FRIDAY FACTS.

J. W. Ransom purchased W. O. Toller's fine black driving horse, "Maud Kerkwell."

A tri-state tennis tournament will be held in Sioux City August 3 and will continue for several days.

A band of Gypsies with fony rigs and the usual accumulation of dirt, dogs and horses, came into Norfolk this morning.

The score of the ball game between Oakdale and Norfolk played at Oakdale yesterday was 17 to 9 in favor of the team of that town.

The fire that destroyed the Phelan block in Sioux City yesterday burned about $500 worth of paraphernalia belonging to the Elks of that city.

Albert Swanson was overcome by the heat while working in the harvest field for Charlie Nyde three miles northeast of Winside yesterday. He died a short time afterward.

The hot water heating plant for the Bishop block has been received and unloaded and will soon be placed in position. There was about a carload of furnace, radiators, pipes and equipments. Columbus Journal: Hugh Compton took the run of the Norfolk passenger train Friday last. He says the corn looks well along the route, and if rain comes in a few days there will yet be a fair crop.

The application of B. Stevenson, Walter Kay Howell, Reef St. Bordver, R. I. Layton, C. Rustemeyer, I. B. Jeffries and Alex Rogers for the establishment of the Farmers National bank at Pilger has been approved by Comptroller Dawes at Washington.

Some of the bicyclists are discussing the advisability of building a bicycle path between the city and Taft's grove. Other cities have such paths leading in many directions and it is considered that the bicycle riders would experience much pleasure and convenience in having one or two leading out from Norfolk.

No results have been obtained from the search for the hogs stolen from the pens of Dennis McNeil and the thieves have not been located although the officers have put in much time in examining various clues. Neither has any trace been found of C. E. Hartford's wheel or the person who was guilty of appropriating it.

The Omaha Bee editorially says of a former matron of the Norfolk hospital for the insane: "Nebraska's most conspicuous exhibit at the Pan-American is Mrs. Bowser, who stands over six feet in her socks, is tough as a pine knot and weighs 300 pounds. She is making more money than the president of a railroad selling beans and biscuit in her Nebraska sod house."

The boy who was robbed of his $10 bill by a traveling companion recently at some point east of Norfolk has probably recovered his money before this time. Officer Kane went to Wisner and the fellow held on Chief Conley's order dug up the amount. The Norfolk officers contributed their time to the recovery of the money and were out some money beside. The money was turned over to Superintendent Reynolds to be delivered.

Norfolk enjoyed the comforts of a cooling breeze last evening, even though there was no rain here. It is probable that the showers in the territory tributary to the city were responsible, but whatever the cause the relief was most welcome. The breeze came up from the north shortly before supper-time and at bed-time the temperature was about right for sleeping purposes and the advantage was improved to the utmost by those who had the time.

Frank Thum of Coleridge has purchased the candy kitchen of E. N. Vail and arrived in the city yesterday to assume personal control although he has been in possession since Wednesday. Mr. Thum at present owns a similar business in Coleridge but hopes to dispose of it soon. He has therefore had experience and will undoubtedly give good service. He will for the present run the business on the same line as when conducted by Mr. Vail. The former proprietor expects to leave for the north as soon as he can settle up some of his business affairs.

F. H. Livingstone, who has been summing this season at his home in this city, left this morning for Chicago, where he goes to engage the remaining members of his theatrical company. During his stay here Mr. Livingstone completed his new comedy, "Which is Who," and this will be produced for the first time by the new company, which opens in Nebraska City on September 2. The company will appear in Norfolk on November 19 and Mr. Livingstone promises to present the funniest show ever seen here. Norfolk will be favored with exactly the same production and the same company which will be seen in the larger cities throughout the east.

STOLEN TEAM RECOVERED.

Rig Taken from R. McKibben Saturday Night Found at Plainview.

Chief of Police J. H. Conley returned this morning from Plainview where he was successful in securing the team, buggy and harness stolen from Robert McKibben last Saturday night. The thief had disappeared, however, and the officer's trip was not as entirely successful as he desired.

