FRIDAY FACTS.
 Christian Manteuffel of Madison is looking for a 14-year-old son, named Emil, who has run away.

The West Side Whist club was pleasantly entertained last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hays.

W. H. Buchholz, who has been sick for about two weeks, is improving, with every indication of an early recovery.

No one appeared to prosecute in the Lee Bailey case, the trial of which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, and it was dismissed.

C. E. Hartford of this city has been chosen as second vice president of the Nebraska State Volunteer Firemen's association, now in session at Seward.

W. J. Gow, J. W. Gibson and John Utecht, Norfolk poultry fanciers, have 13 entries in the show at the meeting of the Nebraska State Poultry association in Lincoln.

The Union Pacific has a steam pile driver at work today making preparations for putting in a larger turn table at this place. The old turn table is too small to handle the large engines which it is proposed to put on the Norfolk branch of the Union Pacific.

The newly appointed officers of the Norfolk hospital for the insane will assume their positions February 1st. Dr. Teal of Omaha will at that time become superintendent, Dr. Young of Valley county will be assistant physician and M. C. Walker of this city will take the position of steward.

Amos Marvin died suddenly at Winside Wednesday noon, aged 76 years. About three years ago he was thrown off a load of wood and his neck badly twisted and was left lying in a slush of snow and water for about three hours in an unconscious condition. Since that time he has not enjoyed good health.

The foreman of the section gang at Winside left the switch near the mill open last Saturday and luckily there was no accident. Usually the U. P. freight goes through Winside at a rapid rate, but that day it had to stop for some cars and ran onto the switch, where it was stopped. The foreman telegraphed his time in immediately afterward and will go onto a ranch in Minnesota.

The funeral of the late Mrs. August Helleman was held yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Services were held from the house at 1:30 and at 2 o'clock in the St. Paul Lutheran church, Rev. Wm. Hoelzel officiating. The remains were interred in the St. Paul cemetery, northwest of the city. Mr. Helleman is still quite sick and was unable to attend the funeral of his wife.

Madison Chronicle: A gasoline stove was the cause of not a little excitement Tuesday forenoon in Bonnie's barber shop. With the burners lighted young Clark proceeded to fill the tank and in a very short time there was a merry little blaze. Fortunately the young man got his gasoline can away before the gas ignited and escaped without injury. The stove was stationary, but it was pried loose and men sent for from Horst's store carried it upstairs and threw it into the street. One young man learned a lesson and will profit thereby.

County Superintendent Crum came over from Madison last evening and is today holding a conference with J. S. Hancock, superintendent of Stanton county, and E. A. Lundberg, superintendent of Wayne county. The project is being considered of holding a joint teachers' institute for the three counties at this place during the coming summer vacation. It is figured that by combining the forces and funds of the counties interested, a much better class of instructors can be secured than if each county holds its own institute, and there are other advantages to be secured by such a combination.

The annual meeting of the directors of the Norfolk National bank for the election of officers was held yesterday afternoon in the directors' room of that institution. W. H. Buchholz, who has acceptably served as president of the bank since N. A. Rainbolt's retirement, was re-elected to the position of vice president, a place he has held for many years. E. W. Zutz, who has faithfully served in the position of assistant cashier, was given deserving recognition and promoted to the position of cashier. The business of the bank was shown to be in a growing and prosperous condition.

Joseph Koza, the young Bohemian, held in Stanton on the charge of burglary made his escape from the county jail Wednesday evening between the hours of 6 and 7. At 6 o'clock Deputy Sheriff Porter left him locked in jail, intending to return in a few minutes with supper for his prisoner. When he got back he found the jail door open, the screws and bolts having been removed from the hinges. Assistance must have been rendered by persons on the outside, as no one appears to have seen him leave the jail or on the streets leading to the court house square. Editor Enos of the Picket is of the opinion that the bolts and screws might have been removed by the aid of the fire shovel and demonstrated that it is could have been done. It is presumed that Koza is concealed in the vicinity of Stanton.

Frank Keenan, the star of Sol Smith Russell's "A Poor Relation" Co., relinquished the bright future of an architect for the gleam of the foot-lights, behind which he has in a most surprisingly short time become one of the foremost actors of the day. Mr. Keenan and his superb company will be seen here shortly in this famous play.

The patients desirous of consulting Dr. Wilkinson, the Omaha specialist eye, ear, nose and throat, should be at Dr. Salter's office, Tuesday, Jan 22.

A Remarkable Funeral.
 That it is sometimes exceedingly inconvenient to be cocorulent is evidenced by the following dispatch to the World-Herald from Plattsmouth under date of the 15th: Mart Gibson, the biggest man in Cass county, who died last week of paralysis, was buried Sunday. In many respects his was the most remarkable funeral ever seen here.

