FRIDAY FACTS.

Arthur Overton, who has been suffering from typhoid fever, has so far recovered that he was able to be up today.

The snake-eater has pulled down his tent and silently stolen away for new fields and new audiences to delight with his artistic and elevating exhibition of cruelty to dumb animals.

A. Kimball Barnes has so far recovered from his recent siege of typhoid fever that he was able to be down town this morning for the first time. Mr.

Barnes expects to leave next week for the university at Lincoln where he will teach.

W. W. Roberts, representing the insurance companies has adjusted with the school board the loss on the high school building by reason of its having been struck by lightning during the summer. He paid them $394.82, which was the cost of making the necessary repairs.

There is certainly a variety of carnival weather, though not of the right kind, on tap. This forenoon the wind changed to the north and with smoke and drizzly accompaniments proved far from agreeable to those who wished to be out of doors on pleasure or for other purposes. The sudden change made warm clothing and a little fire quite agreeable.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Koerber entertained a company of about sixty friends at Railway hall last evening in observance of their twelfth wedding anniversary. Cards and dancing were the order of the evening and were thoroughly enjoyed until about 1 o'clock this morning. First prizes were awarded to F. Hollingsworth and Miss Lucy Schaffer while Harry Hall and Miss Katie Dugan received the consolation prizes. Mr. and Mrs. Koerber received many valuable presents, some of which were fine linen.

The republican state committee has notified the local committees that Hon. A. C. Rankin, the molder orator, will be in Norfolk for a political address on Tuesday, September 30, and the committee has rented the vacant building at the corner of Norfolk avenue and Third street for the rally. Mr. Rankin is a stove molder by trade and has a national reputation as an orator of ability. He is a member of the molders' union at Pittsburgh, Pa., and was the first treasurer of the national federation of labor. He is a master of economics and his address will be of interest to all, regardless of party.

Manager Sprecher of the telephone exchange has sent in a requisition for a new switch board and it is considered that a board of about 500-wire capacity would be the proper thing. A 300-wire board was put in about 18 months ago and at that time it was considered that it would furnish ample accommodation for years to come. It had grown through the successive stages of 100-wire and 200-wire capacities in remarkably short periods of time and it is now considered from past experience that a 500-wire board would not anticipate the demand for a great while. The 300-wire board is almost full, and enough new telephones have been ordered to tax its capacity to the limit. Norfolk people are finding telephones not only a convenience but a necessity and the list of subscribers has been increasing constantly.

Present Carnival Claims.

All those having claims against the carnival committee are requested to present them before 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, properly endorsed by the person contracting the bill, at the Citizens National bank.

BURGLARY AT SATTLER'S.

Safe at Implement Office Touched Last Night.

WATCHES AND RING TAKEN.

Entrance Was Through Front Door of the Office—Light Fingering Gentry Were Not Looking for Notes But Took Gold.

The agricultural implement office of H. C. Sattler was entered last night by a burglar or burglars and the safe robbed. Outside of two gold watches and a ring the loss was not heavy. A number of notes in the safe were not molested.

The office was entered through the front door which has only an ordinary lock. The outer door of the safe was left unlocked and the thieves had little difficulty in opening the inner doors. The burglars were quite gentlemanly in their conduct. Nothing unusual was noted about the office this morning except that a curtain not used ordinarily, an awning taking its place, was pulled down and several partly burned matches were on the floor. Mr. Sattler did not discover his loss until the safe was opened this morning.

One of the watches taken was a gentleman's gold watch that formerly belonged to Mr. Sattler's father and the other was a lady's gold watch that had been presented by him to his first wife on their wedding day. The ring was their wedding ring. Therefore, while the intrinsic value of the articles taken was not large, their association made them valuable to Mr. Sattler and he would undoubtedly consent to ignore the crime and pay full value for the articles taken without asking questions should they be restored. The watch was engraved with Mrs. Sattler's name and the date of their wedding, February 2, 1887. The job must have been done when the night watch was in the other end of town as a person could not have been detected entering the front door of a man's place of business at that hour when the burglary was committed without awakening suspicion.

Hedrick-Wise.

There was a pretty wedding in the Second Congregational church Wednesday forenoon when Miss Nye Wise was married to Mr. Clarence Hedrick, both being of South Norfolk. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Franklin Baker promptly at 10:30, before a number of relatives and friends. Following the ceremony a lunch was served at the bride's home to the wedding party and Mr. and Mrs. Hedrick left for the east on the noon train for a brief wedding trip to the home of the groom's parents. They expect to return in about ten days after which they will be at home to their Norfolk friends. The groomsmen was Mr. Bert Donner and the bridesmaid Miss Hedrick, a sister of the groom. The church was prettily decorated and Mr. and Mrs. Hedrick received many handsome and valuable presents from friends and relatives. Mr. Hedrick is employed as a fireman by the F. E. & M. V. company and is well liked by his fellow employees and others who have had the pleasure of his acquaintance. Miss Wise has lived in South Norfolk for many years and is admired by a large number of friends. They have the best wishes of all friends for a wedded life of prosperity and happiness.

