VIOLATE LAW EVERY DAY.

Railroads Make no Pretense of Obeying Provisions of Sherman Act.

Chicago, April 26 - Walter Well-man, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

That all the railroads of the United States violate the Sherman anti-trust committee last week.

This violation consists of combinations between competing roads in the making of rates to common points. It is not denied that this joint ratemaking is "combination in restraint of trade," but it is not probable the government will attempt to prosecute the railroads. If it were to do of litigation. The railroad managers claim it is impossible to do business at all without such technical violation

Victor Morawetz, general counsel permitted to arrange among themselves for the making and for the preservation of reasonable rates. He does not advocate pool-making, pure and simple, nor did he want the railroads to be permitted to enter into extravagance of the American people binding agreements; but that they be cution under the Sherman anti-trust laws.

Senator Dolliver inquired how the railroads managed this now, and Mr. Morewetz replied that they do it notwithstanding the Sherman act. He added: "It would be impossible to interested."

The railroads would like to have the statutes changed. They fear that some day we may have an administration that will insist on enforcing the law to the letter.
