Address, The Democrat, Valentine, Nebraska.

Valentine

G. W. Gaskill of Kennedy was in town last Friday and Saturday.

T. J. Christopher and family were transacting business in town Tuesday.

Miss Hazel Noyes, who has been very sick with typhoid fever, is improving.

J. T. Kief and Dennis Garvey were up from their ranches near Arabia on Tuesday.

Amzi Veach, who is working up near Kilgore spent Sunday at home with his family.

Mrs. Harry Tripp of Watertown, Wis., is visiting with Mrs. J. H. Quigley and family.

Miss Zaruah Hershey of Bloomfield, Nebr., is visiting her uncle, George Hershey, and family.

Will Leonard went to Draper, S. D., his former home Saturday to bring his household goods to Valentine.

Carl R. Freman, a former Valentine boy and at one time on the Democrat force, is here visiting.

Oliver Walcott, Judge and Mrs. J. C. Quigley and Miss Gertrude Quigley motored to Gregory today.

W. B. Kelly, one of the attorneys for the Sellers' murderers, came from Independence, Mo., Monday night.

Bessie, Aurthur and Ralph Shaul are sick with typhoid fever. They are getting along as well as can be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wilkinson returned from their eastern trip Friday night and went to their home near Kennedy Sunday.

There will be services in St. John's church next Sunday both morning and evening at 11 and 7:30 o'clock respectively. Choir rehearsal on Saturday evening.

Joseph Rose was arraigned before Judge Quigley last Saturday morning charged with assaulting his step mother, Mrs. Julia Rose. He was bound over to the district court and was released on bond.

The county commissioners have allowed Supt. Cora Thackrey an office assistant. Miss Thackrey will now devote the greater part of her time to visiting the schools of the county.

Some may think that the addresses given are by those who have book learning and who have had no experience. Such is not the case. Mr. Hull of Alma, Nebraska is a farmer of many years. He has also devoted considerable time during the winters for the past ten years to Farmer's Institute work in Nebraska and other states. He is primarily, however, a Nebraska farmer and interested in Nebraska people.

He will be present at the Farmer's Institute in Valentine Saturday, October 21st, and should receive a large hearing Saturday morning at 11 o'clock when he will lead in the discussion on alfalfa. Mr. Cowan of the Experiment Station at Valentine will also be present. Both of these men are capable of telling our people many things about this wonderful plant, but it is earnestly hoped that the farmers in this immediate vicinity will tell of their experience.

Capacity of Rocks as Reservoirs.

The capacity of rocks to imbibe moisture varies with their physical structure. Most of the water in rocks occurs in pores and interstices, the larger part of the world's well-water supply being derived from saturated porous beds, only a small part of it being obtained from caverns or large cavities. Practically all rocks, however compact they may appear to the eye, have interstices and small cavities in which water may be stored. The degree of porosity of rocks, however, differs greatly in different rocks, being highest in open-textured loose sands, sandstones, gravels, and chalks, all of which have great capacity for imbibing water, and lowest in close textured clays, slates, marbles, and granites, which have very small capacity for absorbing and transmitting water. Some rocks, however, such as granite, which in their original condition are almost impervious, become water bearing through the development of fractures and crevices.

The capacity of rocks for transmitting water is different from their capacity for imbibition. In certain fine-grained rocks the pore spaces are so small that they will not readily transmit water. Hence rocks like chalk or brick, which absorb water freely, transmit it slowly, whereas others with no greater total pore space transmit it readily. Sandstones, for instance, vary greatly in texture and consequently in their capacity for carrying water. (From report of United States Geological Survey.)

Simeon.

We are on the force again after an absence of several weeks.

C. C. Bennett, J. H. Baker and Robert Ellis shipped cattle Monday.

C. S. Reece, L. L. Lutta, Warner Stratton and others shipped six loads last week.

The quartette is preparing to furnish music for the coming winter entertainments.

Miss Andrews and Miss Moore visited Valentine Saturday. They are enjoying their school work and giving splendid satisfaction.

Mrs. Crowe has an interesting school at Simeon. She has prepared a paper on the Panama canal for the teachers' meeting at Valentine October 14, which contains much information concerning this great work.

Mrs. J. C. Reece returned Tuesday from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Horton, at Cassady, Kansas. She reports a good time. Mr. Reece met her in Omaha, having spent a week visiting relatives in Iowa. They feel more satisfied than ever with Cherry county.

Most of the cattle have been sent to market from this locality for this year. Prices have been good and our people are encouraged. The herds have been decreased on account of a short hay crop. Gardens and potatoes recovered remarkably well from the effects of the dry summer. The season is closing up in a manner that finds our people in comfortable circumstances.

Barnes the eye specialist of Omaha will be at the Donohoe hotel Wednesday the 25th. Visits made here for more than ten years. No charges for examination. Wood Lake the 26th. 40-2

Critics in the musical centers of the music-loving world, join in their approval of the clear soprano voice of Mme. Dorothea North and she is ranked among the foremost of the young sopranos. Mme. North toured the old world in concert with her talented instructor, Alexander Heineman, of whom she was a favorite pupil. Her voice is one of rare sweetness and her easy and unaffected manner gain for her at once the appreciation of her hearers.

Mme. North will be heard here with Theobaldi, the Norwegian violinist on Tuesday night, October 17, in Quigley's Hall.
