BURGLAR AT BATTLE CREEK

ROBBER'S TEAM RUNS AWAY, RETURNING TO TOWN.

BRINGING THE STOLEN GUNS

The Hardware Store of L. F. Merz at Battle Creek Was Entered and the Goods Were Dumped into a Livery Rig—Searching Now.

[From Saturday's Daily.]
Battle Creek, Neb., Nov. 12.—Special to The News: The hardware store of L. F. Merz of this place was robbed last night in a peculiar way. The burglar hired a livery team, drove up to the rear of the store, the driver accompanying him, loaded his stolen guns, cartridges and knives into the wagon box and drove away, into the country. Approaching the home of a young woman with whom he is alleged to have been in love, dogs were turned on the fellow, one of the animals bit the robber's horse, the team became frightened and ran back to Battle Creek, returning much of the stolen property and the livery driver. The burglar himself was left in the country and has not been apprehended. Trains passing through this morning were searched as the operator at Meadow Grove declared a man answering the description had entered the station there at about 4 o'clock today.

The thief is a man who is known in this section. He had been husking corn for Tidgen & Gillespie. It is thought certain that he will be caught. The fellow is said to live in Omaha.

RURAL CIRCULATION GROWS.

Pretty Nearly Every Farmer Out of Norfolk Reads The News.

Few of Norfolk's business men fully realize, perhaps, the extension of possibilities in an advertising way which the rural routes have established. The farmer today reads a daily paper. He is no longer content with a weekly. He gets his daily just as often and as conveniently as his city cousin. Few towns of Norfolk's size have daily papers with which to take advantage of that fact.

Today The News circulates in the rural districts about Norfolk within a radius of eight miles just about as thoroughly as it does in the city—and nearly everybody in town reads The News. Very nearly every farmer living on all of the five rural routes out of Norfolk, reads The News every day where he used to read a weekly newspaper. He finds that he likes the market reports and the local news and the north Nebraska news and the telegraph news, while it is fresh. Within the past week no less than thirty farmers who have been added to the rural service have voluntarily subscribed to The Daily News.

The great advantage in this is to the merchant and the business man. Norfolk firms have never had a method of reaching the farmers every day before. Now they can. The man who knows an opportunity will receive benefit in dollars and cents from this very fact.

Great department stores find that it pays to ship heavy catalogues for several hundred miles, onto the rural routes. The nearer they are, the more it pays. There is no question, if it is done systematically, about the results from local advertising among the rural route people. And they are the people who have money to spend.

Chief of Police Kane is wearing a smile that outshines his star by several degrees of radiance, and it is more ineffaceable than the silver on the metal. It is all because another son has been welcomed to his home.

Holt County Independent: A great many homesteaders who took land in Holt and adjoining counties at the Kinkaid opening are now establishing residences thereon, and otherwise complying with the requirements of the law. Some good frame houses are going up on homesteads, but the greater number are constructed out of Nebraska sun-dried brick.

Boyd Charleston, a farm hand employed at Fremont, is perhaps fatally hurt by a small caliber rifle bullet shot by a young boy named Kinkle. Kinkle fired at a target in a corn field, missed and the bullet found lodgment in the back of Charleston's head. The man was driving a wagon, fell backward off the seat, and while not rendered unconscious was paralyzed and made deathly sick. His brother assisted him to the house, but the bullet could not be extracted and he was in a serious condition. Young Kinkle went home, not knowing of the accident. When informed he wept and could not be consoled. It was carelessness that caused him to fire at random in the field.

John Irwin is again a victim of his ill fortune. Yesterday morning he fell at the corner of Norfolk avenue and Fourth street, his head striking on the water pipe, through which is drawn the supply for the street sprinkler. His scalp was torn open and he was knocked unconscious by the blow. He was revived, however, by people who saw the accident and was later conveyed to his room in a bus. Irwin is the man who was attacked several weeks ago by a couple of men from Stanton county and a year or more ago he lay unconscious for a day or so as the result of injuries he received in the railroad yards. He nor no one else knows to this day how he was hurt at that time, but it is surmised that he fell from a train.

"The Sign of the Four," an original dramatization of A. Conan Doyle's novel introducing the character he has made famous as a prince of detectives, "Sherlock Holmes" was the attraction at the Auditorium Saturday night with True S. James and Miss Carrie Le Moyne in the leading roles. A large audience witnessed the thrilling scenes appealing to the popular taste and in which Holmes successfully circumvented clever villains with their insidious attacks on lives and characters and forestalled the villains of the more pronounced type who were not supposed to be as clever at concealing their motives. It was an attraction many of the auditors expressed themselves as thoroughly entertained by the production. The next attraction at the play house is announced to be the famous bandit Frank James and his company who will give a matinee and evening entertainment on Thanksgiving afternoon and evening.

