

WILL TRY MORAL SUASION

President Roosevelt Hopes to Settle Coal Strike.

HEART-TO-HEART TALK HIS PLAN

Invites Mine Operators and John Mitchell to Meet With Him at White House on Friday—President Will Act as Arbitrator.

Washington, Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt will make an effort to bring the anthracite coal mine owners and their striking employees together in the interest of the public good. This conclusion was reached after a series of conferences with his cabinet advisers, covering Tuesday and Wednesday. The decision was arrived at when the lawyers of the cabinet informed the president that there was no way under the constitution and the form of government of the United States for federal intervention to end the strike.

Every phase was canvassed and the determination to have the mine operators and President Mitchell get together was reached when it was found that no other methods were open.

The president sent the following invitation to the coal operators and John Mitchell: "I should like to see you on Friday next, Oct. 3, at 11 a. m., here in Washington, in regard to the failure of the coal supply, which has become a matter of vital concern to the whole nation."

No Power but That of Persuasion. At the meeting Friday the line of approach toward the settlement of the strike will be an appeal by President Roosevelt to both sides to come together as men and not to allow false pride or feeling of obstinacy to stand in the way of the termination of the great strike, which is fraught with threat of misery to thousands of people.

The president intends to lay before his hearers the situation as it appears to him with all the prospective horrors that will follow a fuel famine, and will urge them in the interests of humanity to open the mines and supply the demand for coal.

President Gets Responses.

President Roosevelt's proposition for a gathering here Friday morning of representatives of the coal companies and the miners met a prompt response from a number of the gentlemen to whom invitations were sent.
