

CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED

Norfolk Sugar Factory Quit Running This Morning.

RUN SHORTER THAN USUAL.

Good Campaign While it Lasted, but Did Not Last Long Enough and the Last Sackful of Sugar Was Drawn From Spout at 7:30 this Morning.

[From Tuesday's Daily.] The sugar making campaign of the Norfolk Beet Sugar factory was finished this morning at 7:30 and the wheels were brought to a standstill for the year, to be resumed not before next fall. It is to be understood, however, that there will be considerable work before the season's work will be completed. While no more beets will be run through, there is always an amount of work left over that will keep a portion of the force busy for perhaps another month, but the men who handle the beets will be laid off this morning.

The run has been shorter than usual this season, but it was highly successful while it lasted. The sugar produced was of high grade and the beets yielded a fair amount of sweetness to the various processes.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Byerly left over the Union Pacific Wednesday morning for Kingsbury, Cal., where they go to visit relatives and friends until spring. Before they return they will visit their youngest son, who has a position with ex-Governor Savage of Nebraska, at Eatonville, Wash., about twenty miles from Tacoma. Their many friends will wish them a pleasant visit and a safe return.

The question is often asked why this country does not ship more grain. The answer is found in the fact that the farmers import stock to eat it, and the result is more profit when the stock is marketed. Among the prosperous farmers who do this sort of thing is Sam Kent, Jr., of Kent's Siding, who received three cars of stock cattle this morning from Iowa. After being corn fed for a few months they will bring a nice bunch of money in profits.

MOLASSES FOR CATTLE.

Thomas Payne is Making Interesting Experiment Near Merville.

Cattle owned by Thomas Payne, a stock farmer a half mile west of Merville, will soon be in line for pure food laws.

They are being fed "New Orleans" molasses.

Mr. Payne thinks molasses will prove a cheap and fattening food. But he pays only 13 cents a gallon for it, buying it in carload lots. He says it is a cane product, but at this price this is out of the question. Payne's cattle are trying to fatten on a product of sulphuric acid.

The owner of the cattle maintains that cattle have been fed molasses in England and Germany with success and all the farmers in the community are watching the outcome of the trial.

The spectacle of steers crowding around troughs full of sticky syrup, burrowing into it with their noses, throwing it over their bodies and always sucking it into their mouths with pleasure, is an amusing one. Some of the neighboring farmers have facetiously suggested that Payne really ought to give his cattle corn bread to eat with the syrup.—Sioux City Tribune.

NORFOLK OF PAST AND PRESENT

A Study in the Progress of the City as Shown by Some Ancient Views.

A. J. Durland's Prophecy.

A. J. Durland, who platted and owns The Heights addition to Norfolk, has recently sent out to his friends a left over birds-eye view of the city in 1889, also a left over plat of his addition of that year, and it is with some pride that he calls the attention of his friends to his prophecy at that time that The Heights would in a few years become one of the most desirable residence parts of the town, and anyone at all familiar with Norfolk will readily agree that it has realized his fondest anticipations in regard to the property. The addition is well drained, has beautiful shade trees, well kept streets, and the provision at that time that no houses should be erected at a cost of less than $1,000 has resulted in the building of many beautiful residences greatly in excess of that figure. With Eighth and Ninth streets opened through to the new Northwestern yards he feels justified in making the further prediction that the property south of The Heights will in a few years be just as valuable as The Heights is today.

The birds-eye view of the city, made in 1889, is in great contrast to the same sort of view made in 1884, and shows a wonderful development, but a perspective view of the city made today would be in almost as great a contrast with that last published, and would show a wonderful advancement of the city since that date. The showing of 1889 is a good sized city, and a city of homes, but wonderful development has taken place in the fourteen years that have passed, and a greater home city would be shown by a perspective of today. The greater part of the development has been made in the past two or three years, and more is to follow as certain as the sun continues to shine. Norfolk has never ceased to grow since it started, and it is destined to continue to grow for many years to come. These old perspectives and maps record the growth effectually and it is entertaining to contrast the past with the present through their aid, while it is not difficult to judge of the future as contrasted with the past.

COMPLETING THE CORNICE

Derrick on Government Building Shifted to East Side.

THE CORNICE IS A BEAUTY.

Effect is Pretty and Substantial—Federal Prisoners Will be Confined in One of the Best Located Rooms in the building, in Northwest Corner.

[From Tuesday's Daily.]

The big derrick on top of the United States court house building that hoists the great cornice stones in place has been shifted for the completion of the work. For some time past the big blocks have been placed on the west side and to the center on the north and south walls, and the shift of the hoisting apparatus was made so that the east wall could be finished and the balance of the north and south walls. The cornice on west of the center has been completed and the massive stones have been placed to make a very pretty effect, the red of the pressed brick in the outer walls adding materially to the beauty of the building. The building as far as completed is of most substantial appearance and it is expected that many future generations of Norfolk people will be permitted to look upon its outlines with a feeling of pride, but of course, it is not expected that many generations will pass before there are many other buildings as handsome and substantial in the city.

Prisoners to Have a Choice Corner. In the third story of the building, occupying the northwest corner, is the room where the federal prisoners will be temporarily confined when court is in session in Norfolk.

The grated window looks out over a busy portion of Norfolk avenue and Fourth street, and if the prisoners occupying the cell fall of amusement by watching the passing throng and looking over Norfolk it will not be the fault of the architect, and so far as the location of this room is concerned, may well be envied by the other government officials having office rooms in the building.

