This is a good time to tell you about tea. We have a new crop Uncolored Japan Tea, especially good for iced tea. We are selling it at 50c. and we know you can't match it anywhere, but you won't know this if you don't try it. It's hard to understand why you will pay your money for trash when you can get good goods just as cheap.

The Omaha and Chicago papers advertise 9x12 Axminster Rugs—as "bargains"—at $19.95, $22.78, but you can buy the same kind in beautiful patterns for $18 at Johnson's Furniture Store.

FRIDAY FACTS.

The Otto Floto shows will be in Norfolk tomorrow. Remember the meeting at the city hall tonight, to discuss September fair. There will be a special meeting of the Wednesday club tomorrow evening at 7:30 with Mrs. W. H. Johnson. All members of the club are requested to be present.

A few friends enjoyed a picnic supper on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bridge last evening.

Farmers are making a hay market out of Fourth street again. The ordinance in this regard should be enforced.

The "cut your weeds" notice is appearing in many of the papers, and it is pertinent. The seeds are ripening and preparing to distribute themselves over wide areas and will do so if they are not killed at once.

Tennis scores for the week have resulted as follows: Pasewalk and Beels beat Rainbolt and Huse, 6-0, 6-3, 9-7, 8-6, 2-8. At singles Pasewalk beat Rainbolt 6-4; Huse beat Beels 6-4, 6-4, and Pasewalk 6-2, 8-10, 8-6.

The dust actually blew about today, which is an unprecedented condition for some weeks. The heat of the day has caused some people to wish for another of those showers that have come with such monotonous regularity for several weeks.

A very pretty party was given at the house of Mrs. D. Baum in the way of a surprise for Mrs. Morris Mayer, yesterday. Only ladies of the Kaffee Klatsch were present and they remembered Mrs. Mayer with a dozen handsome hand-painted bread and butter plates.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity estimate that if nothing interferes with the crop between now and harvest their oats will go from 50 to 75 bushels to the acre. The heads are from six inches to a foot long and filling nicely. The grain in many fields stands four and five feet high.

The people of Fremont are congratulating themselves over the fact that they are soon to have a new union depot, to be built by the Union Pacific and Elkhorn companies. A site for the depot has been secured at a cost of $21,500. It is expected that work on the structure will begin in a few weeks.

It was impossible to interview every business man in town in regard to the drainage question. In fact many of the most prominent men of the city were not seen, at all. Nearly everyone has opinions in regard to the matter and many would be willing to stand their share of the expense for remedies. E. B. Kauffman is one of these.

The past two nights have been the hottest of the season and while the people endeavoring to sleep found it something of a question to secure comfort, the corn crop undoubtedly got a great move on itself. The maximum temperature yesterday was 89 degrees in the shade and the absence of a breeze last night did not relieve the situation until a late hour.

It is suggested that property owners along Main street decide whether or not they would be willing to do their share of curbing. A petition to the council signed by a majority of them is the only method by which anything could be done. It is said that paving could be done for $1.75 per square yard and that it could be paid for in five or ten years as the property owners saw fit.

A special train came up over the Union Pacific road last night bearing a party of railway officials of that line who were reported to be out on a tour of inspection. With the party were: General Manager E. Dickinson, General Superintendent R. W. Baxter, Chief Engineer A. B. Berry and Assistant Superintendent H. O. Ferris. The party remained in the city during the night, returning to Columbus this morning.

The progressive social given by the Epworth League last evening at the homes of H. L. Snyder, H. A. Drebert and A. G. Witmer was well patronized and the league funds were benefited considerably. At the first place visited the guests were compelled to answer 15 questions in a guessing contest or submit to a fine of five cents. At another home they were served with punch and wafers and at the third cake and sherbet.

Fire did some little damage at the home of Bradley Bowman, on Taylor avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth last evening. A defective chimney was the cause of the flame, which burned out a partition. An alarm was turned in but the ward was mistaken and a run to South Fourth street was made. When the department finally arrived on the scene, the fire had been extinguished by Mrs. Bowman and a few neighbors.

The olfactory nerves of those called to the business portion of the city this morning were greeted by a loud and boisterous smell discounting that familiarly known as the sheep yards perfume about a thousand and one percent. One whiff of it was enough to make a person wish he had not breakfasted and two or three whiffs were enough to cause indisposed persons to part company with their morning meal without either grace or ceremony. It was nerve-racking and horrible and proceeded from some mysterious source not readily located. Connoisseurs state that the odor was a very forcible reminder of the packing house districts of Omaha and other cities, in which event those who sampled it can but pity people living there.

