

GETS CAGLE'S ASSAILANT

JOE SCOTT, MEMBER OF YORK RUNNING TEAM, ARRESTED.

BROUGHT TO NORFOLK TONIGHT

The Fellow Who so Brutally Wounded Ollie Cagle of Pierce That Death May Result, is Captured in York by Chief Kane of Norfolk.

York, Neb., Aug. 14.—Special to The News: Joe Scott, a member of the York running team who went to Norfolk last week, and who is believed to be, beyond doubt, the assailant of Ollie Cagle, the young man from Pierce who was struck down by so vicious a blow from which he may die, has been arrested here by Chief of Police Martin Kane of the Norfolk force.

Captured at his home in North York shortly before midnight last night, Scott was brought to the city jail by the officers and remained behind the bars over night. Today, in charge of the Norfolk chief, he left the city for Norfolk, where he will have to stand trial for the brutal wounding of Ollie Cagle. In case the wound on the top of Cagle's head proves fatal, Scott will have a decidedly serious charge to face.

Scott is very sore at being arrested. He was ugly in his cell last night. He lives a mile from the business portion of the city and was taken by surprise when the Norfolk officer, clad in citizen's clothing, approached the house.

Reach Norfolk Tonight.

Chief Kane and his prisoner, who has been a much wanted man in Norfolk all of the week, will reach Norfolk tonight at 7:30 over the Northwestern railroad. Scott will be placed immediately in jail.

It had been feared by the officers from Norfolk that possibly their man might, when he learned of the serious condition of Cagle, get out of the country. He has lived in York for a long time.

"There is no question in the world but that this is the right man," said Chief Kane. "We have evidence galore on that point. There is no getting around it. This is the fellow who struck Ollie Cagle."

While Scott does not absolutely admit that he struck Ollie Cagle, yet there is so strong a chain of evidence wound about him that the police consider him the man wanted, without a shadow of doubt. In making the arrest, Chief Kane of Norfolk was assisted by the York officers, and the evidence which was gathered altogether makes them think that they have the fellow cinched.

Little had been said about the matter in York. The running team had kept the slugging very quiet. When the Norfolk officer arrived, however, the local police knew what he wanted and it was no work to dig out evidence which they think will convict.

Joe Scott is a man about twenty-seven or twenty-eight years old. He works in a machine foundry here and has, consequently, a powerfully muscular arm. That is why the blow has been so terrific in its effect.

The weather man has come forward with the very proper sort of weather to assist in ripening the corn crop. It is the opinion of a close observer of crop conditions that the recent hail helped rather than damaged the corn crop, by retarding the growth of leaves and contributing strength to the stalk and ears. Some farmers strip the leaves from the corn for fodder and to help development of the ear at this season of the year, but for the farmers in this section the hail storm did something in that direction.

Only three weeks remain until the opening of the public schools in Norfolk and in the meantime the pupils will exert themselves to enjoy the tail end of their long vacation to the utmost. About the same time the young men and women who have completed their education as far as the public schools are concerned are making preparations to enter college, and the prospects are that Norfolk will be as well represented as usual at the higher institutions of learning. The state university will doubtless claim a number and other colleges of note will have additions to their student roll from this city.

MAN WHOSE GRIP WAS STOLEN, IS HEARD FROM.

WOULD COME BACK TO TOWN

The Individual for Whom Louis Aultman, the Young Thug Who Was Killed Here, Was Arrested, Gives His Permanent Denver Address.

[From Saturday's Daily.]

Dan Dee has been heard from. He promises to return to Norfolk if he is needed, for the trial of Charles Pilger August 25 for the killing of Louis Aultman, the Boston crook.

Dan Dee is the man from Denver whose grip was stolen. He was the only eye witness to the shooting and it was for him that the arrest was made. He has written a letter to Officer Pilger, which is as follows:

"Denver, Aug. 9.—C. H. Pilger: Dear friend.—Yours received yesterday. Glad to hear from you. Also received copy of papers. In the event that you should have any trouble you can rest assured that I will come at any time, as in doing so I would be doing what is right. From start to finish you gave the fellow every consideration—more than he was deserving of. At that there are people in the world that would be only too glad to see you suffer and would gladly swear themselves black in the face to try and convict you for doing your duty as an officer. We all know there is a certain class that hate the law as well as any officer that tries to do his duty in trying to enforce the law.

"Assuring you that you can depend on me to tell the straight facts of the case, which can only be favorable to you as you only done your duty, I remain, your friend, promising to respond if called upon. A letter to 302 Quincy block will always find me even if I am out of town."

"Always your friend, "Dan Dee."

Dan Dee, it has been learned, was a roulette wheel man in Bonesteel and the batteries were, no doubt, for the purpose of controlling the wheel.

