

A NEW IDEA.

Political man—There were several ungrammatical sentences in your speech last night.
The Candidate—I know; I'm making a play for the uneducated vote.

SCALP WAS BADLY AFFECTED

"I am more than gratified by the successful results I obtained by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. For several years my scalp was very badly affected with dandruff and scales. My scalp itched terribly at times and my hair fell out. My coat collar would be actually white with the dandruff that had fallen from my head. My profession being that of a barber, I was particularly about having my hair in good condition, and was also in a position to try many lotions, etc., for the scalp. These had little or no effect. I had heard so much about the Cuticura Remedies that I resolved to try them. I shampooed my head with Cuticura Soap twice a week and after drying my head thoroughly, I anointed parts of my scalp with Cuticura Ointment. I was pleased from the outset, and continued to keep up this treatment. To think that only three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and one-half boxes of Cuticura Ointment rid my head of this annoying trouble made me feel quite contented. I have now got a thick growth of hair and I am never troubled with any dandruff or itching of the scalp. There is no question but that the Cuticura Remedies cured me. I frequently recommend them to my customers, and they think a great deal of them." (Signed) John F. Williams, 307 Norfolk Street, Dorchester, Boston, Mass., July 28, 1910.

Breaking a Hobo's Heart.

Manager Gus Hartz was standing near the opera house box office when one of two panhandlers who had entered the lobby approached him, and, holding out an addressed and sealed envelope, begged for the price of a postage stamp.

"It's for me mudder, boss," he snivelled. "Youse wouldn't turn down er guy fer de price er de stamp, would youse?"

"Never," said the manager, deftly grasping the envelope and throwing it through the box office window. "Here, Fred," addressing himself to Treasurer Fred Coan, "stamp this and have it mailed."

The velocity of the proceeding fairly took the panhandler's breath away. Then, backing away to where his partner was doing him, he whispered, "Nothin' a-going, bo—the guy's wise."—Cleveland Leader.

PEOPLE WILL CHOOSE

DIRECT ELECTION OF SENATORS SURE TO COME.

Republicans Vainly Oppose Public Sentiment on This Question—Arguments in Its Favor Too Strong to Be Disregarded.

Once more the national house of representatives has passed the resolution to elect United States senators directly by the people; this time with a few scattering Republican votes in the negative. This may be regarded as a true reflection of the present public sentiment on the question. In the senate, with its increased members of Democrats and Progressive Republicans, the prospect for the amendment is much more favorable than ever before. The only immediate consideration is whether the opponents of the amendment will obstruct its passage in this special session. If passed immediately many state legislatures would hasten to ratify it and the governors of other states might summon extra sessions of the legislatures for the same purpose. Thus before a new election for one-third of the members of the United States senate the choice may be transferred from the state legislature directly to the people.

The Lorimer scandal has doubtless had considerable influence on the public mind in favor of this change, but there are other and more substantial reasons for it. While this is the most recent case of corruption in the recent legislative election of United States senators the truth is that in spite of industrious magazine muckrakers the iniquity is by no means as frequent as in a former period. It would be easy to refer to the epoch of "the Christian statesmen" when there was little concealment concerning the corrupt influences in their election to the senate.

But the potential causes of the movement soon to culminate in the adoption of this amendment are in the frequent deadlocks disturbing and delaying needed legislation, and in the wide disagreement of the people and the legislature as to the choice of the senator. Many a man now holding a seat in the senate through the favoritism of a party machine boss operating upon the legislature, would never have been selected by the people. On the other hand, many a man indicated by the public voice as in the highest degree worthy of the honor has been capriciously rejected by the legislature. For this reason the people have resolved to take the choice of their United States senators upon themselves, and political experience affords ample ground for the change.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Right Kind of Work.

