The weather might be an intimation that picnics and outings are in season but it could never be taken to mean that election day and winter are almost due.

The extravagance of the last fusion state administration is not the kind of record the tax payers are looking for as an inducement to return those parties to power.

If the fusionists want their state ticket to go through on a claim of honesty and economy they would do well to conceal or efface the record they have left behind as a legacy to the state.

A week from next Tuesday is when Mickey and McCarty will be elected, the former as governor of Nebraska and the latter as congressman from the Third district.

Each succeeding fall in Nebraska seems to be more beautiful than the one that has preceded it and the people of other parts of the country will never know what perfect weather is until they have experienced a Nebraska autumn.

Senator Beveridge of Indiana describes the democratic campaign this year as a "campaign of abandoned issues." The party certainly deserves some degree of consideration and "a campaign of abandoned issues" describes the situation to a nicety.

During the last fusion regime pigs were bought from "Uncle Jake" Wolfe at $124 per pig for the hospital for the insane at Lincoln. Even at the present price of pig meat such prices can be considered in no other light than that of wanton extravagance.

This section of the state will be honored by being represented in the senate by such a man as Dr. J. M. Alden of Pierce. His personal affairs indicate that he is a man of excellent business judgment and a business man is what is wanted in the coming legislature. A vote for Mr. Alden is a vote in the right direction and there is little question but that he will be elected.

The democrats have been backed up to their last stronghold when they raise the tariff question as an issue. They have fought many battles from this point, have lost many times and won out once. It is the only issue they possess upon which they can place any reliance and the republicans are always willing to meet them on that question, because the republican position has been repeatedly sustained.

If the democratic arguments against the American tariff hold good that American manufacturers sell their products cheaper in foreign countries than they do at home, it must also be responsible for the fact that German manufacturers of steel sell steel billets at home at 95 marks per ton while they sell the same product to American buyers for 65 marks. They should therefore send their campaign workers to Germany to secure votes for their ticket.

The fusionists are disconcerted by the lack of interest manifest in their public meetings. They have turned their best oratorical talent loose but have been highly disappointed.

asm that might be interpreted to mean success at the polls. The people have absolutely refused to turn out and listen, and the politicians of that party are very fearful that it is because they are satisfied with conditions as they exist and do not think it worth while to go to meeting and hear the conditions deplored and abuse of the party in power.

The fusionists are again making some promises if elected, or at least the campaigners are making promises for the candidates. One would think that with their experience in making promises before they were given power the last time they would be very cautious as to their promises this fall, but they are not. They hope to deceive the people again. They are making promises which they know will never be carried out, and the voters do not propose to give them an opportunity to make another record of broken promises such as Edgar Howard of the Columbus Telegram has disclosed.

All saloon men are not falling over themselves in an endeavor to follow certain leaders of that element who are endeavoring to discredit Mr. Mickey because he is a sober man. They realize that saloon or anti-saloon has not been contemplated as an issue this campaign, except so far as some of the saloon men have endeavored to make it appear so, and they further realize that if they endeavor to thrust this forward as an issue the people may become so far disgusted with their meddling wit politics that in some future campaign they may see to it that it is an issue beyond question and that their tactics have made them numerous enemies who will unite with those opposed to saloons to force them to observe stricter regulations. Such a possibility will operate to convince many who are for saloons to be very careful as to how they oppose Mr. Mickey. They will observe wise discretion in not aggravating the people to make that an issue beyond a doubt.

To Avert a Coffee Crisis.

New York, Oct. 24.—Reports from the committee on causes of the crisis have been presented at the meeting of the International American Coffee association. MERGER CASE ADJOURNED

Ingersoll Concludes Four Days' Hearing at St. Paul.

Further Evidence Will Be Heard in the East—Vice President Clough Says Company Was Formed to Make Charters Quite Safe.

St. Paul, Oct. 24.—The hearing in this city by Special Examiner F. G. Ingersoll, appointed to take testimony for the United States against the Northern Securities, the Great Northern Railway and the Northern Pacific Railway companies and other parties, under the Sherman anti-trust law, was concluded late yesterday afternoon and an adjournment taken to New York, Nov. 10 next, when the examination of several witnesses reading in or about that city will begin. The hearing in this city has lasted four days, Presidents Hill of the Great Northern, Harris of the Burlington and Mellen of the Northern Pacific being the principal witnesses. The other witnesses were Colonel W. P. Clough, vice president of the Northern Securities company, and Frederick Weyerhaeuser, the big lumber man. Yesterday's witnesses were Colonel Clough and President Mellen, but nearly the entire day was devoted to the former, the government attorneys paying particular attention to the matter of rates and joint rates, various schedules of tariffs having been introduced into the record.

Mr. Clough said the effect of possible adverse legislation had been one influence in the organization of the securities company, as some supreme court decisions had made the question of vested rights a little uncertain, and they even feared that their charters might be taken away.

Church Convention at Omaha Closes Its Work With Song.

Omaha, Oct. 24.—With the singing of "God Be With Us Till We Meet Again," the international convention of Disciples of Christ adjourned last night to meet in Detroit in 1903. Vehement expression was given individual opinions of Christian union by members at yesterday's session at the Coliseum.
