

JENNIE BAXTER: JOURNALIST

BY ROBERT EARL

IX.—An Unlooked For Encounter.

"Well, neither do the Russians, for that matter, by this time, and I merely wish to tell you that if it hadn't been for his action and for the promptness of a member of his staff I should have failed in this mission. I was dragged by the Russian police and robbed. Miss Baxter, who was on the train, saw something of what was going forward and succeeded most deftly in despoiling the robbers. I was lying insensible at the time and helpless. She secured the document and handed it back to me when we had crossed the frontier, leaving in the hands of the Russians a similar envelope containing a copy of The Daily Bugle. Therefore, uncle, if

The old man scribbled a most cordial invitation to Hardwick.

In future you can do anything to oblige Mr. Hardwick, you will help in a measure to cancel the obligation which our family owes to him.

"My dear boy, I shall be delighted to do so. I am afraid I have been rather unwell to him. If you wish it, I shall go at once and apologize to him."

"Oh, no," cried Jennie, "you mustn't do that, but if you can help him without jeopardizing the service I for one would be very glad."

"So should I," said Donal. The old man took out his card case and on the back of his card scribbled a most cordial invitation to Hardwick, asking him to call on him. He handed this to Jennie and said:

"Tell Mr. Hardwick that I shall be pleased to see him at any time."

"And no," said Lord Donal, "you must let us both escort you home in the carriage."

"No, no. I shall take a hansom and will go directly to the office of The Bugle, for Mr. Hardwick will be there by this time."

"But we can drive you there."

"No, please."

She held out her hand to Sir James and said, with the least bit of hesitation before uttering the last word, "Good night—uncle."

"Good night, my dear," said the old man, "and God bless you," he added with a tenderness which his appearance, so solemn and stately, left one unprepared for.

Lord Donal saw his betrothed into a hansom, protesting all the while at this having to allow her to go off unprotected.

"What an old darling he is!" murmured Jennie, ignoring his protests. "I think if Mr. Hardwick had allowed me to look after the interests of the paper at the foreign office Sir James would not have snubbed me."

"If the foreign office dared to do such a thing, it would hear of something not to its advantage from the diplomatic service. And so, good night, my dear." And, with additions, the nephew repeated the benediction of the uncle.

Jennie drove directly to the office of The Daily Bugle, and mounting the stairs entered the editorial rooms. She found Mr. Hardwick at his desk, and he sprang up quickly on seeing who his visitor was.

"Ah, you have returned!" he cried. "You didn't telegraph to me; so I suppose that means failure."

"I don't know, Mr. Hardwick. It all depends on whether or not your object was exactly what you told me it was."

"And what was that? I think I told you that my desire was to get possession of the document which was being transmitted from St. Petersburg to London."

"No; you said the object was the mollifying of old Sir James Cardiff of the foreign office."

"Exactly; that was the ultimate object, of course."

"Very well. Read this card. Sir James gave it to me at Charing Cross station less than half an hour ago."

The editor took the card, turned it over in his hands once or twice and read the cordial message which the old man had scribbled on the back of it.

"Then you have succeeded!" cried Hardwick. "You got the document. But why did you give it to Sir James instead of letting me hand it to him?"

"That is a long story. To put it briefly, it was because the messenger carrying the document was Lord Donal Stirling, who is—who is—an old friend of mine. Sir James is his uncle, and Lord Donal promised that he would persuade the old man to let other newspapers have no advantages which he refused to The Daily Bugle. I did not give the document to Sir James. I gave it back to Lord Donal."

"Lord Donal Stirling—Lord Donal Stirling," mused the editor. "Where have I heard that name before?"

"He is a member of the British embassy at St. Petersburg; so you may have seen his name in the dispatches."

"No; he is not so celebrated as all that comes to. Ah, I remember now! I met the detective the other night and asked him if anything had come of that romance in high life to solve which he had asked your assistance. He said the search for the missing lady had been abandoned and mentioned the name of Lord Donal Stirling as the foolish young man who had been engaged in the pursuit of the unknown."