The Democratic leaders of the house of representatives are formulating a program of sweeping economies in the various departments of government. Riotous Republican extravagance has made abundant room for such a policy, and the people will sustain and applaud any party which undertakes the task of instituting economy efficiently and on a large scale. It is a more important work than hatching new taxes and slaughtering protective duties; it will pay better, politically, too. Let a Democratic congress make the old Tilden battle cry of retrenchment and reform its paramount policy, and the doors of the White House will swing open in 1913 to admit that party's chosen standard-bearer.

Democratic Outlook.

Committee chairmanships announced by the Democrats in the house of representatives are causing satisfaction among conservative men of all party groups. Such judicious observers as Mr. Lawrence of Massachusetts are reported as approving the selections on the ground that in the main careful men have been chosen. This seems to hold out the hope of painstaking work in the new congress.

EXPOSURE OF A FALLACY

Republican Journal Points Out the Folly of Excessive "Protection" Policy.

A correspondent of the Tribune is pained by its assertion that the duties on raw wool are too high. He says—and, being in the sheep industry, he thinks he ought to know—that without them the wool industry would perish and sheep become as scarce in America as snakes in Ireland.

A wool grower, he says, "is obliged to take care of two sheep for an entire year to get the wool needed for one suit of clothes. For this wool the sheepman receives $1.50, and it has cost him in the meantime on an average $6.88 to take care of the two sheep."

The only conclusion one can draw from this is that the wool raiser is in an extremely unprofitable business, which he had better get out of as soon as possible. It would seem as if nothing but a disinterested love for sheep could induce him to stay in it. It would take a duty of incredible proportions to make his business a paying one.

The condition of this wool grower, struggling along heroically under an annual deficit of $5.38, is not so bad as the correspondent would have us believe. The time when sheep were raised almost exclusively for their wool has gone by. They are raised now chiefly because they bring forth lambs and make mutton. The wool is merely a byproduct. Americans have learned to eat mutton, now that they are getting it of better quality than of old.

This shepherd who is said to be out of pocket through patriotic efforts to provide an all wool suit of clothes for some American is no argument against the downward revision of schedule K. He is an argument for it. Neither he nor the other man should call on the government to back him up in a losing business. The theory that an American who has gone into some industry where natural conditions are adverse and success problematical has a right to demand sufficient tariff protection to make his business profitable is not in favor among the men and women who have to pay outrageous prices for clothing and blankets which have more shoddy and cotton to them than they have wool.—Chicago Tribune (Rep).

The new Democratic house does not seem disposed to heed the familiar warning: "Don't start something you can't finish."

Playing Real Politics.

The Canadian reciprocity bill gave the Democrats of the house a great chance to play politics—which they promptly took advantage of. It was a measure submitted by a Republican president. They might have torn it to pieces and amended it so that it would have been rejected by Canada, all under the pretext of carrying out revision downward.

Instead, under the leadership of Champ Clark and Oscar Underwood, they have introduced the bill as it came from President Taft and have committed the party majority to its support, because this was the surest way to a measure of tariff relief.

Playing real politics, are these Democrats. For they are winning the country's confidence.

"Progressives" in the Wrong.

The "Progressive" Republicans who have been howling the loudest against the Payne-Aldrich tariff and the high cost of living are taking the lead against Canadian reciprocity. Here is a practical and immediate chance to relieve the stress of high prices somewhat, and the self-constituted champions of the people are trying to throttle it. Why? Because it interferes with the special privileges of some of their constituents. With all their agitation against "special privileges," the miscalled "Progressives" are quickest to line up in their favor. Humbug appears to flourish at Washington, D. C.

Body Found in Barn.

Clay County.—Coroner Howard of Harvard was called to Sorenville to investigate the death of Wolfred Jacobson, who was found hanging in his barn. He had eaten his breakfast and been over town, his wife seeing him come back and go into the barn, as she supposed, to hitch up his team to go into the field to do some work, and not seeing him come from the barn, went out and found him hanging to a beam, dead. No cause is known.

A READER CURES HIS CONSTIPATION—TRY IT FREE

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"
Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practiced the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.
Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 88 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.
For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 301 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.
