Perhaps you want to buy a "fine piano," and hold the idea that you can make a more satisfactory selection and buy to better advantage from a large city stock or from the factory where it is made. If so, and you will take a trip to the East, including Niagara Falls, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, getting the prices on the same piano in each city, make your selection and after becoming satisfied that you have been offered the best bargain that can be obtained there, the same prices that they sell to all, you will then present my order and letter of introduction, put your mark of identification on the piano. The same piano will be shipped to me, and on delivery of the same in your home, perfect in every respect, you can pay me for it according to the terms agreed upon at the time of the purchase and I will then hand you a check sufficient to cover the entire expense of the trip, including dining and sleeping cars and two days hotel bills in each of the above cities. If you doubt my ability to do this, give me the opportunity.

FRIDAY FACTS.

A special meeting of Norfolk lodge, No. 653, B. P. O. Elks, will be held tomorrow night in the lodge room of the order.

Superintendent D. C. O'Connor has presented the High school football team with a new regulation football, and the boys of the team are correspondingly happy.

The North Nebraska conference of the Methodist church will be held at Grand Island, beginning September 24. It will be presided over by Bishop Fowler and it is expected that about 160 ministers of the church will be in attendance, besides lay delegates and ministers' wives.

Ed. Grant writes from Pocatello, Idaho, that his loss by the recent fire at that place was $4,700 on building, stock and fixtures. This was partially covered by insurance in the amount of $1,900.

The Congregational church ladies gave a supper in the church parlors last night that netted the society $26. There was a good attendance and the entertainment provided by the ladies was heartily enjoyed.

The class of 1901, Norfolk High school had a sum of money on hand after paying all expenses in connection with the publication of the Milestone and with it they have purchased and presented to the High school a platform chair.

Elmer Fox has resigned his position with the Chicago Lumber company in this city and has accepted one with the Edwards & Bradford Lumber company. He will be manager of that company's yard at Newcastle and left yesterday for that place to assume his new duties.

"Human Hearts" is the next attraction at the Auditorium. It is the second appearance of the production in Norfolk, and was well received on its first appearance. The play is billed at the Oliver in Lincoln for today and tomorrow and will be in Norfolk, Friday evening, the 19th.

Nebraska City Tribune: The writer received a letter from a friend in Colorado, and the said friend, who was very enthusiastic about the climate, said "it is delightfully cool; the thermometer stands at 69 as I write." Our answer was "it is 64 as we read, and we will remain here, put on our felt boots and stand up for Nebraska."

George D. Smith brought in some samples of corn from his fields northwest of the city this morning which are on display in front of the Spaulding flour and feed store. The ears are monstrous, well filled and so completely matured that the grain is beyond danger of damage by frost. Mr. Smith says that they are a fair sample of the corn grown by him and he has no fear of frost as far as his crop is concerned.

The party of F. E. & M. V. railway officials, consisting of General Manager Geo. F. Bidwell, General Superintendent C. C. Hughes, and the new chief engineer of the road, Augustus A. Schenck, returned at noon today from the west and left for a trip over the Creighton branch and extension to Lynch, to which place they were accompanied by Superintendent C. H. Reynolds. The party is making an inspection tour of all the lines of railway of the F. E. & M. V. company.

It was no mere frost, it was a freeze, that descended upon this section of country last night, hitting crops, flowers and verdure in general a solar plexus blow. Ice to the thickness of half an inch was frozen and it may be imagined that nothing but very hardy vegetation would withstand the first definite assault of the frost king. Vines of all kinds are, as the saying is, "cooked" and there will be no recovery. Cabbage, corn and other vigorous growths may be able to throw off the blighting effects of the freeze, but even they will be damaged and development interfered with. Much of the corn was so far advanced that it was beyond injury but some of the later plantings were yet in the milk and will be soft and of little value. If it could have been delayed two weeks little damage would have resulted, but as it is the loss to farmers and gardeners will be large. The bountiful promise of fruit will likewise be a disappointment as much of it is undoubtedly injured beyond recovery, the freeze having affected the foliage of shade trees to the extent that the leaves have been falling to the ground today. The weather bureau promises another frost for tonight that will probably complete the work of destruction if anything escaped last night.

FIENDISH DOUBLE MURDER

Gottlieb Neigenfind Kills Wife and Father-in-Law.

THE SLAYER IS YET AT LARGE.

Mother-in-Law Wounded in the Shoulder—The Dead are Anna Neigenfind and Albert Breyer—Wounded, Mrs. Breyer—Twelve Effective Shots.

As the result of a terrible double murder committed by Gottlieb Neigenfind last night at 6:30 o'clock, Anna Neigenfind, his wife, and Albert Breyer, his father-in-law, lie riddled with bullets at their home 11 miles north of Norfolk, on First street, and six miles east of Norfolk. Mrs. Albert Breyer, the murdered man's wife, has a bullet hole through her left shoulder. The murderer escaped and is still at large.

After shooting three members of the family with 12 bullets, the murderer tore the clothing from a younger sister-in-law, with his revolver leveled at her head, made a criminal attempt upon her, decided not to kill her and disappeared with a villainous laugh down the North-fork creek. A posse of men started immediately in search of Neigenfind and blood hounds arrived at noon from Lincoln to assist in the capture.

