

PUBLIC AT POPE'S BIER.

People Permitted to Gaze on Dead Pontiff.

THOUSANDS VIEW THE REMAINS

Franciscan Array Holy Father in Full Canonical Robes—Conclave to Be Held Under Same Regulations as When Leo Was Chosen.

Rome, July 23.—Special to The News: Since early morning an immense throng of people have been passing in and out of St. Peter's taking a last look at the face of the dead pontiff that has been more or less familiar to many of them during life. The jam in the streets in the vicinity of the church edifice is terrific and were it not for the fact that the thoroughfares were early cleared of all vehicles, accidents would have been inevitable.

The bells of St. Peter's have been solemnly tolling their last sad requiem and solemn masses had been said by the church dignitaries.

The body of the late pope rests on a raised catafalque in a position slightly inclined so the face is visible.

Roma, July 23.—The body of Leo XIII now lies in state in the basilica of St. Peter's. The people of Rome and those of all nations now in the Eternal City are being admitted to pay their last farewell. A stout fence five feet high has been constructed to resist the encroachments of the crowds. The fence extends directly across the colonnade and in it are two narrow entrances, which give ready means of controlling the ingress and egress of the throngs. Opportunity for this solemn tribute will end Saturday.

During the day the congregation of cardinals met and decided to hold the conclave under the identical regulations which obtained at the conclave which elected Leo.

Dr. Lapponi, in the course of the day, presented to Cardinal Oreglia a report of the autopsy which was held, which showed that there was no sign of cancer in the pope's body.

The ceremonial last night, when the body was conveyed from the throne room to St. Peter's, was one of the most striking of all the obsequies. The mournful procession gathered around the bier, which was gently lifted by the sedari, who in the lifetime of Leo XIII had carried him in the sedia gestatoria. The dead pontiff was now clad in all the pomp of his holy office. About him had been placed the sacerdotal robes, used only when he celebrated a grand mass. The vestments were those which he wore for the last time in life in the hall of the consistory, when he confirmed the appointments of Archbishops Farley of New York and Quigley of Chicago, June 25 last. The golden mitre, the gilded steel, the white cape, the red chasuble, the pontifical pallium and the papal tunic, all were there. Nothing which was emblematic of the power wielded by the dead man for more than a quarter of a century, and for centuries by his predecessors had been omitted.

Leading the procession as it passed out of the throne room came the grooms, carrying lighted torches. Immediately in front of the bier the pontifical silver cross was held aloft. Behind the bier came the three nephews of the late pope. The United States was represented in the procession by Mgr. Thomas Kennedy, rector of the American college.

The air was heavy with incense from the censers swaying constantly beside the body. The Franciscan penitentiaries still kept up the unceasing refrain of intercession. At the hall of Palafrantiere the cortege came to a standstill. There the cardinals, who had been waiting in the hall of the consistory, took their places immediately behind the nephews. Their scarlet had been put aside for the violet robes, which are only worn when princes of the church are in mourning.

Once more the procession with the bier now flanked by the Swiss guards, moved on. After the cardinals came the whole diplomatic body accredited to the Knights of Malta. No monarch was ever followed to the tomb by a more imposing array, led by the cardinals and prelates and clergy reciting prayers and psalms for the dead as they slowly entered the Sistine chapel, where the chapter and clergy of St. Peter's awaited the procession. The latter formally received and took possession of the body. The final stage of bearing the "prisoner of the vatican" to his resting place then commenced. The moment the flaring torches, which still led the cortege, entered St. Peter's the choir, which was waiting there, commenced to sing in sorrowful cadence, "Liberate Me Domine." Monsignor Carcani, the canon of St. Peter's solemnly sprinkled holy water over Leo's body and pronounced absolution. As it was borne across the threshold the cathedral choir, still singing, took the lead of the now lengthy procession. The intense silence which prevailed was broken only by the chanting, which echoed and re-echoed from the huge dome as the body was borne down the nave to the chapel of the sacrament. In this chapel the body was reverently stretched behind the iron gates and two members of the noble guard took up positions on either side of the bier. The procession then reformed and returned to the vatican, leaving the body of Leo in the greatest church in the world.

