M. A. Miller, watchmaker for C. S. Hayes, has been employing his spare time very profitably in manufacturing solid gold band rings, from the old gold received at that store. He melts the metal and runs it into a groove of about the proper shape, then hammers and forms the ring by hand, making an article equal if not superior to manufactured goods. He is at least certain that the material used is the pure gold and solid.

Dr. A. J. Johnson was one of the audience at yesterday's memorial services who has attended three of like character but he says none were more expressive or sincere. He attended the Lincoln memorial service at West Jersey, Ill., and through all these years has remembered the text, which was, "In Israel a great man has fallen today." He also attended memorial services following President Garfield's death. Lincoln was greatly loved by his friends but he had many enemies, Garfield's memorial was as good neighbors mourn the death of another, owing to his long illness, but at yesterday's memorial the entire heart and soul of the people appeared to be in the services, and their grief was sincere.

The theatrical season opens at the Auditorium with "Human Hearts," tonight the company presenting it having arrived in the city today. Manager Spear would appreciate a good audience and is of the opinion that the attraction is fully worthy of the hearty patronage of theatre-going people. He today received a personal letter from H. S. Livingstone, of the "Which is Who" company which says of "Human Hearts": "I saw the performance here (York) and it was great. They put up about the best on the road this season and you ought to pack your house with them. You can't say too much about the show for it will make good anywhere." Speaking of themselves, Mr. Livingstone says they are doing great business for the territory and promises a welcome surprise to Norfolk people in November.

MASONS HOLD MEMORIAL.

Lodge of Sorrow by Mosaic Lodge Last Evening.

VERY IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

Resolutions Concerning the Death of President McKinley, Who Was a Mason—Many Visitors Present from Neighboring Lodges.

Mosaic lodge, No. 55, A. F. & A. M., paid its respects to President McKinley at a special lodge of sorrow held last evening. The ceremony provided for occasions of this kind is a particularly impressive one under ordinary occasions, but the death of William McKinley, who was a Mason, inspired the members to their best efforts. As stated yesterday, the lodge room had been tastefully draped for the occasion, national colors, black and white intermingling in a harmonious whole. In the center of the lodge room, standing due east and west, had been erected a catafalque, wound in black. Upon this stood a flag draped casket, representing that which contained the last mortal remains of the departed brother. The catafalque was guarded by four Master Masons, one each representing Norfolk, Wayne, Battle Creek and Pierce lodges.

The lodge of sorrow opened under the usual form, with G. T. Sprecher, W. M., presiding, with a large number of local members and members from surrounding lodges present. After an invocation by the chaplain, Rev. S. F. Sharpless, there was responsive reading, followed by singing "Nearer, My God to Thee." The lights were then dimmed and a funeral procession formed, consisting of the officers of the lodge, and to the singing of the funeral dirge of the order the procession marched three times around the catafalque, the first time the junior warden depositing white carnations upon the bier, at the next time the senior warden depositing a wreath of white flowers, and again the worshipful master an evergreen wreath, emblematical of everlasting life. After an invocation by the chaplain, the lights were turned on, and the ceremonial part of the lodge of sorrow was over.

The committee on resolutions, consisting of Brothers O'Connor, Hayes and Gaylord, reported the following, which were unanimously adopted by a rising vote of all members present:

A dark cloud hangs like a pall over our fair land. Our country mourns her flags, the symbol of her unity, strength and purity, are at half mast. The nation's president, her chief magistrate, and our brother has fallen. Foul murder has done its worst. A great, but unfinished column has been broken. A noble and distinguished life has been brought to a premature close, and our common country is enshrouded in gloom and sorrow.

On the 6th day of September, 1901, in the Temple of Music, at the Pan-American exposition, Buffalo, New York, while holding a public reception, our illustrious brother, William McKinley, president of the United States, was shot by the cruel hand of an assassin, and from the effects of the wounds thus inflicted, on the morning of September 14, expired.

The news of his foul murder, while extending the sympathetic hand of good will and benignity to the cowardly assassin; the tr-achery of the latter, who with false smile and a heart pulsating with black ingratitude, pretended to greet his great benefactor, but instead pressed a pistol to his body and fired, the shattering of buoyant hopes of the president's speedy recovery by news of relapse and sudden death; the shock given to the cherished confidence of the people of our great republic that the personal safety of the chief magistrate may securely repose in the care and keeping of its citizens, all conspire to fill our hearts and homes with the most poignant grief and unhappiness and make the tragedy the more awful and pathetic.

Our lodge, in common with all lodges of our fraternity throughout the nation, most painfully deplores the untimely cutting off, in the flower of his manhood, of our brother, the president of the United States, and in the most emphatic manner denounces and condemns, not only the act of the assassin, but the acts of those, who by voice, pen, or other incentive were abettors to this terrible crime, and it further prays that the liberty-loving spirit of our great country may arouse and avenge its slain hero by exterminating root and branch, both the principals and those giving expression to the principles of that horrible infatuation, anarchy.

