JUST WHAT MAY THE BEE BE?

They are a Stinging Reality in Bakery Windows Today.

Just exactly how they ever got turned loose is something of a mystery, but far more vital is the stinging fact that they are here—a great big buzzing swarm of busy bees. In nearly every restaurant window throughout the city there is a crawling, creeping humming family of the industrious little insects that sip the sweetness from the petals of the pretty honey-suckle, and make life interesting for the barefooted boy who ventures into an ocean of white clover blossoms during the summer. There is no longer any excuse for the fellow who has been asking what made the fly fly, or why did the quail quail, to keep up his query as to what may the bee be, for if he really doesn't know, the baker can put him "next."

TO PRINT WORKMAN AGAIN

Contract For Publishing A. O. U. W. Paper Secured.

EIGHT YEARS BY W. N. HUSE.

The Committee Awarded the Contract Yesterday and the Paper Will be Published From News Office Another Two Years.

The contract for printing the Nebraska Workman, the official organ of the A. O. U. W. lodge in Nebraska, has again been awarded to W. N. Huse, publisher of THE NEWS. He returned last night over the Union Pacific from Grand Island, where the grand lodge has been in session, and brought with him the contract for another two years.

This will make eight successive years that the Workman shall have been printed in THE NEWS office. The contract is awarded each time for a period of two years, and came for its first issue in Norfolk just six years ago. Until that time it had never been given to any one publisher for more than one term.

The Workman means something to Norfolk as well as to THE NEWS. When it first came to this city it had a circulation of 24,000. It is now practically 45,000. The work of getting it out is no small matter and employment is given to many in this office on its account.

The paper is a big factor in the monthly work at the post office, as it requires the service of one man something over a week, at ten hours a day, to handle this immense package. Merely the names of the persons to whom the paper is sent, set up in type, weigh 5,000 pounds and one person is kept busy constantly making changes that come in.

There were 650 delegates in the convention. They voted to have the Workman contract be let by the grand master workman and finance committee as should seem to them best. Yesterday the contract was let on practically the same basis as before with a slightly better quality of paper to be used, and the committee adjourned. No other bids were considered. The first issue under the new contract will be on August 1.