Tekamah Journal: A. O. Ford, of Oakland, conducted some corn growing experiments this summer for the state experimental station. Seed was furnished by the station and a quarter of an acre was given over to each variety. Of these he found "Mammoth White Pearl" grew the tallest stalk, 10 1/2 feet. "Legal Tender" the shortest, 7 feet. "Reid's Yellow Dent" gave the largest yield, 66 bushels to the acre, and "Leaming" the smallest, 50 bushels and 40 pounds. The heaviest ears were "Mammoth White Pearl" and "Nebraska White Prize," both weighing 11 pounds. The heaviest ten cobs were of the same variety and weighed 2 pounds and 12 ounces. The lightest ten cobs were "Golden Cap," 1 pound and two ounces. The varieties tested were: Hogue's Yellow Dent, Reid's Yellow Dent, Leaming, Legal Tender, Silver Mine, Mammoth Golden Yellow, Mammoth White Pearl, Nebraska White Prize, Golden Row and Golden Cap.

LETTERS ARE DELIVERED

FREE CITY SERVICE TODAY WAS INSTALLED ON WEST SIDE.

THE RESIDENTS ARE DELIGHTED

Carrier William Darlington Made His First Trip West of Thirteenth This Morning—Federal Discrimination Has Taken to the Firs.

[From Monday's Daily.]
Today for the first time Norfolk people who live west of Thirteenth street received their letters and papers and packages by free delivery, the grey-carrier making his initial trip into that territory this morning. The change, as announced in these columns last week, was brought about after more than a year by the fact that it was possible for the carrier on the west side to cover his original route and the additional also within the time limit of eight hours a day as set apart by the government.

For more than a year the residents of the west side have had to walk more than a mile to the postoffice, and to watch, at the same time, their neighbors receiving bunches of freely delivered mail twice a day. Ever since a year ago last June the people on the west side of Thirteenth street have had to walk to town and have been able to see, just across the street, the postman walking by morning and afternoon.

A few of those who live on West Norfolk avenue, that being on the direct route of the carrier for rural route No. 2, have put up rural boxes and received their mail that way, once every morning.

But all of these inconveniences are today things of the past. They have taken to the tall timber, back to the firs. Uncle Sam found, after a good long while, that his carrier could just as well take in the west end as not, and still not be doing duty overtime. And so was it ordered.

Carrier Darlington has the added territory to cover. He reached the first house on his new ground at about 9:15 this morning. At almost every home, he said, he found the people waiting for the mail and they were all delighted with the improved service. It will take a day or so for the novelty to wear off, but that will wear off none of the good fortune that there is to it.

SAW BIRD DROWN IN STANDPIPE

Two Boys Who Climbed to the Top, Watched a Bluejay Die There.

That there are dead birds in the Norfolk standpipe is practically a certainty. That there is at least one, is a positive fact. This is known to be true because the dying bird, a bluejay, was seen by two boys who had climbed to the top, last summer. In conversation with D. C. O'Connor yesterday, these two boys said:

"Last summer we climbed to the top of the standpipe. The water was down about fifteen feet. A bluejay was fluttering around on the surface of the water and we had no means of getting it out. Finally the bird sank to the bottom and drowned."

"I imagine that there is something in the theory that dead birds are to be found at the bottom," said Mr. O'Connor, who has had a siege of typhoid fever at his house. "We had blamed the water at the Grant school, where there was formerly a well. But now we use city water there. I can see no reason for so much typhoid in a city where city water is so generally used. It seems to me that there ought to be a cleaning out of any standpipe with no screen over it, at least once a year."

DONALD HOUSH IS NOT SO WELL

Lad With a Bullet in His Chest Suffers Higher Fever.

Little Donald Housh, the lad who received a bullet in his chest from his brother's gun a week ago yesterday, was not so well yesterday as he has been since the injury. More fever developed during the day, although it was not stated whether the fever was a permanent or a temporary trouble. The wound is well healed, the trouble coming now from the inside.

Dr. Bear, who was attending the lad, made his last visit this morning and stated directly after that he thought the boy would die. Pneumonia has set in with other complications. George N. Boels, scientist, is now attending the case.

Two weary tramps were the only occupants of cells at the Norfolk jail last night. There is nothing to it in the line of police activity. There is nothing doing all the time, the officers say.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Mr. Christ Beck and Miss Milda Reiche, which is to take place at the Johannes Lutheran church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. After the ceremony the happy event will be celebrated with a reception to the guests at the home of the bride's parents south of the city.

At the meeting of Damascus chapter No. 25, Royal Arch Masons, called last evening for the election of officers, the following were named for the ensuing year: A. H. Vele, high priest; David Rees, king; N. B. Dolson, scribe; L. C. Mittelstadt, treasurer; J. B. Maylard, secretary. The appointive officers have not yet been named.

