David B. Hill pronounces it an ideal candidate on an ideal platform, and that is enough to queer the whole proposition with a large number of voters.

The indications are that politics will now be buzzing around very lively in every state, county and precinct. Judge Parker has spoken—what more is there to wait for?

The Oakland Independent says that it will not hereafter notice games of baseball played on Sunday, which is nothing if not a serious blow to Sunday baseball in that immediate locality.

Canada has taken a swipe at the American trusts by passing through the house of commons a bill aimed directly at the tobacco combine of this country and calculated to favor the independent manufacturer.

At the rate the railroads are throwing their box cars onto Nebraska sidings there cannot be much doubt that these important carriers expect a big business when it comes to moving the grain crop of the state.

In deciding to support Mr. Parker for the presidency has Mr. Bryan forgotten the "common people," or can he be by some hocus pocus manipulation of his thinking apparatus imagine that August Belmont and others of his class are now "common people?"

The fusionists are entitled to considerable anxiety between now and the time for the calling of the convention to order tomorrow, but the indications are that they have everything all fixed and that the unruly objectors will be promptly and effectually dealt with.

Everytime the price of anthracite coal raises ten cents a ton the miners get a raise of three per cent in wages—if they are working, but the operators seem to have taken the precaution to see that there are few miners working when the price is most likely to advance.

It will look funny for the argument that the democrats have been using against the republicans on Wall street influence for the past two campaigns to be thrown back in their faces now, and with a good deal more pertinency than when the democrats used it. But it is possible.

The Nebraska democrats may take exceptions to what the republicans may say regarding the Wall street domination of the party, but they will hardly go back on Mr. Bryan to the extent of declaring that he didn't know what he was talking about when he said that the party is under the control of the Wall street element.

The British in looking over the Thibetan country think that they have found an ideal agricultural district, but it will be a long time before it is ready for any immigration, and in the meantime the farmers will make no mistake in pulling a fortune out of Nebraska soil to pay for their passage there if they decide to go.

The democrats should be able to extract some consolation from the fact that Judge Parker is reputed to be an expert swimmer. By reason of this achievement the sage of Esopus may be able to prevent an entire and irrevocable submerging when the tidal wave of republicanism sweeps across the country early in November.

A recent notable change from democracy to republicanism in the west is that of Olaf Eldman, a prominent young attorney of Brookings, S. D., who was nominated for attorney general by the democratic convention recently held at Aberdeen. He has embodied his reasons for the change in a letter to the democratic state chairman.

Nebraska would be pleased to herd in this state during the next few weeks all the Thomases who doubt that the state will ever produce crops worth mentioning. If they have any better prospects anywhere the Nebraskans will have to be shown, and it is certain that there are no places where land is cheaper than here that can raise better crops.

Martin Langdon, chairman of the Douglas county populist committee, resigned at a recent meeting of the committee, after it was seen that fusion was favored, and announced his intention of voting for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. It all seems to tend in that direction, and fusion or no fusion, the republican majorities in this state this fall will undoubtedly be the largest ever recorded.

Tom Watson of Georgia is to be with the populists when they meet in state convention at Lincoln on Wednesday and it is intimated that whether he accepts his nomination for the presidency or not depends somewhat on the attitude of the party here regarding fusion. He does not propose to run alone and if his supporters jump into the gold standard democratic wagon he is likely to jump the job of trying for the presidency.

It has been rumored for some time that the Standard Oil company was one of the recent trusts to come out in support of the democratic ticket, and the demands that have been made for oil to pour on the troubled democratic waters in all parts of the country is indication that the trust in looking for new and profitable business has not made a mistake in acknowledging the democrats as the most likely patrons.

The country has made remarkable advancement during the time it has been under republican rule. This may have been the result of the republican policies and it may have been just a species of good fortune, as is alleged by the democrats. If the latter, few voters will care to fly in the face of fortune and change the result, and if the former there is no question of what the majority of the voters should do, so that from either viewpoint republican success is the thing.

If the republicans of New York really want Mr. Root for governor they should go after him with the same determination the republicans of the west went after and got Mr. Roosevelt when they wanted him to run for the office of vice president. It is not a matter of doubt that every man can be influenced, and if the New York republicans really must have the ex-secretary and go after him properly they will bring him safely into the gubernatorial nomination regardless of his present announced preferences.

The Cleveland democrats have not waited long enough for the people to forget the last democratic administration if they wish to win out at the coming election. They would have made no mistake in leaving the party in the hands of Mr. Bryan for four years longer to permit the lapse of memory on the part of the voters to get in its work. The rule of '92-'96 is altogether too recent. The old voters will need to die off and a new generation become of voting age, who knew nothing of those times, before democracy can hope for any large degree of success.

Tomorrow the question of whether or not there will be a populist party in Nebraska deserving of the name will be answered by the delegates, and the prospect at this time is that there will not, but that it will be a non-principled, anything-for-office affair that will not appeal to the honest voters of the state. The way the populists have been acting in the county conventions to name delegates is that they care very little what the result is. They have been pretty well satisfied with the existing order of things and even with a straight out and out, honest populist ticket in the field the probability is that many of them will vote the republican ticket.

