Memorial Day.

Tomorrow, the 30th day of May, is the day set spart by legislation in all the states and territories of the union except Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia as a or whatever its name will be. It also is legal holiday to be devoted to honoring the memory of the soldier boys who gave up their lives during the civil conflict forty years ago that the union might be preserved, and in honor of those etc., that it will be the seat of the who fought and have since died. The intention of the day is that the memory of these brave defenders may be kept bright, that their graves may be decorated with the sweet flowers of the spring time and that present and coming generations may be taught to honor and respect the men who sacrificed so much at their country's call, teaching patriotism, and love of country and its institutions.

The guard is growing old, and their numbers are decreasing with each succeeding Memorial Day. Their aging limbs give but slight indication of the vigor that upheld them and the spirit that inspired them as they fought for their country's flag two score years ago. They are but the faint shadow of that mighty army which so successfully met the enemy and preserved the country from dissolution. Their few teaching lessons of patriotism with the where they will spend the summer. intent that if present and future generations are ever called upon to strike for their native land they may be inspired with the example that had been set by their fathers.

Many of the boys of '61-'65 have followed their comrades to the long home during the past year and the graves to be honored have increased, while the number to inspire that honor have saffered a decrease. Among those who have joined the silent throng is President McKinley, who entered the war as a private and advanced to the office of major. Representative Washington, Discussing the differences between Washington and other American cities in an article on "The Capital of Our Democracy" in The Century, Henry Loomis Nelson says:

"If Washington is not like the typical American city, how, then, can it be the city of America, the one city above all others in the land where the stranger can most satisfactorily study national traits? If its people are not Dr. R. A. Mittlestadt, dentist, Bishop bubbling over with boiling energy; if it is not shaken with the national fever and ague, one day burning with the For SALE-2 tracts of 10 acres each in heat of a 'boom' and another day shaking with the chill of a panic; if most of its men are not struggling for money all day and rushing home to slippers and rest at evening; if the wives and daughters of many of the more successful of these hunters for wealth are not vain seekers after social dis tinction; if the idle American nobility is not dominating in its society, as it is in our other American cities, why is life in Washington characteristically American? Because it is all America on an even footing and all America in repose, with time to be idle. It is America not engaged in making its living or its fortune."

BURT MAPES, Chairman. JACOB KOENIGSTEIN, Secretary

If the Omaha republicans are becomming split up over the candidacy of throw general conclusions up strong Congressman Mercer for re-election they apparently have no advantage over the South Omaha democrats, who have a merry war on in their Jacksonian club. Their differences have got to the point where there are threats of organizing a rival Jacksonian club. One of realize just what he was saying until it the seceders claims that the endeavor was made to influence him into voting for a republican which is certainly a most deplorable thing for a majority of a Jacksonian club to do.

The Denver Republican affectionately speaks of the efforts of Senator Patterson of that state in opposition to the goverument's Philippine policy as "dirigible rhetoric" because he spoke of an officer who "sat all night until early morning in the shade of a tree and watched" a certain administration of and speech runs largely in the same be differently constructed than those in own primitive impulses that defy all the balance of the world in order to cast a shade at night, or that the senator has sprung a joke that requires explaining. One who is capable of bringing such information from the distant islands is probably competent to criticize.

With the nearer approach of the republican state convention the prospects court. After it had been paid a grave for the nomination of W. M. Robertson for governor continue to brighten. It is probable that no candidate who has been announced has met with a more kindly reception from all parts of the state than has Mr. Robertson. His answered the judge. HARD TO GET STARTED.

Things Which Overcome a Writer When Beginning an Article,

There is a feeling of timidity that oftentimes overcomes a writer when beginning an article. As in writing a letter, it is getting started that puzzles. It is the custom to begin with slow moving piston and work gradually into full speed until the flow of words is free, and then the difficulty with some of us is to find the brake valve. Again, a writer sometimes discovers that his beginning is a more fitting ending, and vice versa. The newspaper style is to under the headlines, while the sermonizer reserves them until his final climax.

Thackeray remarked once that he could never tell exactly what he was going to say until his pen was in hand and under motion and then did not fully was written. There is a subconsciousness that shapes writing as it does speaking. This, I know, disturbs some well known theories of speaking and writing-as to weighing everything and then measuring it out as a druggist compounds a prescription-but my observations are that the preparation is more in getting full of a subject and then letting the mind work free under the impulse of the dominating idea. There are as many ways and methods in writing and speaking as there are individuals, and yet the fundamental law in the transmission of thought lican thinks that perhaps the trees in Hottentot or the polished periods of the Philippines or the nights there may the scholar. Human nature has its rules of rhetoric and the power of expression-that is, the power, mind you -is deeper seated than any artificial formula of stylists. - National Magazine.