State Architect Tyler reported at Lincoln yesterday that work on the Norfolk insane hospital was progressing "slowly on account of inclement weather." If this is inclement weather, Norfolk has never known a fair day. And surely the weather isn't to blame for any delay in getting the new institution finished on schedule time.

Dr. A. Bear made a professional visit to Pierce yesterday. He says that Ollie Cagle, the young man who was injured on the streets of Norfolk last summer, during the state firemen's tournament, is getting along very well and is almost entirely recovered from the effects of the blow which he received here. He is working now every day.

The funeral of Hugo Walter, who died Sunday evening of appendicitis, was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the house and interment was in the Lutheran cemetery east of the city. Hugo was 12 years, 9 months and 9 days of age, and was the son of George Walter and Rickle Walter. Mr. Walter has been traveling in South Dakota and in response to a telegram arrived home Sunday noon, just a few hours before his son breathed his last.

TURKEYS WILL BE SCARCE

BIRDS FOR THANKSGIVING DINNERS ARE VERY RARE.

PRICE WILL BE PRETTY HIGH

Turkeys Must Have Dry, Warm Weather and the Past Season Has Put Them to the Bad—Chickens Will do, Though, For Most Tables.

Thanksgiving is coming, and the turkeys have had little chance. Those that would have been hatched, perchance, have been handicapped by the wet weather and the result is, birds on the market are rare. Thanksgiving dinners this year will be served, no doubt, in most cases without any of the turkey that has always been considered indispensable. Chicken may take the place of turkey.

The trouble with the turkeys has been the wet weather of the summer. They have refused to be created. They have kept hidden within their eggshells rather than be hatched and reared and sold on the market. Wet weather is always hard on the turkey. The turkey, anyway, is a bird of fine sensibilities. It is nervous and sensitive. It needs the best of encouragement in the bringing up. It has to be coaxed by the sun and the moon and the stars. The turkey has an artistic temperament and could easily be made a musician or a painter of fine wares or a writer of poetry, perhaps. It isn't hardy enough to get out on a ranch and work for a living.

None of the birds are yet on the market and they will, from every indication, be mighty scarce propositions. There are places about the state, it is said, where turkeys may be obtained but they aren't flying around loose. The demand in the large cities is expected to have an effect on the price, even where the feathered beasts are plentiful.

The price is not yet quoted. It is said, though, that it will not be less than twenty cents per pound and may be more.

HEALTH AND EDUCATION GOVERN THE WORLD

THE WEAK, SICKLY AND EMACIATED CAN HOPE FOR BUT LITTLE SUCCESS.

BY DR. ORA CALDWELL, CHICAGO.

In compiling the statistics of the world, it is of interest to note the article of diet, the manner in which it is taken and the extent of medical attendance as practiced in the civilized world. It has been demonstrated conclusively that the meat eaters are the strongest, healthiest and the best educated people in the world; therefore it is reasonable to believe that they are the people who govern the world. As demonstrated by Dr. Caldwell, the American people consume on an average of six pounds of meat per week; the English four; the German, three; the French, two; and the Italian, one-half. Statistics prove that epidemics of contagious diseases more largely prevail among those people, whose diet partakes of less meat and more farinaceous foods. Good meat is the most wholesome of all foods to be taken. True, it is not as fattening as the cereals or farinaceous foods, but it is more strengthening and contains more blood and nerve producing elements, so necessary to strength and good health. What is required specially for perfect health is good digestion, plenty of outdoor exercise and special care as to hygiene and all the laws of nature. Dr. Caldwell is a specialist of many years' experience, and has devoted much of her time to the study of diseases of the stomach, diseases of the brain and diseases of the nervous system. From conclusive proof it has been demonstrated that a little food properly served and well digested is far better than a great quantity of an unwholesome character improperly digested.

Dr. Caldwell has been afforded special advantages in studying the characteristics of the people, their diet, their hobbies and the special conditions governing medicine as a specialty.

She has been awarded, in contests with the greatest schools in the world, the highest prize and a number of medals. She has been making a specialty of chronic, nervous and surgical diseases, diseases of the eye, ear, nose, throat, lungs, diseases of women and diseases of long standing character. No matter how long such patients have suffered or who has treated them, she never failed to cure these ailments. In over a quarter of a century in the experiment, study and practice of her profession in the diseases of men and women, she has cured thousands who have been pronounced helpless by other physicians. People come to her from far and near to receive her treatment and her offices are crowded at the places of her appointments and all speak in the highest praise of her treatment.

By permission we are pleased to publish a few of some of the cures she made throughout the state of Nebraska. These are only a few, as time and space will not permit us to publish more:
