RAIN RECORDS SMASHED

THIS THE GREATEST YEAR EVER KNOWN IN NEBRASKA.

NINE MONTHS BEAT ANY YEAR

The Greatest Rainfall Ever Known in This Section Was Two Years Ago, When the Gauge Showed 34.23—That is Already Beaten.

The year 1905 will go down upon the pages of Nebraska's history as that of the greatest rainfall known in the state within a third of a century. Already the records of all years within the past thirty-three years have been smashed to pieces by the water that has dropped during the first nine months of this year.

More than thirty-four inches—34.38 to be precise—have fallen into the rain gauge during the first nine months of 1905. The greatest amount of moisture known in this city during an entire year was 34.23. That was just two years ago.

During the past month of September 6.14 inches of rain fell in Norfolk. Last year four inches fell during October so that if the same amount of moisture comes this year, there will be another addition to the already copious record.

FORMER NEBRASKAN A WRECK

A Husky Newspaper Man Goes to Pieces.

J. H. Dean, who may be remembered by many as once connected with the Lincoln Democrat as circulator and who served in other capacities with other local papers until he broke into the real estate business in northeast Lincoln and made some money, which he subsequently lost when the boom subsided, is in the public eye out at Colorado Springs. The following from the Gazette of last Sunday refers of him:

"Is J. H. Dean, lavender vendor, who figured as the common law husband of Mrs. Fannie Davidson, recently buried in the potters' field in Evergreen cemetery, suffering from mental aberration as the result of a blow on the head which he received during a riot in Milwaukee in 1893 while serving in the capacity of a reporter for the Chicago Tribune? Intimate friends who have known him for many years answer in the affirmative.

"Dean is now in the county jail under the care of County Physician Richardson. He is thought to be insane, and it is altogether probable that he will be sent to the state insane asylum. Yesterday Dean was found lying in a ditch near the gas plant. At first it was thought he was intoxicated, but it was soon discovered that he was suffering a mental lapse and he was turned over to the authorities for safe keeping.

"In the life of the aged lavender seller a bit of romance is entwined. For many years he was considered one of the most brilliant newspaper reporters of the western and middle states. Eighteen years ago he was employed on the Daily Call at Lincoln, Neb., and subsequently became a reporter on the Chicago Tribune. Having an unusually rugged physique and being adapted to mingling with the coarser elements of society, he was assigned to the lake front. Soon afterward he was sent to Milwaukee to report a labor riot and during the trouble there he was struck on the head with a club, being knocked unconscious for several hours. He was found lying half frozen on the ice on the lake front and was taken to a hospital where he lay for months. Finally he regained his physical strength but his mental balance is said never to have returned.

"While engaged in newspaper work in Lincoln and Chicago, Dean was regarded as a man of many peculiarities, although possessing the capacity of writing fluently. While at Lincoln an aged and withered couple were traveling about in an open buggy with no apparent destination. Dean conceived the idea that they were old Mr. and Mrs. Bender, the famous Kansas murderers, and he followed them on horseback several hundred miles. On his return to Lincoln, when he was recalled by his paper, he claimed that Mrs. Bender had pointed her long, bony finger at his head and had pronounced fearful curses upon him. This seemed to worry him much and was one of the reasons for his accepting a place on the Chicago Tribune.

"It is believed that the recent death of his common-law wife was the final blow to his mental stability."

DRUGGISTS CLOSE SUNDAYS.

The new arrangement comes about through the voluntary action of the druggists, who desire to be released from business cares on Sunday. If the public would prefer other Sunday hours than those noted, such as a couple of hours in the morning and an hour in the afternoon or evening, the druggists will be glad to know of it.

"TOO ROUGH, DON'T Y' KNOW.

Lord Kilpatrick o'Sussex Talks of America's Form of Football. Sir Charles and Lady Kirkpatrick of Sussex, Eng., and a football team composed entirely of Englishmen, registered at the Lexington hotel last night, says a Chicago report.

According to Sir Charles, they are here for the purpose of revolutionizing the game of football and bringing America and England in closer touch thereby in the sporting world.

"Your game is entirely too rough, you know," said his lordship. "It is more like what we call Rugby. You dash at each other with all your strength, and if you happen to be heavier than the other fellow you knock him down and walk over him.

"Now, in the game which we are introducing weight does not count. It is more in strength of limb than weight; you must outrun your antagonist.

"Under the new rules there will be no frightful slaughter, no pummeling, kicking and punching, such as characterizes your game. Our game is mild, you know; no roughness or rowdiness.

"We have accepted a challenge from a picked team in Chicago and will teach them to play the game of football, not Rugby. The game will be played under our rules and there will be no horrid scenes of bloodshed.

"After they have learned to play association football we hope it will spread throughout the continent, so that we can challenge them across the sea, and thus make the game international."

WOMAN'S CLUB FEDERATION.

Norfolk Officers and Delegates Leave for the Meeting.

Mrs. John R. Hays, president of the Woman's club; Mrs. H. J. Cole, delegate, and Mrs. A. J. Durland, member of the program committee, left at noon to attend the state federation of Woman's clubs. The meetings will be held in the St. Paul's M. E. church there. Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, president of the general federation and also resident of the Woman's club of Denver, is expected to be present during the sessions and to address the sessions.

Fred D. Paul.

Fred D. Paul, aged 65 years, died last night about 10 o'clock at the home of his son on Eleventh street and Taylor avenue, with whom he had been living. The funeral will be from the house Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and at Christ Lutheran church at 2:30, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. P. Mueller.

Mr. Paul was born in Germany in 1840 and came to the United States in 1866. He is an old resident of this community and has many friends who mourn his death. He has been sick with paralysis since the 8th of last March, which trouble finally caused his death.

A Creditable Edition.

The special work in connection with the edition is being compiled by Chas. L. Green, who came here with positively the best recommendations ever carried by any man in a similar line, and The News has faith that the work he is doing will not only be creditable to the paper but to the city as well. Orders for extra papers are now being taken at 10 cents each.

BOOTH ABED.

Husky Nebraska Coach Has Not Yet Recovered.

The illness of Walter C. Booth, Nebraska university's football coach, is hanging on with more persistence. There was nothing alarming in his condition today, but the effects of the ptomaine poisons have not yet been obliterated and for the present, at least, it cannot be said that the coach has recovered. It is possible that Booth may quiet the hospital tomorrow, but even if he is so fortunate at that time as to be given his discharge as an invalid, his physician scouts the suggestion that Booth could immediately resume the direction of the football squad at the university, says the Lincoln Evening News. This situation means that Booth cannot hope to be in harness before next week.

The announcement of Booth's illness, which was first feared to be typhoid fever, has spread to football circles at Minnesota university, the Minneapolis Journal commenting upon it in a manner complimentary to Booth in the following:

"Followers of football in Minnesota will be grieved to learn of the danger of typhoid menacing Coach Booth of the Nebraska team. While always putting up a stiff fight to beat Minnesota, Booth has always held the esteem and friendship of the Gophers with whom he came in contact. It is to be hoped that Booth will escape the danger and bring up the same lot of scrappy players who generally represent the Cornhusker university."

The football editor of the Minneapolis Journal also takes a swipe at Michigan, saying:

"Michigan is now giving the 'isolation' of Minnesota as a reason for not putting Yost's mastodons against Gophers and Yost is shown up in the fact that Nebraska is on the Welverly schedule, and Lincoln, Neb., is a bit nearer the setting sun than Minneapolis—quite a bit. Throughout the country the impression is gaining that there is something of what the kids call 'fraid cat' in Michigan's refusal to play the Minnesota team."

JEWISH NEW YEAR TODAY

TODAY AND TOMORROW DAYS OF ROSH HASHONA.

THE FESTIVAL'S SIGNIFICANCE

New Year's Eve Was Celebrated in Norfolk Last Night at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Baum—A Joyous and Solemn Occasion.

(From Saturday's Daily.) Today and tomorrow are Hashona—the Hebrew New Year. These are the days of prayer and weeping, Rosh Hashona and Yom Kippur, following ten days later, are the greatest of the Israel's days. New Year's eve was celebrated in Norfolk last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Baum. The significance of the festival is explained by a Jewish rabbi as follows:

"Rosh Hashona, the Jewish New Year festival, is not only a joyous day, but also a solemn one. In fact, the first ten days of the month of Tishre, from the New Year to the day of atonement, are called the solemn days of the Jewish calendar. Solemn, because the New Year is a day of judgment. We pass in review our achievements no less than our aspirations. All other festivals speak to the Jew of his people's great past. This memorial day speaks to him of his own past. It bids him take a retrospect of the days that are no more, so that the future be not the past repeated, but the past bettered. The New Year festival sounds the keynote of a new and higher life. On that day every one fashions a new resolve to live nobler. No matter what the shortcomings of the past year were, the new year shall not be one of pledge broken nor of religion dishonored. It emphasizes the thought that God is the sovereign of the universe. God's universe is tuned to righteousness and keyed to justice. Made in the image of God, man must make their ears heavy that they hear that day men and women, who for a year long have shut their eyes that they may not perceive the truth and made their ears heavy that they hear not rebuke, open their heart to the appeals that prophets have sounded and accept the kingdom of God.

"Why do you blow the trumpet or rather sound the Shofar on the New Year festival?" was asked.

"We sound the Shofar, according to Biblical precedent to make clear the solemn aspect of the day. In Biblical days the Shofar was sounded mostly on days of danger and alarm. Likewise in our day it 'sounds the alarm for the wayward heart.' The Shofar tones are the trumpet calls to the conscience and the slumbering soul. The Talmud points out that the ram's horn be used in performing this rite, rather than cornet or trumpet of silver, for the ram's horn reminds us of the sacrifice of Isaac; the cornet does not. Therefore the Shofar, with its historic memories, is a call to duty. It swings open the grander goal, so that we may behold life's nobler vision. From this day on each one humbly resolves to forsake the ways of evil and return to God. For all men the New Year points the way to life's true goal. Long enough have we walked the life that creeps and crawls. Now we would mount up with wings as eagles."

A Call to the Woods.

"Mr. Busy Man," admonishes Tom Watson in his magazine for October, "leave your task some day, let the shop take care of itself, let the mill go as it may, let the plow stand in the furrow—and take yourself into the depths of the solemn, shadowy woods. Call back, ah, call back the forgotten years, collect around you the old friends, the old thoughts, the old ambitions, the mistakes you made, the faults you had, the wrongs you did or suffered, the opportunities wasted, the vain things you sought, the work that you might have done better, the kind words you might have spoken and did not, the good deeds you might have done and did not, the frowns that should have been smiles, the curses that might have been blessings, the tears that ought never to have been shed, the words that need never have been made.

Commune with yourself—your past, your present, your future—your crimes, your weaknesses, your doubts, your fears, your hopes, your despair; and thus let conscience and the angel of your better self beat your soul into the prayer:

"God be merciful to me, a sinner!"