The Neligh Yeoman does not believe there is any principle involved whether the populists accept fusion or not, and thinks it purely a matter of policy, but it lays it down flat that the democrats should understand that no Parker democrat can be nominated for governor by both parties and demands that the candidate for governor shall be a straight populist. Why, on the Yeoman's own platform, should the candidate for governor not be a democrat, and a Parker democrat at that, if the delegates decide that "policy" demands such action? If there is no principle involved, the best man and the best vote getter should be chosen regardless of his politics. In other words, the man who might stand a chance of getting the office is the one to select regardless of his beliefs. The Yeoman is contradictory when it demands a populist nominee, says that no principle is involved, but wants the most politic move made. As for getting Parker democrat votes for a straight populist, it could hardly be done, and if the populists are in for fusion to get the most votes they should not begin laying down any fool specifications that the delegates might not think it policy to follow.

The republican party has been the one from which all the important reforms of the country have come and it is its proper field to undertake the movement that will bring the people from under the control of the trusts. It has been swinging about to that point of view very rapidly in recent years as the trusts have been gaining in influence and power and the trusts have been steadily swinging away since his name was mentioned for the presidency. Through that party they will appeal to the people for the privilege of drawing the noose tighter, but there is reason to doubt their ability to secure sufficient influence and with another republican victory it is safe to believe that they will feel the effects of judicious legislation for their control enforced by a fearless administration in the interests of the people. It will be a mighty battle when the time comes, but the trusts have themselves thrown down the gauntlet by refusing to believe that it is right that the laws governing their action should be enforced and their self assumed privileges curtailed. The people must win and they will win if they keep their heads and refuse to be influenced or driven by the Wall street fellows. The capitalists have some of the best men in every community out in their interests and will make subtle appeals for support of the democratic ticket, but the good judgment of the American people should be depended upon to safely carry the country through the ordeal.

The populists should not be cajoled into again fusing on the democratic promise that fusion can carry Nebraska this fall except on the national ticket, and least of all the legislative ticket. There may be republicans and quite a number of them who are not partial to some of the present state officials, but this will not apply to the national or the legislative tickets, and the same politics that will influence them to carry the state for Roosevelt will dictate that the legislature should go republican that a republican senator might be elected to support the president. A member of the republican state central committee has recently shown what an extravagant pipe dream the fusionists are dreaming when they claim to see a possibility of carrying the legislature. The fact that they concede the state to Roosevelt is in itself cause sufficient to concede the legislative ticket to the republicans. The figures show that in the last legislature there were 105 republicans and twenty-eight fusionists, and the returns show that the fusionists might be conceded every republican member, or twenty-nine of them, who were elected by less than 200 votes, and still the combined parties would lack nineteen members of controlling the legislature, and few of them when the matter is presented to them in this light will be so foolish as to continue in the belief that the legislature would go for fusion. It is the biggest sort of a pipe dream to believe that the state would give a large majority for Roosevelt and the republicans fail to elect the local men who are nominated for the legislature and by their personal work contribute to the success of the party ticket. There might be enough republicans to set a seal of disapproval on one or two state officers to elect fusionists to their places, but when it comes to the national and legislative tickets only one outcome can in fairness be foretold, and that is for republican success. The Parker democrats who offered Mr. Bryan the senatorship from Nebraska were either applying their soft soap indiscriminately or knew nothing of the situation in Nebraska on the legislative ticket.

If Judge Parker was not handicapped by having both Wall street and Tammany hooked on to his cart, he might be able to make a great race with the start he has made.

Judge Parker has finally spoken and there is relief in the hearts of the politicians who have been waiting so long to know what the candidate the democrats have named might stand for.

It required several columns to contain Mr. Parker's "yes" to the democratic committee. Almost any girl would have found the three letters amply sufficient on a far more momentous question.

The democrats can now continue their negotiations with Mr. Tibbles looking toward the full and complete consummation of the fusion program. Perhaps, however, they will not consider it worth while to bring him in to the fold.

Mrs. Nation has been heard from again. Her latest and by far most sensible move was to contribute out of her earnings $1,500 for a home for the wives of drunken husbands at Topeka. It was a politic move and should be the means of still further increasing her income.

The populists who fused will find out the price of their devotion to the democratic cause when they examine the returns on the state ticket this fall. They have not yet learned that a democrat will do things for the populists in convention that they will not consent to sustain at the polls, but they should wait for the returns in November to be shown.

THE PARKER ADDRESS.

