The fusionists would like nothing better than to be able to turn the strike situation in Nebraska to an advantage in their campaign.

Some of the southern portions of the state are congratulating themselves over having secured a rain. They are welcome to it. What we want up here is warm, bright sunshine.

The census bureau has found that there are 2,531,388 more bachelors in the United States than there are spinsters, and most of them, in proportion, are in the west. This indicates an unpardonable fault of the calendar makers in having leap years so far apart.

Iowa is again confronted by a flood situation. The sister state on the east has many desirable qualities but it has been going to such extremes during several years that some people of this state would not exchange Nebraska for two states like Iowa. Stand up for Nebraska.

It is feared that King Alfonso of Spain is beginning to give evidence of a weak mind. Is it any wonder? The king had a weak constitution to begin on and with the weighty affairs of state thrust upon him when he should be on the play ground or in the gymnasium, is it surprising that he should develop eccentricities? Perhaps the back-number European nations will sometime see to it that inheritance shall not choose their ruler, but that he will be selected by the people, with development, fitness and ability as his qualifications.

The American navy cannot seem to get up a scrap with the navy of any foreign country and has therefore divided itself and will participate in a mimic battle, just for fun and to keep in practice. The attacking fleet will be under command of Commander John E. Pillsbury and the defense of 250 miles of coast line will be by Admiral Francis J. H. Aigginson. Here's hoping that the best side wins. The country can lose nothing either way. If the attacking force can make a successful raid on the coast it is safe to bet that it could make as successful an attack on the coasts of any other country. If the defense against the Pillsbury fleet is good it is safe to wager your last copper that no other fleet would be capable of conducting a successful attack.

In civilized communities it has lately been the endeavor to shut out anything and everything of a graft nature on the occasion of public entertainments. In vivid contrast to this determination is an event planned to take place at Sydney where they are evidently looking for trouble in connection with an approaching street fair and carnival. They advertise that everything will be wide open and bid for the attendance of grafters, who will be protected. As an inducement their ad reads: "The best ever—five big days, and commencing on railroad pay day; 500 men advertised for 150 miles." This probably exceeds anything of the wild and woolly west days, where such things have been permitted but never bid for. In addition to the railroad men there are soldiers and Indians in the neighborhood and if there isn't plenty of excitement—of the kind—it will not be the fault of the promoters.

Deputy Labor Commissioner Watson estimates that there will be a gain of something more than two million pounds in Nebraska's sugar output during the coming campaign and his estimate is believed to be very conservative. Last year the output was 14,912,300 pounds and he estimates that this year with an acreage of 11,193 and ten tons of twelve per cent beets to the acre the product will be 16,739,500. The crop has been putting forth a wonderful growth, especially in this section of the state, and with favorable weather to close the season on and put the sugar into the roots it is probable that the labor commissioner's estimate will be greatly exceeded. This will give to those who have been inclined to sneer at the importance of Nebraska's sugar industry something to think about. It certainly should indicate that the state has a much greater interest in the beet sugar industry than it has in Havemeyer's refining trust. Stand up for Nebraska.
