

THE NEW NORFOLK RATES

SCHEDULE OF DISTRIBUTING RATES OUT OF THIS CITY.

OFFICIAL TARIFF NOT YET HERE

Agent Matrau Has a Copy on the Basis of Which He is Billing Out Goods From Norfolk—Wholesale Fruit House is Doing Business.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

The new tariff sheet of distributing rates for Norfolk is not officially in the hands of Agent Matrau of the Northwestern yet, but a copy has reached him in a round about way which is being used at the present time in the billing out of shipments. It is believed that the tariff sheet in his hands now must be an advance proof, as a number of figures are given which are apparently typographical errors, the fourth class rate to Crawford and Ft. Robinson particularly illustrating this point, the quotations being higher on fourth class to those two towns than third class.

The new wholesale fruit house of Haley & Lang, which opened up the day the new rate went into effect, is already making shipments out of Norfolk and the prospects are that the house will be doing a good business inside a very short time. The fact that this experienced firm was induced to come here by virtue of the new rates goes a long way toward proving that the distributing rate out of Norfolk will enable wholesale houses to do business here. A member of this firm went to Omaha before a decision was reached to locate here and thoroughly investigated the proposed rates.

SATURDAY SIFTINGS.

J. M. Cunningham is visiting in Sioux City today.
Mrs. V. Peterson of Tilden is visiting in Norfolk over Sunday.
Mrs. H. C. Harrison of York, Neb., is visiting with Mrs. J. B. Maylard.
Mrs. Frank Byerly and Mrs. C. P. Byerly have gone to Neligh for a visit.
Mrs. H. A. Rowe is visiting friends at Long Pine and Oakdale for a few days.
J. L. Daniel, democratic candidate for county clerk, was in the city over night.
Mrs. M. A. McMillan returned at noon today from a month's visit in Omaha.
W. C. Martin of Humphrey and B. M. Laffen of Lindsay were in the city today.
Miss Agnes Stafford, who teaches at Stanton, arrived in the city last night and left this morning for Scribner, where she went to spend Sunday with her parents.
Mrs. D. C. O'Connor, Mrs. L. Sessions and Mrs. I. J. Johnson are hostesses at a reception this afternoon in the home of Mrs. O'Connor from 3 to 6 o'clock. A large number of ladies have been invited.
A brief memorial service will be held at the Elks meeting tonight for the late George Offenhausser. Mr. Offenhausser was a member of the Elks quartet and the three remaining members, J. B. Maylard, C. E. Green and C. S. Parker, will sing tonight.
George H. Spear is still suffering from a severe attack of quinsy. He was forced to walk the floor almost all of last night with pain. The long, hard drives across inland country in the northwest, which is included in his territory, are too much of a strain and have before now brought on the illness.

The first of a series of entertainments to be given by the young people of Norfolk churches, will be given tonight at the Methodist church in the lecture of Dr. Boltz, who comes to Norfolk highly recommended as a bright, interesting speaker. He lectures on, "Grit, Grip and Gumption."

The rain promised yesterday by the weather man developed last night and has continued, in streaks, until today. The barometer dropped very low here when the area of storm came along, thus indicating that when that storm circle passes on to the south of Norfolk there will be high winds from the north and cold air, too.

"We ought to make an effort to change the cost of the licenses issued to traveling fakirs," said a councilman yesterday. "The present cost is but $2 per day and it ought to be $10." The remark was occasioned by the sales which were being made on the street corner by a traveling grafter, who carried everything from needles to silverware and umbrellas. Many of the wares were bought up at greater cost than the prices in Norfolk stores.

Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Poucher very delightfully entertained members of the Methodist choir at an elegant 6 o'clock dinner last evening. The table decorations were unusually attractive, being in designs of the autumn. There were fruit centers at the table and huge pumpkins at either end, with autumn leaves distributed indiscriminately. Covers were laid for twenty and the choir spent an enjoyable social evening afterward.

A small blaze in a wood pile at the rear of Kauffmann's bakery caused an alarm to be turned in about 8:30 last evening. After turning in the alarm Mr. Kauffmann proceeded to squelch the blaze with a hand hose. The firemen were notified that the fire was out in time to prevent them from making the run with the carts, but the firemen as individuals helped Mr. Kauffmann during the strenuous moments when help was needed.

JOBING HOUSES COMING

NORFOLK RATES BEING INVESTIGATED BY WHOLESALERS.

WILL DISTRIBUTE FROM HERE

The Warren Refining Company, an Oil Concern, Proposes to Contest the Trade With the Standard, on the Strength of Norfolk Rates.