JO SCOTT IS NOW IN JAIL

MAN ACCUSED OF STRIKING OLLIE CAGLE OF PIERCE.

HE WILL MAKE NO STATEMENT

"If You Want to Know Whether or Not I Deny That I Hit That Man," Says Scott, "You'll Have to Wait Till the Trial Comes Off."

[From Saturday's Daily.]

Handcuffed and in charge of Chief of Police Martin Kane, Joseph Scott of York, a member of the champion running team, accused of striking Ollie Cagle on the last rough night of the Nebraska state tournament, was brought back to Norfolk last night to stand trial. If Cagle should die the charge will be for murder. What it will be should Cagle recover has not yet been determined.

Scott is now locked up in the city jail here. He is rather sullen about his arrest. He has little to say. Asked as to what defense he would make at his hearing, he snapped back, in a surly way, "Well, if you want to know that you'll have to wait till the time comes."

"Will you deny that you struck Cagle?" was questioned.

"I will not say," said he.

Kane Sure of Man.

Chief Kane is positive in his own mind that Scott is the right man. He says that two eye witnesses on the York team, who stood by and saw the whole affair, assured him that he had the right man and said that they would testify to that if subpoenaed.

On the train Scott, when mention was made of the matter, said, "I'd rather not talk about it."

Story of the Capture.

Scott was found in bed at his home. He was completely surprised when the officers arrived. He had not been reading the papers and therefore did not know that the Pierce man was dangerously hurt. If he had been a reading man he might have secured his liberty. Investments in daily papers often give returns in more ways than one.

Accompanied by the York county sheriff, Chief Kane went to the home of Scott in North York. The sheriff knocked. Scott opened the door. Kane entered and read the warrant. For the first time the possibility that he might be a murderer, suddenly came over Scott. He turned as pale as a sheet. He was "all in."

Locked in jail that night, he was taken back home yesterday morning to get a change of clothing. His wife shrieked and moaned. She was hysterically affected.

"I'll have to go back to Norfolk for hitting that man," said Scott to his wife, departing.

Put in Irons.

Leaving York, the prisoner was put in handcuffs. He resented this. "I would rather have a bullet in my head than leave York in Irons," he said. But in Irons he left York for all of that.

On the train the handcuffs were removed. At Fremont again they were locked around the wrists. On the train again they were removed and the prisoner slept. When Norfolk was reached, the fellow was taken in a cab to the city jail and locked in. An immense mob, who had read the evening paper, awaited with curious eyes the coming of Scott. A little later he was given supper.

His brother-in-law, W. W. Wait of York accompanies Scott. He is here to get the young man back home on bail, if possible.

"What will your defense be?" was asked of Wait.

"They will have to prove that Scott did the striking," he said. "I don't know whether he did or not. I have not asked him. But several men in York told me he was not the man. Several others said he was."

York attorneys will be here by Thursday to defend Scott.

Kane's Work.

Kane worked on a foundation of little fact and landed his man in quick time. He left Norfolk with no more evidence than had been gathered by The News.

"All that I knew," said the chief, "when I left Norfolk, was what The News had found out for me. The evidence gathered by your representative at Madison and here was the best and only definite clue I had. I was up against a serious proposition. I didn't know but that the assailant might be a professional, who had long since returned to an eastern home. I built railroads from Omaha to New York in my imagination."

Lucky Strike.

At Fremont the officer, in citizen's garb, made a lucky strike. As he sat in the station, a stranger asked him where he was from. "From Norfolk," said Kane.

"So?" said the stranger. "I understand a fellow named Scott, on the York team, struck a fellow in Norfolk pretty hard."

Kane said nothing. When he got off the train in York night before last, in the darkness, he met the sheriff, and asked for Scott. The sheriff had heard a little of the affair and there seemed to be no doubt as to the person. They all said it was Scott.

And within an hour Scott was in jail.

Scott is a young man, comparatively. He is perhaps twenty-nine. He is not tall, but he is well built.

Blow Under Chin.

An eye witness to the event at York told Kane that the blow from which Cagle suffers, was struck under the chin.

"Scott was not the first man in front of Cagle," says the eye witness, according to Kane. "He was the second. He struck a blow under the chin, from which Cagle went straight up in the air, falling on the cement walk, striking upon the top of his head."

Are You Going to the World's Fair?

If so, you should take along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The hot weather, fatigue and change of drinking water and diet are almost certain to produce diarrhoea, and when you have this remedy at hand you can check it at once. If you wish to buy it while there you can get it at any drug store in St. Louis and at the Inside Inn Drug Store. For sale by Leonard, the druggist.

If you have a horse or a mule or a cow or a horse to trade make your offer in The News want column.