Jennie colored at this and drew herself up indignantly.

"Before you say anything further against Lord Donal," she cried hotly, "I beg to inform you that he and I are to be married."

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" said the editor icily. "Then, having failed to find the other girl, he speedily consoled himself by—"

"There was no other girl! I was the person Mr. Cadbury Taylor was in search of! I willingly gave him valuable assistance in the task of failing to find myself. Having only a stupid man to deal with, I had little difficulty in accomplishing my purpose. Neither Mr. Taylor nor Mr. Hardwick ever suspected that the missing person was in their own employ."

"Well, I am blessed!" ejaculated Hardwick. "So you baffled Cadbury Taylor in searching for yourself, as you baffled me in getting hold of the Russian letter. It seems to me, Miss Baxter, that where your own inclinations do not coincide with the wishes of your employers the interests of those who pay you fall to the ground."

"Mr. Cadbury Taylor didn't pay me anything for my services as amateur detective, and he has, therefore, no right to grumble. As for the St. Petersburg trip, I shall send you a check for all expenses incurred as soon as I reach home."

"Oh, you mistake me," asserted Mr. Hardwick earnestly. "I had no thought of even hinting that you have not erred over and over again all the money The Daily Bugle has paid you; besides, I was longing for your return, for I want your assistance in solving a mystery that has rather puzzled us all. Paris is in a turmoil just now over the—"

Jennie's clear laugh rang out.

"I am going over to Paris in a day or two, Mr. Hardwick, to solve the mystery of dressmaking, and I think, from what I know of it already, it will require my whole attention. I must insist on returning to you the cost of the St. Petersburg journey, for, after all, it proved to be a rather personal excursion, and I couldn't think of allowing the paper to pay for it. I merely came in tonight to hand you this card from Sir James Cardiff, and I also desired to tender to you personally my resignation, and so I must bid you good-by, Mr. Hardwick," said the girl, holding out her hand, "and I thank you very much indeed for having given me a chance to work on your paper."

Before the editor could reply she was gone, and that good man sat down, in his chair bewildered by the suddenness of it all, the room looking empty and dismal, lacking her presence.

"Confound Lord Donal!" he muttered under his breath, and then, as an editor should, he went on impassively with his night's work.

It was intended that the wedding should be rather a quiet affair, but circumstances proved too strong for the young people. Lord Donal was very popular, and the bride was very beautiful. Sir James thought it necessary to invite a great many people, and he intimated to Lord Donal that a highly placed personage desired to honor the function with his presence, and thus the event created quite a little flutter in society. The society papers affirmed that this elevated personage had been particularly pleased by some diplomatic service which Lord Donal had recently rendered him, but then, of course, one can never believe what one reads in the society press. However, the man of elevated rank was there, and so people said that perhaps there might be something in the rumor. Naturally there was a great turn out of ambassadors and ministers, and their presence gave color and dignity to the crush at St. George's, Hanover square. The Princess von Steinheimer made a special journey from Vienna to attend, and on this occasion she brought the prince with her. The general opinion was that the bridegroom was a very noble looking fellow and that the bride in her sumptuous wedding apparel was quite too lovely for anything.

The princess was exceedingly bright and gay, and she chatted with her old friends, the ambassadors from Austria and America.

"I'm so sorry," she said to the ambassador from America, "that I did not have time to speak with you at the Duchess of Chiselhurst's ball, but I was compelled to leave early. You should have come to me sooner. The count here was much more gallant. We had a most delightful conversation, hadn't we, count? I was with Lord Donal, you remember."

"Oh, yes!" replied the aged Austrian, bowing low. "I shall not soon forget the charming conversation I had with your highness, and I hope you, on your part, have not forgotten the cordial invitation you gave me to visit again your castle at Meran."

"Indeed, count, you know very well how glad I am to see you at any time, either in Vienna or at Meran."

