ON BATTLE CREEK ELECTION.

Village Clerk Kilburn Refused to Prepare for an Election and a WILL BE LATEST AND BEST. Mandamus Was Secured Compelling the Holding of One Tomorrow.

(From Monday's Daily ! Perhaps in no town in the state does as peculiar a condition of affairs confront the voters at the election tomorrow as at Battle Creek, twelve miles west of the city. There will be an election of village trustees there tomorrow but it was only brought by action of the district court of Madison county in session in the waiting room of the Northwestern depot at South Norfolk Saturday noon and only blank ballots will be used at the election.

The voters of the town have placed but one ticket in the field, but the village clerk, H. H. Kilburn , held that their action was taken too late and refused to take the preliminaries toward the holding of an election and no election would have been held but for the action of the citizens of that town who communicated with District Judge J. F. Boyd of Neligh and secured an extraordinary session of the district court at the Junction between trains, and summoned witnesses to appear at the hearing which was for the purpose of securing a mandamus, compelling the holding of an election tomorrow as the law provides. The court held that an election must take place, but decided that the village clerk could not be compelled to have the names of the candidates placed in nomination printed on the ticket, but if enough of the voters will write in the names of the men placed in nomination they will be elected, and the old board will not hold over as would have been the case if the village clerk had not been served with papers commanding his action in the matter.

Among those who came down from Battle Creek to attend the sitting of court were T. D. Preece, M. G. Doer-Danford Taylor, W. E. Hoover, Frank Zimmerman, Owen O'Neill and F. E. Martin.

The citizens caucus placed in nomination by petition the names of M. G. Doering, W. L. Boyer and T. D. Preece, but objection was made by Fred Schereger and filed with Village Clerk Kilburn last Monday, the grounds for the objection being that the petition was not signed by the legal number of voters and that the business address of each signer was not given. The village clerk gave the case a hearing Wednesday afternoon and after the examination of witnesses the objections were sustained. The petitioners were represented by M. C. Hazen of this city and after the decision of the village clerk arrangements were at once made to bring the case before Judge Boyd and the election ordered. It now remains for the remonstrators to work up support for the present board, or the probability is that the Citizens' ticket will be elected.

Clerk Kilburn was represented by Judge Powers of this city. Reasons for the objection were given the Battle Creek Enterprise as follows:

"I have no personal enmity toward any of the candidates. A number of residents in the south part of town, including myself, had reached an agreement with the present board of trustees whereby the much needed ditching on the road abutting on our property might be done. We had subscribed money for this purpose and have no assurance, in case of the election of three new members, that we would get our just demands." Mr. Scheerger added, however, that he would withdraw all objections when assured that these candidates would carry out the plans of the old board in regard to the ditch.

The machinery at present in use is not worn out, but since it was placed a number of years ago there have been many improvements made on milling machinery, and the Norfolk company propose to have the best and latest.

be unrivalled by any milling plant

The machinery has been ordered from the Ellis-Challmer company at Milwaukee, Wis., one of the largest and best known makers of such machinery in the world, and is expected to arrive at any time. After it is received in Norfolk the mill will be closed down and a large force of men will be set to work installing the new plant and making necessary repairs about the building. The work of installing the machinery will be crowded along as rapidly as possible so that there will not need be an unusual delay in filling the many orders that are on the books of the company. With this equipment of new machinery the mill will be in better shape than ever before to handle the large and growing demand for its products.
