JUST DOUBLE

320 ACRES Instead of 160 ACRES

As further inducement to settlement of the wheat raising lands of Western Canada, the Canadian Government has increased the area that may be taken by a homestead to 320 acres—160 free and 160 to be purchased at $3.00 per acre. These lands are in the grain-raising area, where mixed farming is also carried on with unqualified success.

A railway will shortly be built to Hudson Bay, bringing the world's markets a thousand miles nearer these wheat fields, where schools and churches are convenient, climate excellent, railways close to all settlements and local markets good.

"It would take time to assimilate the revelations that a visit to the great empire lying to the North of us unfolded at every turn."—Correspondence of a National Edition, who visited Western Canada in August, 1908.

CURE

Special Uses for Cement.

A sack of portland cement is a very useful thing to have for making quick repairs about the farm. A hole in a drain pipe can be stopped in a few minutes with a little cement mixed with water thick as putty. A crack in a barrel can be stopped this way. Hardwood floors may be patched and nail holes filled so they will not leak.

A waterproof floor can be laid over an old board floor in a short time. Sweep the old floor clean and dry and nail down all loose boards. Cover with a layer of heavy wire netting, tacking it down occasionally. Over this lay a layer of concrete of 1 part portland cement, 3 parts clean sand, mixed with water to a thin paste.

Smooth thoroughly, but if it is to be used by stock brush with an old broom to make it rough, then let it dry thoroughly before using the floor. Gutters may be put in where necessary. Holes in an old shingled roof can be quickly stopped by forcing a little cement putty under the shingle where the leak appears.

Some special uses to which cement is being put are the making of bee hives, brick for pavement and ordinary foundations, cement shingles for roofing, grain bins in the form of square box-like and round barrel-like receptacles, etc. The use of this excellent material for farm structures is only just opening up and it is destined to become the most important material for general farm building.—Farm and Home.

Cowpeas for Pasture.

The use of cowpeas for pasture is not as a rule the best farm practice, but under circumstances it is advisable and fairly profitable. Grazing cultivated lands is likely to render succeeding tillage more difficult on account of the trampling by stock, and, unless care is exercised in pasturing cowpeas, loss of animals by bloating may result, especially in wet weather. However, the small amount of work and the insignificant outlay always associated with the grazing of stock commend the practice to the average farmer, and scarcity of labor often makes it necessary to pasture a crop whenever possible. Cowpeas when planted in corn are very commonly used for grazing, especially with hogs.

The best time to begin pasturing cowpeas is when the first pods are ripe. This practice is not generally followed, as at least a part of the seed is saved first. When the peas are sown in corn fields the grazing is deferred until the corn has been gathered.

In a feeding trial at the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station it was found that pigs fed corn alone gained 0.36 pound daily, while pigs on cowpea pasture and corn gained 0.97 pound daily, consuming 36 per cent less corn for each pound of gain. The returns were $10.65 for an acre of cowpeas, with corn at 40 cents a bushel and hogs at 3 cents a pound.

Low-Sulphur Spray.

In a bulletin of recent date from the United States Bureau of Plant Industry the author says that on account of the corrosive action of Bordeaux mixture, particularly when used during wet seasons, experiments have been carried on to discover a substitute as a fungicide. The author has experimented with a mixture of sulphur and lime, and finds that it is quite sufficient for the control of the ordinary leaf and fruit diseases of the apple and peach.

This fungicide, which is not a new one, having been recommended for use many years ago, was made by the author by placing fifteen pounds of fresh lime in a barrel, pouring over it two or three gallons of boiling water, and immediately adding ten pounds of sulphur and another bucket of hot water. The mixture will boil vigorously for several minutes and should be stirred and more water added if the mass gets too thick. After boiling ceases, which should be in from twenty to thirty minutes, the mixture should be diluted with cold water to make about fifty gallons, thoroughly stirred and strained to take out the coarse particles of lime.

This fungicide has been tested in connection with apple bitter rot experiments, apple blotch, apple scab and leaf spot and found but little inferior to Bordeaux mixture, and so far without any injurious effect. As a fungicide for the control of peach brown rot and scab it has proved exceptionally favorable, as the amount of disease is greatly reduced, and the corrosive effect of

ORIGIN OF CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Pretty and Interesting Legend Concerning That Flower.

The Japanese have an interesting legend in connection with the origin of the chrysanthemum, the London Globe says. In a garden, bathed in the soft moonlight, a young girl plucked a flower and commenced to strip the petals to see if her fiance loved her truly. Of a sudden a little god appeared before her and assured her that her fiance loved her passionately. Your husband will live, he added, as many years as the flower, which I will let you choose, has petals. With those words he disappeared. The young girl hastened to search the garden for a flower which should have an abundance of petals, but each one appeared to promise but a brief future for her beloved.

