Opposition to Savage. When the movement against Governor Sa vage was started, it came as a -it was the public's disapproval of the methods employed by the man occupying the governor's chair. At that time it was not known what position would the state, or whether they would side one way or the other-nor, may it be truthfully said, was it cared. The people had been outraged and disgraced by the man they had unfortunately elected to be lieutenant governor and who in course of events had been advanced to be chief executive. While the people were indignant and not afraid to express that indignation, they did not exwhich would permit of the pardoning of Bartley, but they are not unmindful The mob drove the Japanese out of by these same railroads, and if the story published in the Sioux City Tribune from its Lincoln correspondent is true, then substantial help is to come from the Elkhorn and Union Pacific in the effort to clear the state of corrupt of-

Following is the story of the Lincoln correspondent, and it is given for what it is worth:

"The biggest factional fight in Nebraska's political history will be pulled off during the next four months. The Union Pacific and Elkhorn crowd of republican politicians have joined forces for the avowed purpose of putting the Burlington machine out of business.

"The Burlington has been the biggest factor in republican politics for years. It was never friendly towards the fusionists, as was the Elkhorn, but it fought consistently and for the republicans alone. When the state registered a verdict for the republicans the Burlington folks moved up and grabbed hold of the throttle. They have been running things ever since the first day of January, 1901. They were sidetracked in the senatorial race by the Elkhorn's pull upon just enough members to prevent the Burlington candidate from winning. Last fall the Elkhorn came down to the state convention with its whole contigent for Barnes of Norfolk for supreme judge. This was but a blind, and the deal was to make Sedgwick judge and have Barnes succeed him as commissioner. The Burlington stood for Davidson, but kept in the dark as to the Elkhorn's plans until too late to beat them-too many of their men had stood by Sedgwick to make it safe for them to attempt to dump him.

Since that fall the Burlington machine has been strengthened and tightened, and the outlook for the opposition to whack it to advantage was not good until the fatal mistake of Governor Savage in pardoning Joe Bartley. This is what the opposition had been working for. It is no secret that the Burlington managers were the men who converted Savage to the belief that his salvation lay in pardoning the defaulting state treasurer. He did so serene in the belief that it insured his renomination.

"The outburst of indignation amazed him, but it delighted the anti-Burlington fellows. They are now uniting with the anti-Bartley pardon republicans wherever it is possible-which is in nearly every county, and they say that the Burlington will either have to withdraw Savage or go down with him. Lancaster and Douglas counties have been claimed by the governor as certain to indorse his position on the pardon question, but that is not so sure. Here in Lancaster the morning republican paper has indulged in no comment on its part upon the pardon, but it has been diligently printing all of the anti-Bartley, anti-Savage comments of the republican press. Except among the politicians resentment here is as deep as out in the state, and it will be impossible to prevent someone presenting resolutions to the next county convention condemning the pardon and asking that the delegation be instructed to vote against the renominstion of Savage. This may be side tracked by instructing for a local man for state treasurer, but it will be a risky undertaking.

"The Elkhorn makes no attempt to disguise its purpose. The men in charge of its politics, B. White, R. B. Schneider and N. D. Jackson say they are going to whip the Burlington out of its boots, smash its machine and compel it to retire from politics. The reason they assign is that the Burlington has made it impossible for the big men of the state to secure official position, that it picks out for governor and senators, men who are of mediocre ability, men who are willing to do as they are told and ask no questions. This they propose to The Norfolk News change. They insist that they desire only the purification of the party and that once accomplished they will resign the reins of power themselves and step down. The Burlington fellows laugh at this, and say it is simply a fight to replace one machine with another of different brand.

"A weekly paper that may change later to a daily has been established for the purpose of carrying the war into the Burlington territory, and a well known Elkhorn political writer, Frank A. Harrison, put in charge.

"Lancaster county is the keystone of the Burlington arch. Without this county it would not cut much of a figure in state conventions. Here is the nucleous of any combination, and it has always worked heretofore. If the county spontaneous uprising of the people is wrested from the Burlington its jig is dent, in the homely phrase, "Ted has against an officer who would use a pub- up, and the Bartley pardon is the only lie position to accomplish personal ends thing that will work this wonder, if Savage is still in the race at convention

"The opinion here is that Savage will not last many more weeks, and that the be taken by the railroad politicians of railroads will have to drop him before convention time."

JAPANESE ARE DRIVEN OUT.

President's Son Past Critical Period of His Illness.

CASE TAKES NORMAL COURSE.

Chief Executive Returns to Washington, Confident His Son Is Certain to Recover-Physicians Confirm the Good News-Patient Rests Well.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 14.-The most eventful day at the Groton school since Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., became ill closed with the departure of Presi dent Roosevelt for Washington late last evening. Before that the presi improved with such rapid jumps that I am sure he is out of the woods," had told to the world of the load lifted from his mind. The day was full of happiness for the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and for all at the infirmary or near the school grounds. The first report from the bedside of young Roosevelt showed that he had passed a good night. After the morning examination by the doctors it was announced that the boy's condition was progressing favorably. The report said that the lungs were clearing well, although the patient was still in the second stage of pleuro-pneumonia.

Later in the day Dr. Warren stated that the patient's temperature, respiration and pulse were normal, a decided contrast to his condition during the past few days. The boy rested well all day, although his pulse was accelerated for a short period in the afternoon, because of the departure of his father. After visiting his son decided to send an ultimatum to the the president spent most of his time at the Gardner mansion transacting official business.

Before lunch he called on the other patients, the Gammell and Potter boys, and cheered them up with his kindly greetings. Then he proceeded to the Powell cottage and held a brief interview with the newspaper men who had made that place their headquarters. The president feelingly thanked them for a gift of flowers to Mrs. Roosevelt and for their courtesy to him and his family during the trying days that have so happily ended. The remainder of his stay was with Mrs. Roosevelt and his son. At 4:15 p. m. the president, accompanied by Mr. Cortelyou, Mr. Barnes, the execuand two secret service officers, left in a carriage for the station. A special train was in readiness there to take the party to Worcester. Many persons had gathered at the station and in response to their cheers the president doffed his hat. He also bade farewell to the newspaper men grouped at the platform. At 4:30 the

Mrs. Roosevelt kept in doors nearly what during the next few days by Miss Alice Roosevelt, who, the presi dent had said, would leave Washington today for Groton. He also said Theodore, Jr., to the white house within ten days, adding that the boy would return to Groton to complete his course as soon as his health would

Last evening Professor Jackson of the faculty called at the Powell cottage and assured the newspaper men that the patient was holding his own, confirming earlier reports by saying that his pulse, respiration and temperature were normal.
