MUSIC SOOTHES THE SICK.

Hospital Patients Greatly Benefited by a Kind-Hearted Player.

The gifts that some of us possess for doing good to others was strikingly shown a few days ago in an uptown hospital. A student who was an expert mandolin player had called on a friend who was a patient in the institution, and at the sick man's request he had brought his instrument. The patient's room was one of many that epened off a reception room. Among the patients on the same floor was a sufferer from the morphine habit, who at frequent intervals had to be given a potion to quiet his nerves. As the time approached for him to receive this he would become so nervous that he would almost rave. Not far away was a young woman suffering from a nervous breakdown. She was rarely at rest.

Suddenly the first notes of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" broke the quiet of the hospital. Mellowed by distance, the music of the mandolin, played by a master hand, sounded like that of a violin. The effect on the patients was noticeable at once. The morphine user, who had been begging for his potion. paused to listen and forgot the craving for the drug. It was the same with the young woman. Instead of picking at the counterpane she lay perfectly still, fearful of missing a note from the sweet melody that floated in through her open door. Then came "Home, Sweet Home," and as some of the patients lay with closed eves from under many a lid there stole a tear as the sufferers thought of the homes to which some of them might never return. Again and again did the musician favor his eager audience with selections, classical or ropular. Even the nurses and physicians felt soothed and benefited as the result of the efforts of the obliging student. The thanks of his score of hearers shone from their eyes as the young man left the room of his friend and took the elevator for the first floor. "That did our patients more good than lots of the medicine they take," remarked one of the physicians. "It is a pity that some rich man does not provide enough money so that the sick and injured in our hospitals could be soothed at frequent intervals by as good music as that which we have just heard."-Philadelphia Press.

KANSAS NOW A LIQUOR SAHARA.

Bucket Shops Kicked, Streams Purified, Danny Dreamer Barred.

Kansas is as dry as laws can make it now. The new prohibitory law that stops the sale of liquors by druggists went into effect at midnight Saturday. The Kansas statute book appeared Saturday morning, and the acts of the Legislature become effective on its publication. All bucket shops in the State will have to close. The new labor law bars child actors from the theaters and all boys under 14 years of age from the messenger service. Interurban cars must be equipped with additional conveniences. Cities will be required to preserve the purity of the waters of the streams in their vicinity. Railroads will be required to erect hog tight fences along the right of way where farmers require it. Fruit tree agents will go to jail if they misrepresent the brand of fruit trees they

As soon as it was announced that after forty-six hours of battle in the jury room of Judge McSurely's court the jury had established a record in labor cases in Chicago by finding a verdict of guilty, albeit by virtue of a comfrom the punishment, Mr. Wayman ordered Madden rushed to trial on another of the indictments standing against him and carrying a penitentiary sentence in the event of ultimate conviction. MAKING SUNSHINE.

It Is Often Found in Pure Food. The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, most sickness comes from wrong food and just so gurely as that is the case right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after, doctor, food hurt me and I had to live almost entirely on magnesia and soda. All solid food distressed me so that water would run out of my mouth in little streams.

"I had terrible night sweats and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time and my wife saw
