DICT IN CALHOUN CASE.

Judge Orders a Dismissal-Ten Hold Out for Acquittal Until the Last-Heney Insists He is Ready to Proceed at Once with a New Trial.

Terminating in a disagreement of the jury with ten men determined on acquittal and two steadfastly resolved upon conviction, the trial of President Patrick Calhoun, of the United railroads, ended at noon Sunday at San Francisco. Five months and a week had transpired since the wealthy street car magnate, a descendant of Patrick Henry, made his first appearance in court to answer the charge of offering a bribe of $4,000 to a supervisor to obtain a privilege for his corporation. Not until each juror had pronounced as hopeless the prospect of a verdict was the order for their liberation made by Judge Lawlor, the prosecution and defense giving assent to the discharge. The trial ended quietly and without demonstration. The court room was well filled, but the sudden climax did not permit of an attendance gathered from far and near,

The defendant and his attorneys as well as the chief of the prosecution refrained from comment upon the disagreement when it was recorded and quickly departed from the court room. But five ballots were taken, three of | cried, "My God!" and fainted. these shortly after the jury retired. Upon the first vote the jury stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. Two of the four joined the majority upon the second ballot, and one of the remaining two announced his determination to remain out a month if necessary.

"I am ready to try this case again and I will go ahead tomorrow, if necessary," said Mr. Heney an hour after the adjournment.

Mr. Calhoun said: "Of course I am disappointed at the failure of the jury to acquit me of the unjust charges against me. I should have liked my vindication by the jury to have been absolute.

JURY'S STRANGE VERDICT.

One Handed In in Denatto Case at Fonda, N. Y.

Frank Denatto, a wealthy Italian saioon keeper on trial at Fonda, N. Y., for the murder of William E. McLachlan, of Cranes Hollow, was Saturday acquitted by a jury, which handed in one of the most remarkable verdicts ever recorded in a homicide case.

The document reads:

"While in our own minds and opinion we, as men, regard the defendant as guilty, yet after considering our oaths as jurors and carefully considering the evidence as placed before us, we cannot find sufficient evidence to convict, and therefore render a verdict of not guilty."

McLachlan, the murdered man, was an eccentric farmer, who lived alone and had frequently befriended Denatto by lending him money. For the purpose of stealing unrecorded evidences of indebtedness Denatto sent five Italians to McLachlan's home with instructions to kill him.

Two of the actual participants in the crime have already been convicted and another was killed by a fellow countryman a few days after the crime.

VALUABLE RELIC IS FOUND.

A. M. Jackson Discovers a Map of Omaha in the Early Days. A. M. Jackson, of Sioux City has in his possession a relic of which he is rightly proud and one with which he would not care to part. It is a map or plat of the city of Omaha, or Omaha City, as it then was called, published in 1854. One of the interesting things about the map is an inscription in the left hand corner which reads as follows: "Lots will be given to persons who will improve them-private sales will be made on the premises A newspaper, the Omaha Arrow, is published weekly at this place. A brick building suitable for the territorial legislature is in process of construction and a steam mill and brick hotel will be completed in a few weeks." Directly under this announcement is the date, September 1, 1854.

The brick hotel referred to was the first structure of that material built in the state of Nebraska, and such an announcement was intended to be quite an inducement at that time to There is talk, from certain sources,