Judge Parker's speech of acceptance is now before the people for their consideration, and it must be admitted even by his political enemies that he has made one of the ablest presentations of his position ever made by a democratic nominee. The beauty of the whole address is that it is clean. The republican party and its leaders are dealt with in a manner that cannot be productive of ill feeling for the democratic nominee, and were Mr. Parker, the man, alone concerned in the present conflict, as judged by his address, it might well add to his strength, but there are other considerations. In the first place Mr. Roosevelt is not less dignified than he, and the prospects for a clean and elevating campaign are flattering indeed, and between the two gentlemen in this particular there is no need of a change. Those who have desired radical changes and fiery denunciations of such evils as exist will be the most disappointed in Parker. He is very mild and conservative in his treatment of men and measures. Judge Parker is positively in favor of the gold standard, and on one or two other questions he speaks out emphatically, but much of his address gives no indication to the public at large what his attitude on various interesting and important issues might be. As for the gold standard, there is no need of a change. The present administration is as unalterably in favor of gold as the monetary standard of the country as he. On the trust evil the judge gives no promise of improvement. He would not change the present laws and while admitting that vigorous enforcement is needed he does not state that he would fill the position as the anti-trust people would have him. On the tariff he can promise no reform for four years to come, and only on the Philippine question does he seem inclined to take any radical steps, giving indication that Mr. Cleveland's policy of dealing with outlying territory would be his, and that he would cut the Philippines adrift at the earliest possible opportunity. This position was a leading issue in the last campaign, and in the campaign of twelve years ago, and on both occasions the people emphatically spoke out for giving these islands all the benefits of wise American direction in building them up to a state of higher civilization and more advanced government. Mr. Parker's criticism that this government is not doing all that it can for the Filipinos is an admission of American incompetency and he slanders a people that are praised in other portions of his address. His statement that he cannot accept another nomination sounds all right but it would have had more strength if given utterance after first being assured that he would have a first term. It is a pleasing address, but there is no convincing argument that America needs a change from Roosevelt to Parker, and when consideration is given to whom Mr. Parker's closest political admirers and advisers are, there will be every reason to believe that the people will be disinclined to make any experiments on the question.

OLLIE CAGLE IS BETTER

FRIENDS FEEL ENCOURAGED WITH CONDITION TODAY.

HE IS A ROYAL HIGHLANDER

And Members of His Lodge at Pierce Have Already Raised $200 With a Possibility of $1,000 With Which to Prosecute the Assailant.

Ollie Cagle, in his rooming house on South Fifth street, is a little improved in condition today and there is a little more encouragement among his friends and relatives who have feared all of the week that he might die.

Pierce people and Norfolk friends as well will be glad to learn that the man who struck Cagle has been apprehended by Chief of Police Kane. That officer left Norfolk yesterday noon alone. He had planned to take with him one of the young men who was with Cagle on the night of the wounding, but took the noon train out yesterday over the Northwestern. He arrived at York last night and within a few hours had his man in a steel cage.

Cagle is a member of the Royal Highlanders and it is said that the lodge in Pierce has already raised $200 and can raise $1,000 for the prosecution of the man who struck Cagle.

SAYS PIERCE IS INDIGNANT.

The Reason for Not Publishing Story Have Been Told Already.

A. Cross, of Pierce, and Woods Cones were in Norfolk yesterday on business. According to Mr. Cross there is a belief in Pierce that the matter of the wounding of Ollie Cagle was unpublished because of a desire on the part of The News to suppress the matter.

Having read The News of Wednesday, which explained the reason why the story was not printed until it was—that reason being that the story was kept quiet and was not known by the newspaper until it was printed—it is to be presumed that Pierce people understand the circumstance. Being reasonable, they can blame no one but the physicians and police, who kept the matter quiet, not even telling Cagle's own relatives in Norfolk. Mr. Cross says that people in Pierce thought Dr. Alden had requested that the story be kept quiet by the paper. That report is a mistake.

Suffice it to say, The News would have published the story if the matter had been reported, just as it did publish the facts when they were brought to view. There could have been no reason in suppressing a matter of live news like that. If there had been, the story of the shooting of Louis Aultman would probably have been kept dark. Pierce people are reasonable. They certainly understand.

"We all appreciate the service you are giving us," said Mr. Cross, in conclusion. "Although I am a democrat, I read your paper first of all."

CROPS IN BOYD COUNTY

OATS YIELDING WELL, FIFTY TO EIGHTY BUSHELS.

WHEAT IS POOR AND LOW GRADE

Average Yield is From Six to Ten Bushels Per Acre, With Occasionally Fifteen—Threshing in Progress. Corn Will be First Class.

Anoka, Neb., Aug. 12.—Special to The News: Threshing is in full progress hereabout. Oats are a good crop, yielding from fifty to eighty bushels. Wheat is generally poor, going from six to ten bushels, with an occasional field yielding fifteen. Most of it is low grade.

Now that the spell of cool weather is over, prospects are good for a late frost and an abundant corn crop, which is now very promising.

Beck Back in Pierce.

Pierce, Neb., Aug. 12.—Special to The News: Hon. H. S. Beck, formerly president of the Pierce County bank but who recently severed his connection with that institution and moved away, returned to Pierce and will remain until after election. This is looked upon as a shrewd move as Mr. Beck wields influence in politics and as this is presidential year, it will cause the democrats and populists no small amount of worry. Mr. Beck represented the district in the state legislature in days gone by and has frequently been chairman of the county central committee.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.
