DISASTROUS EXPLOSION IN FAM-OUS ZEIGLER COLLIERY.

Leiter and Wife Spend Entire Day in Work of Rescue, the Latter Furnishing Coffee and Sandwiches to Those in Search of Bodies.

A disastrous gas explosion, in which twenty-five men lost their lives, occurred at an early hour Sunday morning in Joseph Leiter's famous colliery at Zeigler, Ill. A spark from a trolley pole of an electric motor coming in contact with a pocket of gas is assigned as the cause of the explosion.

Mr. Leiter personally conducted the first relief party that descended into the mine to recover the dead bodies.

The lone survivor of the explosion was an Italian youth, who escaped unharmed.

An expert, who had been experimenting with the gases in the mines at Zeigler, left Wednesday confident that he had placed the mine in safe condition to be operated.

The men entombed were engaged in clearing the debris caused by the recent fires in this mine, and it is expected that operations would be resumed this week after two months' suspension.

The bodies taken from the mine are badly burned and identification is difficult. Twenty-six men entered the mine on the night shift, and the names of the victims are taken from the pay-

DIDN'T CHARGE CORRUPTION.

Quotes Record Against Men Whe Had Law Changed-Frauds Unearthed by Detectives.

"There is no more foolish outery than this against spies; only criminals need fear our detectives." This sentence from a former utterance of himself on the subject is hurled at the House of Representatives by President Roosevelt Monday in a special message on the secret service and the action of Congress in cutting down the appropriation for this part of the government's work. The message, which was eagerly awaited, was the President's answer to a request of Congress for evidence to support his statement in his last annual message that "the chief argument in favor of the provision was that the Congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated."

No Charge of Corruption.

President Roosevelt declares he made no charge of corruption against members of the present Congress. If he had proof of such corruption, he says it would be the duty of the government speaker of the house of representa- to start prosecutions, as it prosecuted the late Senator Mitchell and others, and in regard to the "alleged delinquencies of members," he says, it is not the duty of the President to report on that subject.

On the question of the secret service being used to "shadow" Gongressmen, the President asserts that this was the main argument used by the men who were instrumental in cutting down the ing their strength the anti-local option ' appropriation. Chairman Tawney of the committee and Walter I. Smith of Iowa, and Swager Shirley of Kentucky, two of its members, are quoted as using such arguments, while the bill was being discussed. Mr. Shirley's argument, put in the form of a question, is quoted from the Congressional Record, when Mr. Sherley opposed investigation by the secret service of "a member of ard, secretary; H. M. roll.

The explosion was peculiar, no shock or noise was heard or felt at the opening of the shaft, only a puff of smoke. The engineer noticed the smoke, and, realizing that an accident had occurred, summoned aid. The mine had recently been sealed and confined to workings not in the vicinity of the present explosion.

Mrs. Leiter is at Zeigler, and she was at the mouth of the mine with her husband aiding in quieting the widows and orphans who crowded about the mine. She furnished coffee and sandwiches to the men attempting to rescue the bodies. The day was bitterly cold, but Mrs. Leiter was foremost in comforting the widows.

Mr. Leiter said Sunday night that after the bodies are recovered he would have work started toward the reopening of the workings. The mine was put in operation in 1903, and soon after labor trouble began. In April, 1905, an explosion in the mine killed fifty-one men.

PORTUGAL'S KING ILL.

Efforts Being Made to Dissipate Rumors of Its Seriousness.

In order to dissipate the rumors current that his recent illness had entailed lung trouble, King Manuel, attired in the uniform of field marshal, rode through the principal streets of Lisbon, followed by a brilliant staff, and it was noted that the king was very pale and that he sat on the horse with difficulty. Afterward he went aboard the royal yacht Amelia. His physicians are insisting that the king make frequent cruises in the hope that the sea air will strengthen his constitutional weakness.

It is said that the duke of Oporto, the king's uncle and heir apparent to the Portuguese throne, has declared that in the event of Manuel's death nothing could induce him to assume the crown. In such a circumstance as this there is no other descendent of the royal family in direct line of succession, the monarchical form of government in Portugal would be serious ly jeopardized.

Officers Seek Clews in Michigan Murder Case.

With rumors of every description and stories of all sorts floating about the countryside, near Columbus, Mich., where a dismembered body was found stuffed into the Methodist church stove, there is not one positive development toward solving the mystery which shrouds the crime. A suspicion of the accuracy of the identification of the body as that of Rev. John M. Carmichael developed Thursday. Many people living about the neighborhood expressed doubt that it is the minister. The authorities on their arrival at the church found parts of the dismembered body between two stoves. In one stove was the head of what was apparently a hatchet, the handle of which had been burned off. A dirk stantinople, with considerable loss of also was found. This, it is believed, was used in the murder, while the hatchet was used to cut the body to
