HOUSE BREAKERS BEGIN.

The Suggestion of The News Came None too Soon.

AN ATTEMPT TO BURGLARIZE.

Would-be Midnight Man Was Utterly Unsuccessful in an Effort to Open Windows in a West Side Home. Many are Here.

Strictly in accordance with the word and wizardly suggestion thrown out by the police reporter on The News yesterday, the suspicious looking strangers who have been dropping into the city during the past few days and lurking around the dark corners, have begun in a small way to carry on their profession and the idea of bolting the doors, if carried into faithful execution, may save many dollars, a few precious stones and a string of bad scares.

Last night close to 12 o'clock an attempt at burglary was made at the home of George Marshall on South Ninth between Madison and Phillip avenues. Mrs. Marshall was sitting in the room waiting for her husband's home coming. Mr. Marshall works until midnight at the electric light station. The scare came in a knocking on the door and a threatening demand for entrance. Luckily Mrs. Marshall had read The News a few minutes before and, becoming nervous, had locked the door. The fellow uttered oaths in frightful tones, pounded vigorously against the panel and tried the lock but failing to open, left the premises. The little woman was alone with two small children and they were given a bad shock. Mr. Marshall went out with a gun after he came home, but failed to locate the man.

Another place that the burglar has appeared and tried to "work" was already tightly locked and the would-be house breaker, failing utterly to gain admittance, soon tired and turned away. This was at the residence of N. A. Lockwood on the corner of Tenth street and Koenigstein avenue. Along in the night an attempt was made to open nearly every window on the first floor of the house, and the people within were quite alarmed. For some time the rattling was continued but finally the midnight man went away without having even seen the inside of the home.

A suspicious disappearance of a dress skirt from a clothes line at the home of F. A. Davenport on Norfolk avenue caused some little commotion yesterday. Some time afterward, however, it was discovered that a neighbor had seen the garment blowing away and taken it in for safe keeping.

No serious violations of the law have been reported to the police today and it is hoped, by incessant vigilance on the part of the officers, to keep down any attempts at disturbing the peace.

SUNDAY NOON AT POST OFFICE.

Undecided Whether it Will Remain Open or Close.

It has not yet been definitely determined at the post office whether or not the doors will be opened on Sunday noons, now that there is no Sunday mail service at midday. Formerly, when the morning trains brought in mail that the patrons wanted, it was necessary to have an hour at noon when the post office might be entered. Now, however, since there is nothing at all until in the evening, there seems to be no pressing need for the service. Postmaster Hays is anxious to do in the matter exactly what would please the public, as it makes no very material difference in the work.