It is said that an agreement has been reached between the ecclesiastical and government authorities to have the Italian troops enter St. Peter's should any disturbance occur during the three days that Leo will lie in state in the chapel of the sacrament.

RUSSIA STAYS IN MANCHURIA.

Barracks for Twenty Thousand Troops Ordered at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Manchuria, July 16.—The conference of prominent Russian officials has ended. Exultation over Russia's increasing power in Manchuria was the dominant note in the gathering. The possibility of taking any backward steps is scoffed at if mentioned by outsiders. It was admitted that the war possibility was discussed, but it was denied that was the object of the conference. The evidence of the increase of warlike preparations since the arrival of General Kuropatkin, the minister of war, and of the intention of bringing more troops to Manchuria are abundant. Orders were given the Port Arthur contractors for an immediate supply of building materials for barracks, to accommodate 20,000 soldiers, to be shipped to Harbin.

"OPEN DOOR" IN DANGER

China Refuses to Open Towns in Manchuria.

RUSSIAN TROOPS OCCUPY PORTS

Prince Ching Notifies Minister Conger of Difficulty—Washington Authorities Will Insist Upon Compliance With Agreement.

Peking, July 23.—Prince Ching, the president of the foreign office, has written to United States Minister Conger refusing to open towns in Manchuria. In his letter he dwells upon the impossibility of China opening to foreigners towns which are not in Russian possession, but which are held by Russian troops, and points out the complications which would be likely to follow. It is believed here, however, that a compromise may be reached by including one town—Ta Tung Kao—in the new commercial treaty.

Washington, July 23.—Inasmuch as the Chinese government very recently has expressed its willingness to yield to the desires of the United States for open ports in Manchuria, the officials here are at a loss to understand the communication sent by Prince Ching to Minister Conger refusing this concession. They have received no advice on the subject. The importance of the matter, if it correctly reflects the attitude of the Chinese government, is fully realized in Washington. However, impressed with the heretofore expressed willingness of China to open Manchurian ports, reinforced by the assurance given to this government by Russia along the same lines, the officials continue firm in their belief that the situation will be clarified and that the efforts of the United States be rewarded.

THEY COME FOR HUNDREDS OF MILES TO SEE HER.

Nothing so Wonderful in the Days of Specialism.

Dr. Caldwell.

The success of Dr. Caldwell is attributed to her special study of specialism. Dr. Caldwell, student, phlebotomist and physician of wide reputation, having given her entire time and practice to a line of special diseases, which enables her from long experience in handling these troubles to certainly come forward as a master specialist. Her faculty for mastering disease, her ability to diagnose, and her plan of treatment is not excelled by few other physicians. Dr. Caldwell, although a young woman in life, a plain woman, and one who is used to the ups and downs in life, puts herself on a level with her patients and does not pretend to practice the old plan of fashion, which is to look wise and say nothing. She knows disease; she knows where to look for disease; and the spot where located, and most of all she knows from experience, from what she has done in the past, she can certainly do for others in the future. It is said by Dr. Caldwell's friends that she can diagnose a disease of any patient without asking them a single question, that being the case, she is not likely to doctor them for the wrong ailment; she will not take an incurable disease and lead the patient to believe that she can cure them when there is really no hope for them. Her business is large and she has plenty to do, even, at times, more than she can do, without taking incurable diseases and deceiving her patients.

Dr. Caldwell is a graduate from one of the best schools in America. She has practiced her profession in some of the principal hospitals in this country. Her specialty comprises that class of diseases which the ordinary home doctor fails to cure, such as female diseases, heart diseases, diseases of children and the many special diseases of hidden nature. Her practice is mostly among the plain, hard working people who are unable to come to her city office for treatment; she is reasonable in her charges and very lenient with those who are not able to pay. She is charitable, and it is said has never been known to refuse to treat a patient who is worthy and in need. A number of the important cases that we hereby take the liberty to publish, which might be of interest to some who wish to know more of Dr. Caldwell's great work.