The American ambassador remained silent, and glanced alternately from the bride to the princess with a puzzled expression on his face.

The mystery of the Duchess of Chiselhurst's ball proved too much for him, as the search for the missing lady had proved too much for Mr. Cadbury Taylor.

The End.

SOUTH WINS FIRST ROUND

House Opposes Cutting Down Dixie's Representation.

RESOLUTION IS DEFEATED.

Democrats Fight Its Consideration and Succeed by a Vote of 81 to 83—Army Reorganization Bill Displaces Ship Subsidy Measure in Senate.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The radical element among the house Republicans who favor cutting down the representation from the southern states in which the franchise is abridged suffered defeat yesterday because a number of their colleagues refused to act with them. The issue was precipitated quite unexpectedly. The leaders had decreed that the reapportionment bill should be taken up, but before it could be called Olmstead (Pa.) offered as a matter of privilege a resolution reciting the alleged abridgement of the suffrage in Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, North Carolina and directing the committee on census to investigate and report the facts to the house in order that a constitutional basis of representation should be established for those states. The resolution created a sensation. It was a surprise even to several of the Republican leaders. The leaders on the Democratic side sought in vain to head off the resolution with points of order, but the speaker ruled against them. They then began a filibuster, openly avowing that they would fight every proposition looking to the reduction of representation from the southern states to the bitter end. Several of the Republicans were secretly in sympathy with them and quietly paired with the absent Democrats, leaving their absent colleagues unpaired. As a result, when a question of consideration was raised against the resolution, it was defeated, 81 to 83. The vote was a strict party one. Two Republicans, Landis (Ind.) and Mann (Ills.), answered present, but did not vote. The story of the defeat is found in the absentees on both sides, who were unpaired. Thirty-two Republicans were absent and unpaired, against 16 of the opposition.

The situation with reference to the reapportionment bill is generally complicated, as a result of the injection of the Olmstead resolution. Chairman Hopkins, however, is confident of victory for his bill. He thinks the Olmstead resolution may pass in a full house, and investigation be made, but the matter end there. Irrespective of the fate of the resolution, however, he will press the reapportionment bill and thinks it will pass on Monday.

Army Bill Displaces Subsidy Measure.—Washington, Jan. 4.—Without a murmur of dissent and without a word of comment, the senate yesterday displaced the shipping subsidy bill from its privileged position as "unfinished business" and substituted for it the army reorganization bill. Since the second day of the present session the shipping bill had been the unfinished business, with the understanding that it should not interfere with the consideration of the army reorganization bill or of appropriation bills. During the discussion of the army measure, the opposition senators indicated that their line of attack upon the bill would be against the formation of a large, permanent standing army. There was indication that this opposition would not be offered to a measure to provide an adequate force to maintain the authority of the United States in the Philippines. Beyond this point, yesterday's proceedings developed nothing.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS Names Another Batch of Consuls, Attorneys General and Army Officers.—Washington, Jan. 4.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate:

Oscar F. Williams of New York, to be consul general at Singapore; Frank R. Mowser of Ohio, to be consul at Antigua, W. I.; Frederick E. Rittman of Ohio, to be auditor for the war department; James E. Harlan of Illinois, to be attorney general of Porto Rico; Captain H. A. Shaw, assistant surgeon U. S. A., to be surgeon of volunteers with rank of major; Corporal George Steunenberg, troop A, Eleventh U. S. A. cavalry, to be first lieutenant; Commander Augustus G. Kellogg, U. S. N., retired, to be transferred from the furlough to the retired pay list.

Threatens to Import Men.—Denver, Jan. 4.—Non-union men may be imported to work in the mines of the Northern Coal company if the strike inaugurated by the men is not ended within a few days. President James Cannon, Jr., of the company, gave an intimation that this step will be taken on his return to Denver today from Lafayette, where he has been in conference with the strikers, but had not succeeded in reaching any agreement with them.

