DAY SPENT WITH THE DUSKY BARE-LIMMED FILIPINOS.

THEY ARE NATURAL MUSICIANS

Plan Good Music With Training, But Native Drums are Favorites With the Uninformed-Man Was Looking for the Gondola Cage for a Pair.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21,-It was just as we were approaching the Bridge of Spain that leads to the Walled City of the Philippine reservation that we met him. He wore a slouch white hat and a face that reminded me of the late Sol Smith Russell. He was tall, angu lar and gaunt and his wife, a patient meek little body, trudged along after him. It was clear that she was only an appendix and not even a vermiform one at that, for she was no trouble maker. He had tried it on several of the uniformed young gentlemen known as Jefferson Guards but got no satisfaction, and so perceiving what he mistook for a look of intelligence upon our face he inquired:

"Can you tell us where the gondola Man like, John began fumbling the leaves of his "official guide" to locate the gondola cage, but with a woman's sympathetic intuition I quickly perceived that the old man from Arkansas had been imposed upon and I said:

"No; there is no such thing on the grounds as a gondola cage." Whereupon a look of sadness came over his features as he said: "Awfully sorry to hear that, We have a couple of rabbits at home and I promised the boys I would get them a male and female gondola if they could be found.

And he was from New York statenot Arkansas.

Having sniffed the smoke of the Boe war it was hard to get John interested in the meek and docile Filipino, although Jane, who had heard of their fondness for dog meat and of their great aversion to clothing was crazy to see them. And po peace triumphed over war. The Philippine reservation is a great exposition in itself, worth centing thousands of miles to see. It were shopping in the city Saturday. cost over a million dollars, embraces 70,000 exhibits and covers a tract of Goods company has returned to her 47 acres. More than cleven hundred duties after a two-weeks' vacation native Filipinos are gathered in villa- spent in St. Louis. ges in bamboo houses built by their own hands, all illustrating the employments, diversions and social customs which they follow in their native land The reservation is a combination of wooded hills, valleys and lakes and is impressively picturesque.

As we entered the Visavan village we saw a Filipino boy astride a "water friends at Marietta, Ohio. buffalo," called by the natives "timarao." riding toward us and the measured ding-dang-dong of many tomtoms fell upon our ears. The Filipino loves his tom-tom. He will beat it all day long. There are several varieties of this instrument running from the deep-sounding copper kettle-shaped terday. Mr. Steen and Col. Simpson drum to the wooden key with skin were in the same regiment in the groups of these tom-tom players all over the reservation scattered through the five villages of the Visayans, Moros Bagobos, Negritos and Igorot.

The Filipino is musical clean through. The long stick with a knife and is ornamented with feathers. While | weeks digging he makes music with the bells and he dances to the music. In the Visayan village we heard music by a Visayan orchestra of 15 pieces, as beautiful music as you could hear in Chicago or New York. Evidences of an advanced civilization are seen on every hand in this village. There are woodcarvers, and makers of embroidery hats, canes and novelties. The brighteyed, laughing Visayan maidens weave beautiful cloth with strands of pineapple fiber.

We were standing in the Bagobo village and I noticed that John's eyes R. of which he is chaplain. were fixed upon a comely bare-limbed tom-tom. Every line of her superb every movement was graceful and captivating.

John refused to budge. He was glued to the spot. "Who is the young lady beating the tom-tom?" I inquired of one of the soldiers near by.

"That lady is a man," said the soldier. "His name is Bulon and he is chief of 2,500 Bagobos. He is 19 years old and his hair is three feet long." And we moved on toward the village of the dog-eating Igorot and the headhunting Bontoes. T. A. D.

NEBRASKA HAS COAST WEATHER

Another Day of the Fog and Dampness Peculiar to Coast Regions. Another of those foggy, murky nornings, sultry and warm, was the feature of the weather today, as it has been for several days past. Those who have experienced the weather on the coasts, both here and in Europe, say that it is much like the weather at those points, and it has been designated as a London fog. With only three days of the month remaining it seems quite possible that September is to pass away without a killing frost, and for another fall Nebraska is to become natural and allow vegetation to die away without a sudden freeze-up as has been the custom for the past several seasons. The leaves are falling quite rapidly and all vegetation seems to have pretty much ceased its growth, and corn has been ripening rapidly, and a bumper crop of mammoth ears are almost ready for the barvest. It will take a frost or a freeze-up to place the crop in fit condition for the crib. but the farmers are not in a hurry for big manufacturing company, to look that event as they expect fine weather