Returns received by rounds from Fitzsimmons-Jefferies fight Friday night at the Trocadero. No charge.

HOUSES NOT NUMBERED.

Inspector Swift Pays Norfolk Another Visit.

CONDITIONS NOT FOLLOWED.

Ready to Recommend the Establishment of Free Delivery When House Numbers are Properly Posted. New Rural Routes in View.

Postoffice Inspector Albert O. Swift called on Norfolk yesterday, the particular object of his visit being to ascertain the condition of Norfolk respecting the establishment of free delivery here. He stated that this is his fourth trip to the city for the same special purpose and expresses an unwillingness to come again until necessary conditions had been complied with. He stated to Postmaster Hays that he had made three definite conditions under which he would recommend that Norfolk should have free delivery on one of his previous visits. They were that the street names should be posted at intersections, that the sidewalks should be repaired and that the houses and business buildings should be numbered. He finds that the first named conditions have been quite generally complied with, but that the last has not. He was told of the efforts that had been made in that direction and it was supposed that the buildings had been numbered, but Mr. Swift was posted, having made a tour of the city earlier in the day, and he gave the information that not only were the residences not numbered, but that a number of the business houses had not the proper figures on their front. The inspector thought that if sufficient interest was not taken here to meet requirements the officials or department could not be blamed for the non-establishment of the system. "The numbering of business houses and residences," said Mr. Swift, "is an absolute requirement by law, and I cannot recommend the establishment of the system until the conditions are met, neither would it do any good if I should, as the department wouldn't consider it under present conditions." Postmaster Hays said that he would undertake to see that the houses are numbered but the inspector insisted that he must see the consummation of the work. This would indicate that as soon as the dwellings and business houses are numbered Norfolk will be recommended for free delivery, and not before.

Postmaster Hays informed The News that he expects a visit from Mr. Llewellyn, superintendent of rural routes, about the first of the month. Three additional rural routes have been laid out and petitioned for leading out of Norfolk, and it is believed that only the inspection and recommendation of the superintendent is needed to effect their establishment.

CIRCUS IN THE WEST END.

Humphrey & Morrison Shows Appear Before Nine Spectators.

A circus—a real, honest, up-to-date circus, with Shetland ponies and monstrous dogs and two-wheeled carts and crimson Turks—was in town yesterday afternoon for one performance, only, and that unannounced by press or circular or poster. It was the mammoth aggregation of Humphrey & Morrison and the tented city flapped in the breeze of Norfolk avenue and Eleventh streets from early in the morning until some irresponsible invader started a rough house at the performance and the center pole came down in the afternoon.

Graham Humphrey and Harold Morrison, two lads of about a dozen years apiece, were sole proprietors of the show. Other boys in the neighborhood had more or less personal interest in the attraction.

Before daylight yesterday the bosses and their men were on the lot to raise the tents. Someone suggested that it might be done the night before, but that would never do. To be like a circus, everything must suddenly appear, like a vision, and then as mysteriously be gone again.

At noon, rain or shine, the grand, glittering street parade covered the city with its animals, bare-back riders and gymnastic artists. A little while later the big tent, 10x14, opened up and the tickets, cut from shoe box pasteboard and rubber stamped, were sold at the barrel for a penny apiece, the hundredth part of a dollar. Nine great, round red coppers were taken in and Marcus Reynolds knew of at least three other boys on the Heights who had intended to come.

And so, before a crowded amphitheatre, the circus began. Harold Morrison and Hermie Tappert were acrobats, and Fritz Bacholz did a stunt on his Shetland. Spencer Butterfield was there with his handsome chestnut and the Mayer brothers acted as general superintendents. The Gow boys had a dog in the menagerie, but it got tired and went home. More things were to come, but some spectators claimed he had been short changed and started a little revenge by pulling down the pole. Then the show stopped. The royal hippodrome races had to be declared off, but confidentially the management admitted that the man in the brown tunic and red cap would have won.

"We are quite well satisfied with our start," said Messrs. Humphrey and Morrison after it was over, "and along in August we will appear here for another exhibition, which will be eminently worthy of patronage by all the kids in town."

And so the tents were taken home, and the stakes were counted and returned and the vicious animals were let loose and a tired lot of boys on the west end began very early last night to dream of the land of perpetual performances, where no one could interfere.