It further deplores and condemns the tendency on the part of speakers and journalists to caricature by voice or pen, public servants whose official acts are not the acts of mere individuals, or of party, but of a sovereign people, by whose suffrage and will, such public servants hold positions. So long as vindictive, vituperation and outrageous caricaturing of public officials, because they are public officials, are countenanced and tolerated, so long will the vilest passions dominate the will and actions of men not in sympathy with order or free government, and so long will such individuals continue to disrespect the nation's officials, disregard her laws, abuse her privileges and threaten the foundation of her institutions. Therefore be it

Resolved: That in the tragic death of William McKinley, president of the United States, our fraternity has sustained the loss of a brother, pure in motive, noble in character, tender in sympathy and affection, and exalted in the principles of friendship, morality and brotherly love; one whose life, as a soldier, statesman, citizen and christian is worthy the highest honor and emulation; one whose memory we love to cherish, because his large heartedness, warm impulses and affectionate nature, manifested by the tenderest offices rendered in the cause of humanity, not only at his own fireside and within the confines of our own country, but throughout the civilized world.

That while we mourn the loss of our beloved brother, we humbly commend his spirit to the Grand Master of the Universe, who gave it, to dwell with Him in that mansion beyond the skies, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

That we extend to his brave, devoted and grief-stricken widow our tenderest sympathy and good will in this hour of her great sorrow. We cannot aid, we cannot assist her, but our prayers ascend to the Eternal Father to console and sustain her in her bereavement, and to strengthen her reliance of the promises of eternal life and companionship with the beloved who are at peace in glory.

That we extend to President Theodore Roosevelt our best wishes for a safe, successful and prosperous administration of the affairs of the republic. He has our assurance of sympathy in the administration of his great office, our loyalty to government and devotion to the principles upon whose foundation that government reposes.

That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this lodge and that copies be sent to Mrs. William McKinley, President Theodore Roosevelt, and also to the press for publication.

The following brothers made short addresses eulogistic of the life and work of William McKinley: D. C. O'Connor, D. J. Koenigstein, M. D. Tyler, A. A. Welch of Wayne, Judge J. B. Barnes and S. W. Hayes. Chris Schavland of Madison had been invited to be present, but being unable to come he sent a touching tribute to the dead president in verse, which was read by the secretary.

The lodge was then closed in due form.

Among the out of town Masons present were A. A. Welch, W. D. Hammond, R. Warnock, Guy R. Wilbur, J. M. Cherry, G. M. Fartru, G. E. French, J. J. Williams, J. G. Mines of Wayne; J. S. Brasher, J. L. Knesel, F. E. Martin, W. Day, J. R. Martin, F. H. L. Willis, W. P. Reavis, Jos. Seneca, F. L. White, J. L. Okeer, Wm. Young, Battle Creek; Chas. Gates, J. M. Archer, T. A. Reed, C. C. Wilson, Pierce; W. A. McMonagle, L. Hersheiser, Long Pine.

A Pretty Family Reunion.

On the 14th day of September, 1847, in the state of Ohio, James Thomas, then 23 years of age, and Caroline Creighton, aged 19, were united in holy wedlock, having thus walked side by side as husband and wife for 54 years last Saturday. To them were born 10 children, six of whom still live, viz: E. A. Thomas of Abingdon, Ill., J. C. Thomas of Cuba, Ill., H. B. Thomas of this city, Anna D. Beeler of North Platte, Neb., John W. Thomas of Orleans, Neb., and Mary Gould of North Platte, Neb., who unitedly are blessed with 27 children, some of the older ones having now five children, thus giving to Father and Mother Thomas six children, 27 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren, they themselves being 76 and 72 years of age respectively, and yet hale and hearty.

The aged couple recently purchased of J. W. Doyce, near Norfolk, a 20-acre tract of land, upon which they now reside and where they hope to spend the remainder of their lives, tenderly looked after by their son, H. B. Thomas and wife.

With love, such as can burn only in the hearts of father and mother, they invited their children and children's children to meet with them once more, to which invitation five children and eight grandchildren responded, the only absent child being J. C. Thomas of Cuba, Ill. To say that the meeting of parents and children on the 14th day of September, 1901, at the home near Norfolk, was joyful but feebly expresses it. Around the festive board, spread with an abundance of the good things of life, sat father, mother and children, recalling reminiscences of years ago.

Tuesday morning all from abroad departed to their several homes feeling that it had been good to be once more with father and mother, to cheer them on the remaining journey of life.

May God spare their lives yet many years to bless their sons and daughters and their fellowmen.