At length she picked a Persian carnation, and, with the aid of a gold pin, taken from her hair, she separated each of the petals of the flower, so as to increase the number of petals and of the number of years accorded by the god to her fiance. Soon, under her deft fingers, one, two, three hundred petals, thin, pliant and beautifully curved, had been evolved, and the young girl cried for joy to think of the happy future which her husband had assured her. So, runs the legend, was the chrysanthemum created one moonlight night in a Japanese garden, where silvery brooks murmur softly as they run beneath the little bamboo bridges.

This Shoe May Fit.

Two men, whose offices were on the second floor, were on the first floor waiting for an elevator. Long and impatiently they waited.

"You're not looking extra well, Landseil," remarked the lawyer.

"No, Rankle," replied the real estate man. "Think I'll join an athletic club. I need exercise."

"Me, too."

Still they waited for the elevator.—Kansas City Times.

The Weather House.

A very ingenious contrivance for foretelling the weather is the old-fashioned "weather house," largely made in Switzerland. It is arranged in such a way that two figures act in response to the twisting of a piece of catgut. The material, supported by a wire, controls the movements of a little platform, on either end of which is placed a model. Excessive moisture in the air causes the catgut to twist and turn the platform round, so that the man emerges from one of the doors in the front of the house. Reverse conditions of the atmosphere bring about the contraction of the catgut, and the platform swings back, thus bringing the figure of the woman into prominence at her particular door. The making of a weather house is quite an easy matter.

ONE KIDNEY GONE.

But Cured After Doctors Said There Was No Hope.

Sylvanus O. Verrill, Milford, Me., says: "Five years ago a bad injury paralyzed me and affected my kidneys. My back hurt me terribly, and the urine was badly disordered. Doctors said my right kidney was practically dead. They said I could never walk again. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. One box made me stronger and freer from pain. I kept on using them, and in three months was able to get out on crutches, and the kidneys were acting better. I improved rapidly, discarded the crutches and the wonder of my friends was soon completely cured."

Priority.

The wagons of "the greatest show on earth" passed up the avenue at daybreak. Their incessant rumble soon awakened ten-year-old Billie and his five-year-old brother Robert. Their mother feigned sleep as the two white-robed figures crept past her bed into the hall on the way to investigate. Robert struggled manfully with the unaccustomed task of putting on his clothes. "Wait for me, Billie," his mother heard him beg. "You'll get ahead of me."

"Get mother to help you," counseled Billie, who was having troubles of his own.

Mother started to the rescue and then paused as she heard the voice of her younger, guarded, but anxious and insistent:

"You ask her, Billie. You've known her longer than I have."—Everybody's.

Out of Order.

Champ Clark loves to tell of how in the heat of a debate Congressman Johnson of Indiana called an Illinois representative a jackass. The expression was unparliamentary, and in retraction Johnson said:

"While I withdraw the unfortunate word, Mr. Speaker, I must insist that the gentleman from Illinois is out of order."

"How am I out of order?" yelled the man from Illinois.

"Probably a veterinary surgeon could tell you," answered Johnson, and that was parliamentary enough to stay on the record.—Success Magazine.

Practical Demonstration.

Teacher—As to those old superstitions we have been talking about, they are all exploded. Nobody believes now, for instance, that it brings bad luck to walk under a ladder.

Shaggy Haired Pupil—I do, ma'am. I walked under a ladder once, and it fell on me.

NO MEDICINE.

But a Change of Food Gave Relief.

Many persons are learning that drugs are not the thing to rebuild worn-out nerves, but proper food is required.

There is a certain element in the cereals, wheat, barley, etc., which is grown there by nature for food to brain and nerve tissue. This is the phosphate of potash, of which Grape-Nuts food contains a large proportion.

In making this food all the food elements in the two cereals, wheat and barley, are retained. That is why so many heretofore nervous and run-down people find in Grape-Nuts a true nerve and brain food.

"I can say that Grape-Nuts food has done much for me as a nerve renewer, writes a Wis. bride:

"A few years ago, before my marriage, I was a bookkeeper in a large firm. I became so nervous toward the end of each week that it seemed I must give up my position, which I could not afford to do.

"Mother purchased some Grape-Nuts and we found it not only delicious, but I noticed from day to day that I was improving until I finally realized I was not nervous any more.

"I have recommended it to friends as a brain and nerve food, never having found its equal. I owe much to Grape-Nuts, as it saved me from a nervous collapse, and enabled me to retain my position."
