FRIDAY FACTS.
Mrs. J. W. Edwards is one of the late victims of the grip.
Mrs. P. T. Birchard and Ralph are among the latest grip patients.
Mrs. Geo. Dudley, sr., is seriously ill at her home on South Fifth street.
Edwin Lee and wife are removing from the rooms over the Durland Sisters' store to a residence in Edgewater park.
The officers of Norfolk hospital for insane give a reception this evening to the public, to which the people generally are invited. Dancing will be the order of the evening, which will be done in the amusement hall at the institution.

The Johnson Dry Goods company is rearranging the shelving in the carpet department, so as to give more room for goods.

Rev. D. M. McIntosh of Hartington will preach in the Presbyterian church, held in G. A. R. hall, next Sunday morning and evening.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Joseph Edward I. Pluhack of this city to Miss Edith Adella Masteller. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's brother in Lincoln on March 20th.

It was a great day yesterday for insurance agents in this city, one man who counted them claiming that there were as high as 19 here at one time. This included Frank Tynn of Omaha, the acknowledged tallest traveling man in the state.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Siedschlage, living on South Fourth street, died Wednesday afternoon. The funeral will be from Christ Lutheran church tomorrow morning, when the little girl would have been one year old had she lived.

It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Weller were called to Omaha last week by a telegram announcing the serious illness of Mrs. Weller's only brother, Mr. Wilhelm. Word was received last evening that the young man died on Wednesday.

A large force of workmen is taking advantage of the pleasant days, and the second story of the new Bishop building is beginning to assume definite shape. Mr. Bishop's decision to continue the building on up two stories will not only add to the value of his property but make a decided improvement in the appearance of the corner of Fourth and Main streets.

The trustees of the Baptist church have received notice that they must remove their church building from the lot on which it now stands, which is part of the property recently sold to the government for a federal building, and in compliance with the notice will shortly remove the church to the corner of Fifth street and Phillip avenue, on the lot with the parsonage.

Joseph Barcal died at his home on South First street last evening at 5 o'clock. He has been sick for sometime with pneumonia and yesterday morning he got up, dressed and went out of doors for the purpose of sawing wood. He was induced to go back to bed, but the exposure aggravated his disease and brought it to a speedy termination last evening. The funeral will be from the house tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, and interment will be in Prospect Hill cemetery. He leaves a wife and several step-children. Mrs. Barcal is better known as "Fannie," who has done washing and housework for people living on the west side for many years.

E. J. Denny, lineman for the telephone company, came near quitting his job yesterday without notice to the company. He was at Madison adjusting a wire at the top of a 25-foot pole, when his spur slipped and he fell to the ground. In the descent he turned a complete somersault and lighted on his shoulders and back. G. T. Sprecher, who saw him fall, ran to where he lay with the expectation of finding him either dead or badly bruised, but strange to say not a bone was broken and he scarcely received a scratch from the fall. In five minutes he was at the top of the pole again, and this morning he is at work as usual, none the worse for the experience.

The rooms of J. A. Geist were entered last night and a suit of clothes and some money taken. Mr. Geist is a marble cutter in F. B. Alderman's factory and he has rooms on the second floor of what is known as the old Norfolk National bank building. Some time during last night his rooms were entered and a suit of clothes worth $30 was taken, together with $4.50 which were in the pants pocket. A medallion of a little girl, a niece of Mr. Geist, which was pinned to the coat, was carefully removed and left attached to another coat, by which act the burglar showed that he has at least a small streak of humanity in his makeup. Mr. Geist has no clue to the robber, but he has suspicions of who it may be.

There are two sides to the question of buying goods away from home. One is where the purchaser sends his good money out of town with the idea that he is getting things cheaper than he could at home. He does not actually get them cheaper, but he thinks he does, because he does not take everything into consideration. Then there is the side of the foreign dealer who sells them. It has been repeatedly stated that he cares nothing about the community from which his money comes, and that statement has been emphatically verified recently in Norfolk. A certain brewing company proposed to build additional vault room here, but instead of purchasing the material from local dealers and hiring Norfolk carpenters to do the work, the material was all shipped in and with it came men living in another town to put it together. Of course this brewing firm is glad to have Norfolk trade, but when it came to throwing a little money into the pockets of Norfolk dealers and carpenters, that was another thing. The immortal James G. Blaine's principle of reciprocity ever remains a pretty good principle.
