CARNAGE AT A CAMP-MESTING.

Casualties Are Mostly Among Negroes. Nine Blacks Are Killed and Dozen or and Neglect in the Swamps.

The fierce conflict raged for half an hour. Those at a distance say the firing sounded like a pitched battle between troops. To the camp meeting negroes had come from 200 miles, all up and down the valley.

A constable who was serving a warrant was struck on the head with a rifle by a negro and then the slaughter began.

The blacks fled from the frail wooden church, for it was no shelter from the rain of bullets. Preacher Connolly was shot while standing in his yard. His daughter fell just inside the house. The other negroes around Crear Lott's place kept up a steady rain of bullets. It was death and blood and the shricks of the wounded and dying were heard on every side. Lott's old mother-in-law, his two daughters and the little boy fell in a heap inside the shelter. Lott was barricaded and the place was fired. The fire forced him from cover, and he appeared in the doorway and 20 rifle balls went crashing through him. He fell in a heap, head foremost on the ground. Parker and Beverly, both blacks, fell with him. Joseph Seal, Charles Elliott and Edward Thompson, the wounded whites, were carried to the home of F. P. Sones. There Seal died yesterday. Elliott now lies dying. For 24 hours it looked like a general uprising to wipe out the black race of Washing on parish. The news spread like wildfire and yesterday over 1,000 armed men had reached the scene of battle.

Sheriff Simmons arrived from Frank-In yesterday and the feeling subsided. The negroes left the country. They carried all the personal effects possible. All who could rode on horse, back and in buggies and those who could not ride took to the woods afoot.

These were his words as the guards hurried him into the chair.

A moment later, mun ling through the half-adjusted face straps, he said: "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

From the time Czolgosz left his cell until the full penalty was paid less than four minutes had elapsed.

The lengthy report prepared yesterday afternoon by the autopsy surgeons related entirely to the brain and was of a highly technical character. After scientifically describing to the minutest detail the brain of the dead murderer, the report concludes as follows: "No anomolies found. The brain in general is well developed, sufficiently marked with fissures and the lobes are in normal proportion."

Washington, Oct. 30 .- The cross-examination of Admiral Schley was continued throughout the session of the court of inquiry yesterday. The progress made was exceedingly slow. Practically the whole day was consumed in questioning the admiral about the cruise from Cienfuegos to Santiago and the motives and influences that governed him in turning back after his squadron had arrived in the vicinity of the latter port. This latter branch of the cross-examination had not been concluded when the court adjourned.
