A bright little lad came down Norfolk avenue this morning, wearing a pair of gorgeously beaded Indian moccasins. He was nearly walking on the atmosphere, in his pride and self satisfaction. "Where did you get those?" he was asked. His head went up a trifle higher, his chest grew a trifle larger and his moccasins merely touched the high places along the sidewalk. "Valentine-Nebraska!" he said. And no doubt it was the truth.

STABBED IN THE ARM.

Farmer Uses Pitchfork to Persuade Employee to Get out of Bed. [From Wednesday's Daily.] For stabbing him in the arm with a pitchfork, at 4 o'clock this morning, Henry Arends has sent an officer after Julius Lenzer, a farmer living six miles north of the city.

Arens is a farm hand and claims that Lenzer wanted him to get up at 4 o'clock this morning to go to work. Arends was tired and wanted to get up not yet. At this refusal, the farmer is alleged to have gone after the fork and to have jabbed the young fellow in the arm. Justice Eiseley issued the warrant.

Nebraska Short-horn Sale. The dispersion sale of an excellent Nebraska herd of registered Shorthorn cattle will take place at Ames, Neb., June 23 and 24. The herd is owned by the Standard Cattle company of Ames, Neb. They will sell their entire herd of registered cows. The herd of bulls has been built up by years of careful selection by Mr. R. M. Allen, the manager, for the purpose of breeding pure-bred bulls for their extensive range herds.

The utmost attention to quality, rather than breeding, influenced him probably more than the average Shorthorn breeder, but those who will take the trouble to look over his catalogue on the best "American Sires," topped with the best Scotch sires of the breed. The cattle are of the large, growthy, early maturing kind. Just the ideal kind, in fact, to best fit the prevailing Nebraska Shorthorn sentiment. Mr. Allen has probably done as much to establish such a sentiment as any other man in the state. Our Nebraska breeders have never been reckless in buying cattle of the so-called fashionable strains. They have kept very close to the "individual quality" standard, and while breeders to the east were soaring high on prices for "the all Scotch" cattle, the Nebraska breeders pretty generally failed to enthuse. To say, therefore, that Mr. Allen's herd is "an ideal Nebraska herd," is but to pay a tribute to the austerity of his fellow breeders throughout the state. These cattle will be found desirable to all who will take the trouble to attend the sale. Remember also that twenty-five great bulls are consigned by other reputable breeders.

FOUND THE DROWNED GIRL.

Elkhorn Yields the Form of Bertha Schroeder.

SHE FLOATED SEVERAL MILES.

Entangled in the Underbrush, Her Hand Stuck out of the Water—Seen by a Driver of Cattle—Similarity to England's Drowning. [From Tuesday's Daily.] The body of little Bertha Schroeder, daughter of Carl Schroeder, who was drowned in the Elkhorn river at Battle Creek, a week ago this afternoon, has been found, about three miles below the point in which the child went to her death. It was located by William Dittich, who was driving cattle along the water's edge.

The form of the little girl had caught upon an old stump of a tree. As Dittich passed the spot he noticed a pale, white hand, motionless and ghastly, protruding slightly from the surface of the muddy water. With the assistance of neighbors, he drew the child from the watery grave. The body was very badly decomposed, and the funeral was held immediately. Rev. Mr. Hofman in charge of the service. Interment was in the Lutheran cemetery.

Bertha Schroeder was ten years old. She is thought to have jumped into the river with suicidal intent. She had been found to have a sum of money and upon being questioned, refused stubbornly to tell where it came from. When friends came to the home to talk over the matter, the little girl left. Shortly afterward her pet dog and an apron were found at the river's bank. Thirty men from Battle Creek and as many from Meadow Grove, besides many neighbors, dragged the river for any trace of the remains. Not until the swollen river chose to relinquish its grasp however, and in much the same manner that brought about the finding of Eddie England in the same stream at this place last week, did the corpse come to light.

The mountain of manure that has been occupying the alley north of Main and between Fourth and Fifth streets, is being leveled to the ground and the alleyway will soon be passable for teams, not to mention the improved condition and sanitary benefit from the enterprise of those making the improvement. D. D. Brunson returned today from Omaha, where he went to learn whether or not a man who was killed last week, might be his brother. The fellow was asphyxiated by gas in the Vienna hotel and a letter in his pocket led to the belief that he might be some relation to Mr. Brunson. When seen at the morgue, however, the person proved to be totally strange.