High School Notes.

"Mr. Bullock, have you nothing to do?"

It is understood that Paul Sisson is to be sporting editor of the Milestone.

Superintendent O'Connor was looking for the senior class Wednesday afternoon.

The drawers have been placed in the laboratory desks and the laboratory is about complete.

The repairs to the chimney damaged by lightning this summer are completed and the chimney is again in service.

The seniors are preparing to publish a Milestone this year and are already soliciting advertising for the publication.

There was not much school during the carnival dates. The minds of those who attended were not centered keenly on work.

The football team is asking for contributions for the purpose of carrying them through the season and are meeting with fair success.

The football and basketball teams are planning for an entertainment the receipts from which will be divided for the benefit of the two teams.

Glen Wilkins, last year back on the university team, has consented to coach the football team and will meet with the team for the first time this evening, probably at the Grant school.

The schedule of the football team for a portion of the season is at present as follows, subject to some changes: October 4 a game will be played against Randolph at that place. October 11 a game is scheduled at Albion. October 18 the Columbus team is to be here for a game. October 25 Randolph is to play a return game here. Madison is being negotiated with for a couple of games. A return game with Columbus is to be played at that city on Thanksgiving. Several other games and return games are contemplated.

ATHLETIC CONTEST.

A Crowd of Perhaps Sixty Witnessed Feats of Dexterity and Strength.

An eager crowd of perhaps 60 people gathered in the vacant store room of the Pacific block last night to see the wrestling and boxing contest. The paucity of the crowd indicated suspicion of the contest and doubtful expressions of those present indicated that they had without large expectations. The room has been fitted with seats and a ring had been roped off in the center while a number of local sports assisted at the details.

The program was opened with some balancing and tumbling feats by Dan Murphy announced on the bills to be from San Francisco. He balanced anything at hand from a chair to a broom straw, and it was perhaps the best appreciated portion of the program.

A wrestling match was next between Mr. Murphy and W. J. Huston of Omaha, best two out of three, catch as catch can. After a struggle of several minutes Murphy downed Huston, then Huston reversed things by downing Murphy. This inspired Murphy with a desire to bet and he offered anything from $5 to $25 that he would take the next fall. No takers appeared until finally one man, who afterward proved to be one of the boxers, said he would take $5 worth. But right here there was a genuine interruption. A man stepped out of the audience and counted out $50 on the ring floor that he could produce a man who could throw either of them tomorrow night or in two weeks. Mr. Murphy lost all desire for a bet and dodged more or less gracefully the imputation of not being sporty by hurrying on the next bout. Of course Murphy won, as everyone knew he would unless there had been greater inducements for the other fellow to win.

It was really a very clever struggle and the men showed up some fine forms, strong muscles and neat tricks.

The next was a ten-round glove contest between Terry Mustin of Omaha and Charley Brown of Chicago "for a purse of $200." It opened with a fierce protest from Brown because he judged that Mustin had an avoidable advantage of him. The crowd thought so likewise, and the grit of the lighter man was applauded when he decided to go on with the mill regardless. There were no demands for bets on this event either, so the two went at it. They worked their dukes energetically. Sometimes the one dealt the other a buff and sometimes the order was reversed. Sometimes they both landed together. Officers were there to interfere should the laws be disregarded, but they kept mum, except to quiet the kids who were trying to peek through the windows.

The first round was fought without results. Jabs, upper cuts, body and head blows, clinches and smiles were exchanged quite frequently up to the sixth inning when Brown went down. He thought he would get right up again, but the referee commenced to count time until seven or eight was counted when he struggled to his feet and the fight was on again. In the seventh there was some lively side stepping. Mustin was the aggressor, but his slighter antagonist could not evade him. He was crowded to the ropes and a blow dealt him and he fell in a heap and while the referee had forgotten to count he was declared out by the mutual consent of the crowd. He was bleeding—sweat—from every pore and he must have been out. Some one yelled "foul!" but the victor thought that an unjust imputation and promptly called the objector down. This made it necessary for the trainer of the vanquished to come to the front and state that his man had been retired fairly and that he had no protest to make. The throng surged out and then surged in again. An important discovery had been made. Brown had received a fractured rib, the same as they generally do in such contests. He was not permanently disabled, however, and it was announced by Houston this morning that he had left for home "with quite a swelling on his side."