The crime seems to be the result of an old grudge which the murderer bore against the family. He has not been seen for over a year until yesterday morning, when he came to the house and asked to see his 5-months-old child, which had been born to his wife since he left the country. This was refused him and he went away with wicked oaths, to return at sun down to kill.

Breyer was at the barn door when Neigenfind came up and began to shoot. His wife was standing near. Three hissing balls of lead sank into the victim's body, two of them just below the heart. One also cut a hole in the shoulder of the woman. Then with a pitch fork, Breyer knocked the spitting weapon from its fiendish grasp, and started toward the house. Instantly the gun was picked up, reloaded and fired again for five more effective wounds. Breyer walked into the house and lived until 6:30 this morning.

One bullet from the deadly shooting iron pierced the handle of the pitch fork which the slain man held at the time he was attacked. This was taken by the sheriff to be used as evidence.

At the disturbance, Anna Neigenfind ran out into the yard. At the corner of the barn her blood-thirsty husband met her and killed her instantly with three shots, one of which entered the temple above the right eye, one passed through the body below the right breast and came out at the back, and the third took effect in the left thigh.

His deed accomplished, Neigenfind turned toward the creek and started away, when he met a younger girl of the family, returning from the neighbors, where she had gone for aid. Instantly he pointed the gun at her head, tore her clothing from her and brutally assaulted her. "Well I guess I'll let you go," he said, and with a hideous chuckle, disappeared into the thicket.

Neigenfind is 29 years old, tall and well built, measuring about 5 feet, 10 inches, weight 180 pounds. He has dark hair and a sandy moustache. His eyes are dark, his cheek bones high and his chin square. He wore a pair of striped overalls, a dark coat with a striped lining, and a light colored slouch hat.

Sheriff B. M. Jones, acting coroner of Pierce county, held an inquest this morning and decided that Anna Neigenfind and Albert Breyer came to their death as the effect of revolver shot wounds, inflicted by one Gottlieb Neigenfind with deliberate, premeditated and felonious intention to kill. "No reward has yet been offered, said the sheriff to a News reporter at the home of the murdered man this morning," but one will unquestionably be hung up." There may also be a state reward.

Neigenfind and Anna Breyer were married in April, 1901. Little things developed dislike between Breyer and his son-in-law. Finally Neigenfind determined to quit the country. His wife was willing to go, but her father told her not to. "If you go with that man," he said, "you need never come here again." From this vicious devil, Breyer was finally able to keep his daughter, and last spring she got a divorce. He left the country in July swearing vengeance, even then threatening to kill one of the sons. Five months ago a baby boy was born to his wife. This child it was whom he came yesterday to see. After some ugly words to his mother-in-law, he went away. Several who saw him along the road yesterday afternoon, noted a fiendish look upon his face, a sly way as he walked and an occasional shrug of the shoulders.

A great crowd of neighbors and friends gathered at the Breyer farm this morning, excited by the tragic news and declaring for treatment none too kind for the culprit when captured. Albert Breyer was a German farmer who had lived in peace and good will among his neighbors in Pierce county for the past 31 years. "He didn't have an enemy on earth, except this man," said one of the farmers of that section this morning. He was kind hearted and honest and a good citizen, withal. He had a family of six children, one of whom goes with him to untimely grave. He received seven bullets, in all. One struck near the center of his head, one lodged in the right fore arm, two entered an inch apart, just below the left nipple, near the heart, one struck the left elbow, one in the flesh behind the left shoulder and one in the flank above the kidney. A physician from Pierce was summoned and early this morning Dr. P. H. Salter was called by telephone, in the hope that something might be done. But the wounded man died at 6:30, 12 hours after he had been shot. Either of the bullets below the heart or the one above the kidney, would have been fatal. Before his death Breyer was perfectly conscious, and talked freely. He signed his name to a will. The murdered woman was 30 years old.

Five empty 22-calibre shells were found near the barn this morning, where the revolver had been deliberately reloaded for more of its bloody work.

Neigenfind's vicious character is not altogether a surprise. Thirst for human blood seems to run in the family, as his father, only a few years ago, murderously shot a man in Wayne county over a dispute for 50 cents. His bullet, however, did not prove fatal.

"Human Hearts."

The idyl of the Arkansas hills, "Human Hearts," replete with interest, mirth and pathos, will be presented at the Auditorium on Friday, September 19, and no lover of the drama should fail to attend the performance. But few traveling companies carry so much and elaborate scenery. No expense has been spared in the effort to make this performance in every way artistically realistic. One breathes the atmosphere of the simple farm life, and one's heart throbs with the sufferings of plain country folks, who engage the attention by their homely ways and simple nature. The people of this town and vicinity will have the opportunity next Friday night to laugh away their cares and sympathize with sorrow, if they go to see the very successful play "Human Hearts" at the Auditorium. No one will regret the time spent in witnessing this enactment of the lives of simple folks who have witnessed the greatest of sorrows, separation and injustice; and all will not only be chastened by pity for the afflicted, but will be refreshed by laughter in plenty, for which the playwright has skillfully planned.
