Boundary Commission Met This Morning in London.

DISPUTE OF LONG STANDING.

Trouble Between Britain and the United States for Many Years. Secretary Root Heads.

London, Sept. 3 .- Special to The News: Te commission appointed under the treaty coucluded last January between Great Britain and the United States to settle if possible the longstanding dispute over the Alaskan boundary met this morning at the British foreign office and formally organized. Those present included the three British commissioners - Lord Alverstone, Sir Louis Jette (lieutenant governor of Quebec) and Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K. C .- and the three American commissioners - Secretary Root, Senator Lodge and Senator Turner. In addition there was present a great array of counsel to present the two sides of the case. The question at issue was not entered into today, the initial session being devoted to the work of organizing and the exchange of courtesies.

The Alaskan boundary dispute is one of long standing. Since 1872 Canada has been calling attention to the city exceeded $2,000,000. question year after year. In 1898 a joint commission of English and-Amer ican representatives tried to settle the quarrel, but failed.

The territory in dispute covers an area of upward of 20,000 square miles. For the most part it is mountainous. but it includes valuable gold mines. The quarrel centers around the question of the whereabouts of the boundary between Alaska and Canada. Originally, Alaska was Russian territory. In 1825 the boundary line was defined, on paper, by a treaty between Russia and Great Britain. In 1867 the United States bought Alaska from the czar, and then the Canadian-Alaskan fronties began to be peopled. As the boundary line by the 1825 treaty had never been properly surveyed, disputes arose between Canada and the owners of Alaska.

Throughout almost its entire length the disputed territory adjoins British Columbia on the west side. The refamous Yukon territory, and includes the eastern boundary of the coast strip the one hundred and forty-first meridian.

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

rofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints, It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.