Three hundred Odd Fellows gathered at Randolph Thursday in a district meeting and formally organized an association with the following officers: President, L. W. Aird of Eldon; vice president, N. F. Simpson of Laurel; secretary, L. W. Locke of Belden and treasurer, L. H. Bruner of Randolph. The district comprises all the lodges in Cedar and Wayne counties. A parade in the afternoon, a speech in the opera house by Past Grand Master Geo. N. Beels of this city and exemplification of degree work were the order of the day.

HERMAN BOCHE WAS ACQUITTED.

Part of the Too Many Fish Belong to His Wife, He Says. [From Wednesday's Daily.] Herman Boche was acquitted in county court at Madison yesterday afternoon, on the charge of having had in his possession too many fish at one time. The case was tried before Judge Bates. Boche was acquitted on the ground that half of the fish belonged to his wife and that none of them were caught by either him or his wife, his sons having pulled the whole batch out of the river.

On Monday morning, June 8, Boche drove to the city from his farm four miles south and began to sell a wagon load of fish to the residents of South Norfolk. Deputy Warden Rainey came along, counted the haul and found seventy-six fish in the bunch. Boche secured a change of venue from Judge Hayes, taking the case to Justice Sleeper in Warnerville. Here he was dismissed by the state and re-arrested, to appear before Judge Bates. State Game Warden George L. Carter was present from Lincoln, to help protect the fishing interests.

DEAD MAN NOT A BROTHER

D. D. Brunson Was Puzzled For Four Days.

HE THOUGHT MAN WAS OF KIN.

But the Real Voice of His Own Brother, Who Has Been Unheard From For Three Years, Came by Telephone from St. Louis. [From Wednesday's Daily.] D. D. Brunson returned last night from Omaha, where he went to learn whether or not the man who was asphyxiated by gas in the Vienna hotel last week, and who had a receipt giving the name of Edmund Brunson, might be his brother, Charles. Since Saturday afternoon Mr. Brunson has been away, unable to definitely decide whether the dead man was his brother or not and he only made sure that the remains could be those of no relative of his when he talked with his brother, by telephone, at St. Louis, yesterday afternoon.

The man who was killed so nearly resembled in every respect the brother of the Norfolk man, that for days he was almost positive of the identity. It was from this resemblance that an acquaintance of the family wired the father, in Iowa, that his son was dead in Omaha. The parent telegraphed his Norfolk son to go immediately to Omaha and see what might be done. The brother for whom the corpse was taken had not been heard from for three years, and no letters upon the person of the man asphyxiated, gave any clue as to his name except one receipt bearing the name Edmund Brunson. So complete was the similarity that even a bald spot on the head and the size of shoes worn, corresponded. Now and again Mr. Brunson would look at the features and conclude that without a doubt his own brother was before him, and then catching a glance from another direction, he would be quite convinced that the dead man was a total stranger.

In attempting to come to a conclusion, Mr. Brunson telephoned to Norfolk and had Harry Lee, who had worked with Charles Brunson for a year, come to Omaha and bring a photograph of the brother, that a comparison might be made. Mr. Lee was as much puzzled as the other and the resemblance to the photograph merely intensified the bewilderment.

In his efforts to definitely decide, everything, of course, was done that could be invented. All night long on Tuesday, the puzzled man telephoned to various points over the country, talking with the chiefs of police in St. Joseph and in St. Louis, where the brother had been last heard from. Finally, an hour before train time yesterday afternoon, a telephone call came from St. Louis, and the real voice of his brother assured Mr. Brunson that the dead man was a stranger and relieved him of the nervous strain that had held him for days, wavering as he constantly was, between the fear that one of his own family lay dead before him, and the hope that it might yet prove to be a case of mistaken identity. The brother was so sorry as he could be when he learned of the trouble and worry he had caused, and promised to wire home at once and to write hereafter often enough to keep his family posted as to his whereabouts.

The dead Edmund Brunson came to Omaha through an accident. He was found, it was learned from a hotel man, from Leavenworth, Kan., to a point near Omaha. By mistake he was carried by the station and he then insisted that the train bring him into the city, where he could get a hotel. The fact of his coming from Leavenworth only made the probability more apparent that it must be Charles Brunson, since he had been in that section of the country when last heard from.

He had on his person $21 in cash and it was a satisfaction to Mr. Brunson to know that, stranger as the man proved to be, he was tenderly cared for by the Omaha undertakers at the morgue. And so the body of the unknown Edmund Brunson will be kept until today, when, if there is no clue to his friends, he will be given a decent burial in the best casket that his money will pay for, and in a cemetery lot.