More London Failures.—London, Jan. 4.—Additional failures were announced on the Stock exchange yesterday in connection with the suspension of the London and Globe Finance company, limited. They were those of A. S. May, A. H. Clark and G. Blundell, Jr.

Kills His Hired Man.—Milton, N. D., Jan. 4.—William Barry, a middle-aged and wealthy farmer living near this place, came to town and surrendered himself to the authorities yesterday, saying that he had killed Andrew Mellen, his hired man.

HEARING ON THE OLEO BILL.

Live Stock Association Presents Argument In Opposition to Measure.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The senate committee on agriculture resumed its hearing on the oleomargarine bill. Hon. J. M. Springer, representing the National Live Stock association, was the first person to be heard. He spoke in opposition to the bill. He said the association which he represented represented a combined capital of $600,000,000. He read a memorial from the association in opposition to the oleomargarine bill as an effort to build up an interest at the expense of another. He quoted figures to show that whereas the milk cows of the country are valued at $514,000,000, the other cattle put up an aggregate of $899,000,000 in value. He said that the opinion of stock raisers is unanimous that the passage of the pending bill would mean the destruction of the oleomargarine industry, and he argued, there was little effort on the part of the promoters of the bill to conceal this purpose.

Fatal Explosion of Natural Gas.—Colleyville, Kan., Jan. 4.—An explosion of natural gas yesterday that demolished the home of A. M. George, seriously injured George and his wife and fatally hurt William Coons, an elderly man.

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks.

Prof. R. M. Tyler, of Chicago, vice president Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by the Kiesau Drug Co.

Head Feels Like Bursting.—Maybe you were out late last night? If you had taken a Krause's Headache Capsule before retiring your head would be cool and clear this morning. Take one now and you will be all right in an half hour. Price 25¢. Sold by Geo. Christoph.

DAVID CITY, Neb., April 1, 1900.—Genevieve Pure Food, Le Roy, N. Y.—Gentlemen: I must say in regard to Grain-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it. Yours truly, LILLIE SOCHOR.

Cut this out and take it to the Kiesau Drug company's drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, the best physic. They also cure disorders of the stomach, biliousness and headache.

A Deep Mystery.—It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50¢ at the Kiesau Drug Co.

Beat Out of an Increase of His Pension.—A Mexican war veteran and prominent editor writes: "Seeing your advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I am reminded that as a soldier in Mexico in '47 and '48, I contracted Mexican diarrhoea and this remedy has kept me from getting an increase in my pension for an every renewal a dose of it restores me." It is unequalled as a quick cure for diarrhoea and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by the Kiesau Drug Co.

Old Fashioned Cold Cures are going out of date. The busy man of today can not afford to lie abed a whole day and undergo the martyrdom of the sweating process. Krause's Cold Cure are capsules of convenient size, and can be taken without danger while performing your usual duties. They cure in 24 hours. Price 25¢. Sold by Geo. B. Christoph.

Brought Good Fortune.—A small item in his own paper lately brought amazing good fortune to Editor Chris. Reitter, of the Saginaw (Mich.) Post and Zeitung. He and his family had the grip in its worst form. Their doctor did them no good. Then he read that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds was a guaranteed cure for the gripe and all throat and lung troubles; tried it and says: "Three bottles cured the whole family. No other medicine on earth equals it." Only 50¢ and $1.00. Trial bottles free at the Kiesau Drug Co.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50¢ size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Question Answered.—Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Get Green's Prize Almanac. Kiesau Drug Co.

A Simple Cold Cure.—Krause's Cold Cure, in capsule form, is easy to take and does not affect the head or hearing like quinine. Try it today. Price 25¢. Sold by Geo. B. Christoph.

Constipation neglected or badly treated leads to total disability or death. Rocky Mountain Tea absolutely cures constipation in all its forms. 35¢. Ask your druggist.

The Mother's Favorite.—Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the mother's favorite. It is pleasant and safe for the children to take and always cures. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is the best medicine made for these diseases. There is not the least danger in giving it to children for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by the Kiesau Drug Co.