W. S. Askwith, a brother of John Askwith of this place, has been appointed commandant of the soldiers' and sailors' home at Grand Island. This is the same Will Askwith who formerly lived about nine miles south and east of Tilden. His preferment will be cause for congratulation on the part of many of the older settlers who respected and admired him for his many excellent attributes.—Tilden Citizen.

FATHER SHYNE GOES TO IOWA

Met Governor Mickey on the Train and Discussed Educational Topics of the Day.

[From Wednesday's Daily.]

After four weeks of mission work in north Nebraska, Rev. Father Shyne, S. J., left Norfolk at 6 o'clock this morning for Creighton university, Omaha. He was accompanied by Rev. Father Thomas Walsh of this city.

Father Shyne was seen by a News reporter last night. He expressed himself as well pleased with his work through this part of the state and as satisfied with what he has accomplished. "My week in Norfolk was a good one. It was the first. I enjoyed the next week at Battle Creek and then spent a few days at Spencer where, in spite of the bitterly cold weather, we had good meetings. At Tilden, during the last week, the town was crowded and half the people who had attended at Battle Creek came up for the Tilden services."

This is the longest time Father Shyne ever spent in Nebraska. He has visited every section of the country and goes from Omaha to Lansing, Iowa. From there again he goes to Memphis, Tenn., to continue the work. It is said by some who attended at Tilden that the early morning mass was attended better at Tilden than at any other place. Farmers drove in for miles to attend the early service, many of them leaving their homes at 4 o'clock.

Rev. Father Walsh of Norfolk accompanied Father Shyne. Leaving Tilden Monday morning they came to Battle Creek where mass was said for the souls of the relatives of Battle Creek folk.

On the train to Battle Creek, Father Shyne met Governor Mickey and they engaged in a discussion over the educational problems of the day. And the strange feature of it all was, says one who was on the train, that the Jesuit and the Methodist agreed on the fundamental principles precisely.

Inter-Denominational Conference. Rev. F. P. Wigton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, is arranging for an inter-denominational evangelistic conference to be held in this city on the 15th and 16th. A speaker is expected to be present from the Omaha Theological seminary, and a prominent minister from Beatrice is also expected to attend. Ministers are to be invited from surrounding towns and given free entertainment while they are in the city.

DISTRICT COURT ADJOURNS

No Jury Cases Heard in Madison County.

THREE DIVORCES ARE GRANTED.

Injunction Against C. W. LeMont Made Perpetual—Libel Suit Goes Over—Monday Afternoon Memorial to the Late Judge Robinson.

Madison, Neb., Dec. 2.—Special to The News: District court, presided over by Judge Boyd, adjourned sine die yesterday afternoon after a session lasting but a day and a half, during which no jury cases were tried, but some formal decrees and orders were taken in equity cases.

Divorces were granted to E. A. Beeler of Norfolk, Edith May Durey who lives southeast of Norfolk and Mrs. Hale of Norfolk.

The injunction secured by W. W. Roberts against C. W. LeMont, restraining him from doing an insurance business, was made perpetual.

The libel suit against W. N. Huse, publisher of the Norfolk News, instituted by T. J. Shelby of Ponca for $6,000 damages, goes over to the next term of court with several other cases.

Monday afternoon was largely devoted to memorializing the late Congressman John S. Robinson, who at one time served on the district bench. Resolutions were adopted and remarks eulogistic of Mr. Robinson were made by ex-Senator Allen, his former law partner, W. M. Robertson, E. P. Weatherby, M. D. Tyler and Isaac Powers.

BOARD COMES TO LOOK OVER SITE

State Architect Tyler Returns to Lincoln and Board Will be Here Today or Tomorrow.

[From Wednesday's Daily.] After giving a day to reviewing the conditions at the site of the Norfolk hospital for the insane, State Architect Tyler returned to Lincoln, with the promise that he would be a frequent visitor in Norfolk in the future until everything is in first class shape for the rehabilitation of the institution. There is much work to be done on the plans in conforming them to the requirements of their surroundings, but he hopes to have them completed this month so that the bids may be asked with the beginning of the year.

The board of public lands and buildings is expected here tomorrow to see what may be done toward the pushing forward of the work, and will probably give the site a thorough inspection so that their action may be undertaken with a full knowledge of all the requirements and circumstances.

The News that the jury was discharged, he returned home.

Mrs. Chas. Brown of Butte, Mont., is a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Boeck, and is renewing acquaintance with old Norfolk friends.

Some of the merchants are already enjoying a lively demand for Christmas goods for this early in the season, and are working overtime to get ready their display in order for the early shoppers, who have relatives and friends at a distance to remember.

The temperature this morning was registered at but two degrees above zero, as cold as it has been during the winter, and those who were up early enough found the town and vicinity covered by a frosty fog that gave the cold shivers and red noses and pink cheeks to the people. Frost crystals were formed on the trees and wires, making a pretty effect.

At the meeting of the Queen City hose company, held last night, the committee having in charge the Thanksgiving dance made report, that showed receipts of $81 for the treasury after all the expenses of the ball had been paid, and the company decided that a portion of such expense should be to reimburse the committee for the time they had put in for the benefit of the entertainment, besides a treat for other members interested. It was a good balance and the company feels grateful to those who contributed to their success.

LAUNDRY WAGON IN A RUNAWAY

Den Craven's Laundry Wagon Gets Mixed up With a Street and is Smashed.

[From Wednesday's Daily.]

One of the delivery wagons which is driven from Dan Craven's laundry, will carry no more clean shirts to customers. The trouble lies in a runaway and the wagon lies in the street as a result. The animals became frightened in Norfolk avenue and the fireworks exploded. About a minute later there were four wheels whirling down the avenue in an indiscriminate heap and the big box full of well washed garments was put out of business.