Suggests Other Improvements.

"Now that Norfolk is doing the improvement turn," said a business man this morning, who owns enough property to give his expression a touch of sincerity, "it wouldn't be bad to start something in the way of a sewerage system that has long been needed, and something more in a move to pave Norfolk avenue and another movement toward a public library, which the town ought to have."

MACHINISTS' PICNIC POSTPONED.

Will Come Next Wednesday Instead of Saturday, as Planned. [From Wednesday's Daily.] The machinists' picnic, which was to have been held in this city next Saturday, because of a demand for passenger coaches on a Duluth excursion. The baseball game which had been arranged for the date, is called off, as the machinists have something doing for every minute of the time they will be in Norfolk. $50.00 to $100.00. PIANO COMPANY LEAVES.

Hospe People Will not Re-Open. Building Leased Again. [From Wednesday's Daily.] The Norfolk representatives of A. Hospe & Co., of Omaha decided not to reopen their branch piano house here following the fire and left this noon for their headquarters, after storing two of their remaining pianos in the Olney building.

Mr. Rees states that the ruined portion of the building will be removed as soon as settlement has been made with the insurance adjusters. The building was again leased this morning, and it is understood that a general merchandise store will be opened up in it after the necessary repairs and improvements are made.

THEY COME FOR HUNDREDS OF MILES TO SEE HER.

Nothing so Wonderful in the Days of Specialism. Dr. Caldwell. The success of Dr. Caldwell is attributed to her special study of specialism. Dr. Caldwell, student, philanthropist and physician of wide reputation, having given her entire time and practice to a line of special diseases, which enables her from long experience in handling these troubles to certainly come forward as a master specialist. Her faculty for mastering disease, her ability to diagnose, and her plan of treatment is not excelled by few other physicians. Dr. Caldwell, although a young woman in life, a plain woman, and one who is used to the ups and downs in life, puts herself on a level with her patients and does not pretend to practice the old plan of fashion, which is to look wise and say nothing. She knows disease; she knows where to look for disease, and the spot where located, and most of all she knows from experience, from what she has done in the past, she can certainly do for others in the future. It is said by Dr. Caldwell's friends that she can diagnose a disease of any patient without asking them a single question, that being the case, she is not likely to doctor them for the wrong ailment; she will not take an incurable disease and lead the patient to believe that she can cure them when there is really no hope for them. Her business is large and she has plenty to do, even at times, more than she can do, without taking incurable diseases and deceiving her patients. Dr. Caldwell is a graduate from one of the best schools in America. She has practiced her profession in some of the principal hospitals in this country. Her specialty comprises that class of diseases which the ordinary home doctor fails to cure, such as female diseases, heart diseases, diseases of children and the many special diseases of hidden nature. Her practice is mostly among the plain, hard working people who are unable to come to her city office for treatment; she is reasonable in her charges and very lenient with those who are not able to pay. She is charitable, and it is said has never been known to refuse to treat a patient who is worthy and in need. A number of the important cases that we hereby take the liberty to publish, which might be of interest to some who wish to know more of Dr. Caldwell's great work: Sophia Kran, Albion, Neb., cured of a bad skin disease. Mrs. Lulu Towles, David City, Neb., cured of female trouble and female weakness. Mrs. C. W. Killian, Wakefield, Neb., cured of a tumor and liver and stomach troubles. Mrs. E. A. Studer, Wayne, Neb., cured of female and nervous troubles. Mrs. C. Linn, Hoskins, Neb., cured of ovarian trouble and bladder trouble. F. J. Roh, Albia, Neb., cured of bronchial trouble, enlarged liver and dropsy. Mrs. Minnie Rudat, Columbus, Neb., cured of skin disease and kidney trouble. Mrs. W. D. Burr, David City, Neb., cured of skin disease, nervousness and loss of appetite. Mrs. Chas. Miller, Wayne, Neb., cured of dropsy, kidney and liver troubles and nervousness. She had been troubled for years. Mrs. C. W. Anderson, Norfolk, Neb., cured of general debility, enlarged liver and pain in chest. Mrs. John Bauman, Benton, Neb., cured of bladder trouble and constipation. Mrs. S. P. Amick, Tekamah, Neb., cured of tumor, womb trouble, loss of appetite and constipation.
