REV. C. E. CONNELL, Pastor

J. W. Ward, the Britt storekeeper, died in this city Sunday evening of typhoid fever. He was ill only a few days and was brought to town from Britt last week to secure medical services. The A. O. U. W. and D. of H. took charge of the funeral which was held Tuesday morning in the Presbyterian church, Rev. Beale delivering the funeral sermon.

The recent financial disturbance in the New York stock exchange has brought a general depression of business over the whole country. Several trust companies have gone down under the strain, carrying heavy deposits, meaning losses of millions to eastern depositors. Much money of western banks is carried as their reserve in eastern banks which have refused to ship currency when called for by our local banks, owing to their inability to supply it and have issued statements that clearing house certificates and certified checks will be issued instead of cash. Our local banks have joined with banks in Omaha and other banks over the country that no money will be paid out exceeding 20 per cent of checks up to $250 in case of attempt to withdraw deposits, nor more than $50 on any account in one day. No such panic has been experienced since 1873 nor can we tell the half nor does the daily papers tell half the excitement which prevails in the east in a clamor for money which ranged from 12 to 75 per cent Monday and one minute before the close of the stock exchange in New York two millions were loaned on call at 50 per cent. Dozens of banks have suspended payment entirely until the excitement subsides and many refuse to pay out to exceed $10 on any account in one day. In Oregon the governor has declared a week of holiday so that banks may remain closed during the excitement. Everybody is hoping each day for better news and a settled condition to prevail but the disturbance is general and far reaching in effect. Business was at a stand still but is being resumed gradually. It must mean lower prices for everything and a great slump in the stock and grain markets.