The horses were driven into a grove near Plainview and the thief evidently prepared to stay there over Sunday but was frightened away by some circumstance and left the team tied in the grove. One of the horses got its halter off and strayed to a farmer's house nearby. The farmer took care of it and noticing that it came from the grove and bore harness marks went there to investigate. He found the other horse and the buggy. The horses were in bad condition owing to the fact that they had not been fed or watered for several days. One of them was sick, on account of the neglect, but the farmer fed and doctor[ed] them up. Officer Conley was notified of the facts and when he went up found that they had been placed in the livery barn and after arranging for their being driven home returned this morning. He had no difficulty in identifying the team as the one taken from the McKibben home.

There was a reward of $75 offered for the capture and conviction of the thief and the return of the team, and the officer has unquestionably earned a share of the reward, even though the thief had disappeared. He paid the bills for keep and doctoring charged against the team and was at considerable expense beside.

G. W. Reckard returned yesterday noon from the mining camp near Sheridan, Wyoming. He reports that the Norfolk boys are making fine progress at relieving Mother Earth of some of her gold possessions, but says that the high altitude of the camp was too much for his health. The campers require heavy covering to sleep comfortably and a day or two before he left ice froze to a considerable thickness on still water.

Hot Weather Stories.

Some of the following items contain elements of truth, but all are so much out of the ordinary that the reader's equilibrium would probably be better preserved by reading them with the belief that they are all made out of whole cloth:

Vegetables are merely seasoned—they need no cooking.

Masons have discarded lime and are using melted sand in laying brick.

Those who endeavor to use ice complain that it gets red hot before it melts.

Some of the apples on the trees at the Dr. Verges home have baked and fallen to the ground.

The water in the stand pipe boiled over yesterday and scalded the grass for several rods around.

Housewives may effect a saving of fuel when doing their ironing by placing the irons in the sun.

The solder on the Marquardt roof has melted and the sheets of tin have blown away, necessitating the laying of a new roof.

Bert Eberhart put some eggs in a skillet with grease and set them out in the sun the other day and they actually commenced to cook.

A Norfolk lady made tea for supper the other evening by merely setting the tea pot containing the ingredients out on the sidewalk in the sun.

It is said to be so hot in Kansas that corn is actually popping on the stalks.

In Nebraska roasting ears are ready for the table when picked and husked.

The railroads are not using coal between 11 and 4 o'clock. It has been found that the sun will produce the steam required during those hours.

Housewives are advised to keep eggs in a cool place. Many of them are discovering that the "hen fruit" when not kept in a cool place, shows various degrees of germination.

When the town herd was being driven to pasture one of the cows was roasted to a brown turn and was served to the hungry people who congregated quickly when they learned of the accident.

Herman Gerecke is doing without fire to burn his brick. He merely directs a current of sun heated air through the kilns. He saves fuel, but brick will be no cheaper as other brick yard property is being burned as well as the brick.

The celluloid cuffs and collar of the clerk at one of the hotels caught fire yesterday about 1 o'clock. He crawled under the faucet of the ice water tank, turned the water on and was badly scalded. He is of the opinion that the cure is worse than the disease.

It is now asserted that what people thought was a sprinkle the other day was actually a cloudburst but most of the precipitation was converted into steam before it reached the earth and that which did fall sizzled and disappeared immediately on landing.

Water Commissioner Stitt is troubled by sparrows to some extent. In removing the nests of the birds the other day the eggs were saved and placed in a closet. Since then a not altogether agreeable odor was detected in the closet. Investigation showed that two of the eggs had hatched, one bird was alive and the other dead. The latter was responsible for the odor.

The following job lot of warm weather tales are taken from the Wayne Republican: "There are a good many pretty hot stories afloat since the coming into existence of the present heated term. Omaha has its story of a handler of eggs in that city finding a half dozen of freshly hatched chicks in a case of eggs. Sioux City tells of the cooking of 'bull heads' in the waters of the big muddy. Up at Hartington Auctioneer Baird's voice got so hot while crying a sale that it scorched the mustache off his lip. Down at Fremont it is said the nails in Ross Hammond's shoe soles got so hot they burned blisters on his feet and caused him to get a regular 'Sheeny' gait on him. Here in Wayne green apples were baked in the show windows of the grocery stores and spring chickens fried to a beautiful crisp in the meat markets and the hair springs in watches expanded until many cases were completely ruined."
