An eastbound stock train ran into an open switch here last Sunday and collided with an extra that was standing on the side track. The front trucks of the moving engine left the track and her pilot was completely demolished, while the pilot of the other engine was only slightly damaged. Outside of a general shaking up no one was seriously injured.

One of the very pleasant affairs of the week, was given Sat. afternoon, by Mrs. J. H. Quigly, at her home in form of a reception, in honor of Mrs. James C. Quigly. The house was beautifully decorated in autumn colors and looked welcome in itself to the bride. Small cards was distributed, and each lady wrote some advise to the bride which were collected and read. A game of testing smell by passing small envelopes containing some spice was won in a draw by Mrs. Flynn, of O'Neill. A splendid two course lunch was served to about forty ladies.

Killian—Quigley.

Wednesday afternoon, September 28th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Killian, occurred the marriage of their daughter Sylvia to James Cloyd Quigley. Rev. Mr. Phelps, of Bellevue, officiated.

The rooms were effectively decorated in asparagus ferns and cut flowers with quantities of pink and white tulle bows. Over the lace curtains at each window hung festoons of ferns and the daintiness was accentuated by pink and white butterflies. In the large living room where the ceremony was performed, the bay window was converted into a latticed bower of ferns, smilax and white tulle. Under the archway Dr. Phelps with Mr. Quigley and his best man, Mr. Walcott, awaited the bridal party. To the melody of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Zora Fitzgerald, two little cousins of the bride, Thersa and Dorothy Killian drew white ribbons from the hall to the bower, making an aisle through which the bridal party proceeded. Miss Jess Killian, the bride's sister and maid of honor, came alone, and following her was the bride and her father. The ceremony was short, but very impressive and beautiful.

An informal reception followed during which the guests had an opportunity of seeing the many elegant gifts.

The bride wore a white satin gown over taffeta, trimmed in duchesse lace. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Her going away suit was dark brown broadcloth. Miss Jess Killian wore a green marquisette net over white messaline. It was trimmed in a dainty design of pink rose buds. She also carried a boquet of pink roses.

Miss Pauline Bush invited the guests to the dining room where they were served refreshments, further accentuating the color scheme. This room was a fairy bower of pink and white. The house had been darkened and was lighted throughout with the soft glow of candles. Here they were pink in crystal sticks and struck such a charming note of harmony with the pink butterflies that clung to the portiere of asparagus ferns.

Miss Florence Chapman sang delightfully. She was accompanied by Miss Zora Fitzgerald.

About one hundred guests were present, many from out of town. The bride is a member of Pi Beta Phi Society at the University of Nebraska, and a number of her sisters attended the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Quigley will live in Valentine Nebr., where Mr. Quigley is engaged in business. They left for Valentine via automobile to Fremont the same evening thus escaping from the large number that had prepared themselves to give them a hearty send-off at the depot. Our best wishes accompany them.

From the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Forest Service.

In an action for fire trespass on the Black Hills National Forest brought by the United States against the Missouri River and Northwestern Railroad, the jury has awarded damages to the Government not only for the loss of merchantable timber but also for the destruction of unmerchantable young growth.

This is regarded by Government officials as establishing a very important precedent. So far as is known at the U. S. department of agriculture, it is the first time that any court has recognized what foresters call the "expectation value" of young growth as furnishing a basis for awarding damages. The difficulty in the way of such an award in the past has been that there was no way to prove to the satisfaction of the courts the money value of the loss suffered.

The award in the South Dakota case followed the presentation of evidence as to the cost of work in reforesting which the government is actually doing in the Black Hills. The amount claimed for the young growth burned was $12 an acre, and the claim under this item was allowed in full by the jury. The total amount of damages claimed was $3,728.85, of which $2,634.45 was for merchantable timber destroyed or injured by the fire.

It is recognized by foresters that the cost of artificial reforestation will not always furnish a fair basis for estimating the damage to forest reproduction. Where new growth can be expected by natural sowing from seed-trees on the ground within a short time, artificial planting or sowing is an unnecessarily expensive method. To meet such cases what are known as "yield tables" are being prepared. By the use of these the loss can be shown in terms of the final crop and the time necessary to produce it.

Thus, if it is known that ten thousand feet of timber per acre can be cut once in seventy years, it is easy to calculate the value of the crop when it is ten years old by discounting from its value when mature. In European countries where forestry has been long practiced this method is regularly applied in selling, condemning, or estimating damages on forest property. It is also used abroad in insurance, which would be impracticable if there were not both an accepted basis for determining the loss suffered and a reasonably accurate knowledge of the hazard involved.
