor greatly.

A few drops of lemon juice added to the water in which rice is boiled will whiten the kernels.

Prevention of Cooking Odors.

Odors from cooking, the careful housewife may be glad to know, can be prevented by tying up in a linen bag a lump of bread about the size of a billiard ball and placing it in the pot with the boiling greens, ham, etc. This will absorb the gases which oftentimes send such an effluvia to the regions above. A few red peppers or pieces of charcoal put into the pot are also said to stop the unpleasant odor which generally fills the house when green vegetables are boiled.

Floor Polish.

For a useful floor polish take two ounces of white and yellow wax, an ounce of white soap and a quart of boiling water. Shred the soap and the wax and melt them in a saucepan with the water over the fire. Mix by stirring and pour into a jar or bottle until wanted for use.

Apply with a woolen rag or a piece of flannel, then rub with another flannel and polish well until all stickiness is removed.

For Spongy Gums.

Sometimes there is a sort of spongy softness about the gums, very unpleasant. For this rub them several times daily with a mixture of half an ounce of Peruvian bark with six grams each of powdered ratanhia and chlorate of potash. A little soft brush dipped in pure lemon juice and applied to the gums where they are soft or slightly ulcerated will sometimes effect a cure.

For Sunburn.

Mix buttermilk with enough talcum powder to make a paste and spread it on the face when retiring. Another homemade remedy is to rub the skin thoroughly with the inner side of the rind of a freshly pared cucumber, and still another is baking soda—sovereign healer of all burns—either made into a solution for washing or applied in hot compresses.

Smothered Bread.

Dip thick slices of bread in milk, just enough to moisten, then fry in a little butter and lard. While this is cooking, fry in another spider, closely covered, a lot of sliced onions. Let the onions be cooking before starting the bread. When both are done, keep the onions on the bread. See that they are well seasoned and serve piping hot.

Glycerin in Cookery.

Good cooks know the value of a few drops of glycerin added to the flour in cake making, in the proportion of a teaspoonful to every pound of flour. This makes the cake light and leathery. Three teaspoonfuls to every pound of fruit in making preserves prevents the fermentation of the sugar and obviates all danger of crystallization.