Gibson tipped the scales at 360 pounds. There was not an undertaker in the city who had any two coffins which would have accommodated the remains, but the problem was finally solved in an unexpected manner.

When the remains of Guy Livingston, who was killed in the Philippines, were brought back it was rumored that it would be necessary to secure an outside casket to envelop the coffin in which the body was shipped. Taking into consideration the fact that Livingston was a more than ordinarily large man, the undertakers ordered one of the biggest outside cases they could find at the Omaha coffin factory. But the case was not used for the Livingston funeral, and when Gibson died it was pulled out.

But it was found to be too large to go into the house. When the time for the funeral came the body was worked carefully through a window on a stretcher and placed in the coffin outside. The hearse was stripped of its interior fittings and ten men placed the coffin inside, and then, not being able to close the doors upon it, stout straps were used to secure the burden in its place.

Gibson was one of the best known figures about the streets of Plattsmouth. He had lived there for fifteen years, and from time immemorial was head freeman of the boilers at the shops.

Railway Farm Lands For Sale.
 In northern Wisconsin the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway has for sale, at low rates and easy terms of payment, about 400,000 acres of choice farm lands. Early buyers will secure the advantage of locations on the many beautiful streams and lakes, which abound with fish and furnish a never ending and most excellent water supply, both for family use and for stock.

Land is generally well timbered, the soil fertile and easy of cultivation. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Superior, Ashland and numerous other thriving cities and towns on the line of the O., St. P., M. & O. railway and other railroads in the same territory furnish good markets for farm produce.

The Eternal City.
 In a recent lecture on Rome Mr. Frederic Harrison said that the great value of the city of Rome, from the point of view of general culture and education, was that it had by far the longest and most complete history of any city in the world. It had three great qualities as the center of human culture and the development of human civilization. It was the center of the ancient world for many centuries, it became the center of the early Christian world and for 1,000 years it had been the center of religious pilgrimages, while for four or five centuries it had been the center of poetry and art of the modern world. These three great epochs together made up something like 3,000 years, and no city in the world had had so continuous a life. Hardly a century passed without leaving its memorial in Rome.—London Globe.

COOKING IN STONWARE.
A Demonstration of the Merits of Kitchen Pottery.
 A "bachelor housekeeper" who is endeavoring to bring about the renaissance of kitchen pottery presents his claims after the following convincing fashion in Table Talk:
 A kitchen in which pottery appears in plenitude for the various kinds of its capable service wafts an odor of purity and fascinates with a sense of cleanliness. In numerous kinds of cooking it has no equal, and in some there are dishes one might better abandon than attempt to prepare and serve without its aid. Many who are using iron, tin and copper to the exclusion of earthenware do so in ignorance of the perfect adaptability and service of the stone pot.

For the simple forms of boiling, broiling and frying the metals are more convenient, but for baking, pot roasting, braising, stewing and fricasseeing it is far superior to all its rivals. Cooking in the stone pot simplifies the preparation of all the dishes that come under those heads, relieves the cook from close attention and constant stirring to defeat the imperfect action of applied heat and performs its work with unflinching accuracy and without accident. It gives its best and almost exclusive service in the baking oven and under close cover. Few avail themselves of its reliable and easy use, and being, as I declare myself, an experimenting and progressive housekeeper, I wish to recommend it to others who are anxious to learn and know for themselves of its unequalled merits. Any cook will with one demonstration understand perfectly its superior action under the influence of heat, and for such the details of preparation will be necessary in but one case. I shall therefore confine myself to a single recipe and formula.

Procure a large earthen pot with a closely fitting cover of the same material. This may be found in almost any house furnishing store. Make the first attempt with the ordinary and familiar fricasse of disjointed chicken. After preparing, sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper and dredge with a little flour. Lay the pieces singly in the pot, which has been rubbed with a little butter or melted soap. Pour in a pint or more of hot water, just enough to appear toward the surface of the chicken. Dredge the top again with flour, put on the cover and set in the oven. The oven should be very hot for the first 15 minutes, after which the heat should be reduced to the lowest degree that will keep the pot gently simmering.

At the outset it may be necessary to examine the pot occasionally to ascertain oneself with the action of the cover's heat, but when this is once ascertained the pot may be left undisturbed from the beginning till the dish is about done. Young chickens will require only two hours; older ones, three to four, more water and the slowest possible heat to bring them out tender.

The chicken will be cooked to a point that the meat will easily come from the bone and yet may be served in as perfect form as when laid in the pot. It will have all the richness of a roast without the dryness that quite forbids the open oven baking of a chicken. It will have all the juiciness of the fricasse without any of the wateriness which one wishes to avoid.
