

COME BY WAY OF CANADA

Thousands of Rejected Immigrants Enter United States.

TOLD TO WALK ACROSS LINE.

European Agents Engaged in Sending Back People Who Have Been Deported—Describe Montreal as Border City and Entrance Easy.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Commissioner Sargent made public a report from Robert Watchorn, special immigrant inspector, dated Paris, on the immigration to the United States by way of Canada. Mr. Watchorn says:

"Europeans who are ineligible to enter the United States have been directed by designing agents to Canadian ports, so that they cross the international boundary where official inspection is less rigid. Intending immigrants who because of some disqualification are rejected by lines running to the United States are turned over to lines running to Canada, and, with few exceptions, are accepted without question. Thousands every year thus find their way to Canada and thence to the United States. Every steamship agent alludes to the fact that the United States immigration laws are now being strictly enforced and in consequence the Canadian route is one where any one is accepted who is capable of walking off the ship, a statement which is invariably coupled with a gratuitous lesson in North American geography, designed to impress on the emigrant's mind the cheering information that Montreal is a 'border city,' from which a walk across the border is a very easy matter, unattended by any inconvenience whatever, there being no inspection of immigrants at the border."

PROGRESS OF MOLINEUX TRIAL.

Testimony of Two Witnesses to Be Excluded—Prosecution Rests.

New York, Oct. 30.—The prosecution in the Molineux case rested yesterday after the defense had secured an important advantage in the decision by Justice Lambert that the reading of the testimony given at the first trial by Mamie Melando and Detective Farrell, both of whom are beyond the jurisdiction of the court, was inadmissible. The greater part of the session was devoted to the examination of a handwriting expert, who testified that one hand wrote the post office address and Barnett and Cornish letters and letters admittedly written by Molineux. The presentation of the case for the defense is expected to occupy not more than two days, and interest centers in the question whether Molineux will testify in his own behalf.

They seem determined to continue and expressed themselves thus to Agent Speers, who pointedly told them that they would not be allowed to wander in such large numbers. There is no danger of any trouble. Even if they are forced to go back to their villages they will go without resistance.

General Suspension of Work in Anthracite Region.

UNION LABOR OUT ON PARADE.

Ten Thousand Mine Workers March the Streets of Wilkesbarre, After Which They Listen to Speech by Their Leader.

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 30.—Mitchell day was celebrated in all the principal towns of the anthracite coal region yesterday and in order that all the mine workers might have an opportunity to participate in the exercises the mines were closed down. The principal demonstration was held in this city and President Mitchell took part. Everybody wore a John Mitchell badge. The procession started shortly before noon and was nearly one hour in passing a given point. It is estimated that there were 10,000 men in line. President Mitchell was given an ovation all along the line, and whenever his carriage stopped, the crowd pressed around and insisted on shaking hands.

After the parade a big mass meeting was held at Y. M. C. A. park. President Mitchell was the last speaker. He said in part:

"Language is inadequate to express the gratitude for the great reception I have received at the hands of the anthracite miners and I feel that the victory is not due to myself, but to the men, women and children who made so many sacrifices. I hope that there will never again be a strike in the coal fields of Pennsylvania. I want the union miners to prove that they are better workmen than the non-union men. I desire the men and operators to meet. I do not want to make enemies of the operators. In closing, I wish to impress upon you that membership in the union is the only safeguard. The operators are not going to pay the bill of the strike. They will make the workers pay it if they can, but if not they will make the public pay it. It behooves the mine workers to see to it that they are not made the victims, and I hope that you will be true to yourselves and to one another, and that you will see to it that the cost of the greatest labor struggle that has ever occurred is not placed on your backs. Stick by the union and the union will stick by you."

The demand was refused. The demand is based on the great increase in the cost of living.

KRUGER ISSUES MEMOIRS

Ex-President Says He Tried His Best to Avert War.

BOER ANTIPATHY TOO STRONG.

Declares Chamberlain Was Cecil Rhodes' Accomplice in the Jameson Raid, and That Milner Acted as Tool of Colonial Secretary.

London, Oct. 30.—It is understood that the "Kruger Memoirs," of which a first instalment of extracts has already been published in the Times, give a narrative of the ex-president's career, but do not go deeply into political or diplomatic aspects, or advise the Boers as to the best policy to be pursued after Mr. Kruger's death. A striking feature of the memoirs is a revelation of the jealousies which existed before the war between inhabitants of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State and the Cape Colony Boers, which prevented anything like a satisfactory mutual understanding. Mr. Kruger takes pains to explain that he did his best to smooth matters over and prevent the war, but the Boers' inborn antipathy to foreign interference proved to be too strong for him.

Mr. Kruger declares that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was undoubtedly the late Cecil Rhodes' accomplice in the Jameson raid, and that Mr. Chamberlain appointed Lord Milner British high commissioner of South Africa with the direct intention of driving matters to extremes. "This tool of Mr. Chamberlain," says Mr. Kruger, "carried out his mission faithfully and turned South Africa into a wilderness."

British policy in general, the former president sums up in the following sentence: "Lies, treachery, intrigues, and secret investigations against the governments of the republics, these have always been the distinguishing marks of English politics."

Mr. Kruger closes his memoirs with these words: "I am convinced that the lord will not forsake his people, even although it often appears so, and I acquiesce in the will of the lord, knowing he will not allow an afflicted people to perish."

Phillips of the United States district court in this city. After he had tired of jail, Judge Peden, several months ago, sent his resignation to Governor Dockery, and a successor was appointed. Judge Phillips declined to talk of the matter and it is supposed that Judge Peden's release was a result of his resignation.
