During the tour of the manufacturers and jobbers through the South Platte country, Frank L. Campbell, formerly of this city, was presented with a written. bunch of lilacs by a young lady at Dwight. He put it up at auction for the benefit of the auditorium and it brought $27. It was again put up and brought $8.50 and the next time it sold for $4. The young lady who presented the flowers will undoubtedly be surprised to learn that they were worth $34.50 to the auditorium fund.

The sympathy of the people of the entire country is with President McKinley in his hour of trial, and all will hope that Mrs. McKinley will be spared to him for many years. Her distressing illness is all the more deplorable in that it comes during a tour of the country that has been so pleasurable to the people of the country as well as members of the presidential party, and one that promised so much to all concerned. The trip has undoubtedly proven fatiguing to Mrs. McKinley, who has been an invalid for years and she has undertaken more than her condition permitted her to endure. It was Aguinaldo's policy to conduct guerilla warfare and endeaver to divide sentiment here. It was constantly hoped that a party would come into power which would give him and his followers the full control of the islands with theremany tribes, speaking different languages. Looking at the situation now, without political bias, it must be acknowledged that it was not an unreasonable policy as the chief issue between the two great parties were upon this same question. The news of Mr. McKinley's re-election, followed after a time by the announcement that congress had voted to place in his hands full water is, in my opinion, unjust, unfair power and means to carry out his plans and one-sided—giving as it does the advantage to the dishonest, careless conof enforcing order in the Philippines, did not reach the island until Christmas.