A quiet investigation is going on among a lot of people into the merits of Norfolk as a distributing point, and results may be looked for in the near future. A representative of the Warren Refining company of Warren, Ill., was here the other day looking up the advantages of working out of Norfolk. Last year this firm came into this territory and distributed a car of lubricating oil from here, and they figure that with the new rate out of Norfolk they can easily handle three cars from here next spring, and perhaps more. This firm expressed itself very much pleased with the success of the Commercial club in securing a rate that puts Norfolk on a par with Omaha as a distributing point. The representative stated to Messrs. Blakeman & Coleman, who transferred their products last spring and will again next spring, that he could see no reason why his company would not put in a warehouse here in the near future. North Nebraska has always been considered Standard Oil country on lubricating as well as illuminating oils, the shipments all being made from Omaha, but if an independent company can distribute from Norfolk, certainly the Standard people can well afford to and perhaps will be forced to put in a barreling station, if they want to hold the trade of North Nebraska.

A representative of the Acorn Stove company was in the city Saturday and he was very much pleased with the new rates, and at once started out to develop the territory for his stove. He arranged with Blakeman & Coleman to handle his sales temporarily, saying that if he succeeds as he expects, that it will only be a short time before his company will put in a warehouse here.

MOUSTACHE IS DISAPPEARING.

Campaign of Shears, Started in New York, Has Reached Norfolk. The moustache is taking the tall grass. The mower has begun a campaign against the hairy covering of men's upper lips, and many are falling prey to the knife. The work has begun in Norfolk. One man who recently returned from New York moustacheless, said:

"In New York everybody is clean shaven. People who formerly wore beards have cut them off. They consider it cleaner and more satisfactory."

Mittestadt-Koenigstein.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning Miss Meita Koenigstein, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Koenigstein of this city, was married to Dr. Rudolph A. Mittelstadt, also of Norfolk, the ceremony taking place in the beautiful family home at the corner of Koenigstein avenue and Eighth street. Rev. J. F. Poucher of the Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony. Miss Bertha Wille of Neligh, a life long friend of the bride, was maid-of-honor. There was no best man.

The ceremony was performed beneath a beautiful canopy of smilax, with a mammoth bell suspended over the bridal party. Mr. Ludwig Koenigstein, brother of the bride, very softly and prettily played the Mendelssohn wedding march. The bride was charmingly gowned in white Crepe Silencia, with trimmings of fine Valenciennes lace and carried a handsome shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

When the ceremony had been finished, the bridal party and the guests, numbering 100, were seated at a bounteous wedding breakfast. The prevailing colors throughout the parlors were green and white, smilax and lilies of the valley predominating the bride's table, with tiny bells hung here and there and everywhere about the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Mittelstadt left on the eastbound noon Northwestern train for Omaha, intending to later visit Mr. and Mrs. Will Koenigstein at St. Louis, and then Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Koenigstein in Arkansas. They will be absent for about two weeks, and returning will occupy the Koenigstein home for another two weeks during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. John Koenigstein, who will visit their sons in the south. Shortly after that it is expected that the handsome new home now being built on Koenigstein avenue will be completed.

The wedding has joined two of Norfolk's best known families. The bride is the only daughter of one of the longest established of the city's builders. She has grown to womanhood in Norfolk and has hundreds of friends throughout the city, with whom she is highly popular. Dr. Mittelstadt, a young dentist with bright prospects before, is a son of Mrs. Emily Mittelstadt and a prominent young man socially.

The gifts, which were sent in almost unlimited numbers, were very elaborate and very beautiful. Many telegrams were received this morning from friends over the state, offering congratulations.

Among the out of town guests were Miss Gertrude Kent of Stanton, Miss Bertha Mayer of Stanton, Mrs. Underberg of Stanton.

LINCOLN ASYLUM FEVER SWEEP

Bad Condition of Hospital From Overcrowding Institution. It is apparent that the state of Nebraska needs more room at the Norfolk insane hospital, as the overcrowded condition at Lincoln has caused a typhoid epidemic. Twenty-three are at present down with the disease. Among those ill is Dr. Young, formerly physician at the Norfolk hospital. A report says:

Eighteen patients at the Lincoln hospital for the insane, four nurses and Pathologist George A. Young are seriously ill with the typhoid fever.

At a special meeting of the state board of public lands and buildings this morning Superintendent Greene of the asylum was given unlimited authority to act.

The first case appeared last Monday, and others have fallen ill in quick succession. As yet the authorities have been unable to determine the exact cause. Thorough investigation has been made of the water and of the milk supply for the institution and both have proven undoubtedly pure. The only other method of infection is thought to be the carrying of typhoid germs from infected districts by flies and other insects. Every effort is being made to check the epidemic and it is hoped to have it soon under control. Dr. Young and several of the nurses who have since contracted the disease assisted in the investigation of the water supply.

Overcrowding is supposed to be the cause of the infection.

NEW CHANGES EFFECTIVE

NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD APPOINTMENTS BEGAN TODAY.

C. F. KING ALSO PROMOTED

Norfolk Man is Made General Roadmaster for This Division—New Division Created From Chadron to Casper, With Cantillon Sup't.

New Northwestern railroad appointments became effective today and Norfolk is materially affected by the changes. Frank Walters, formerly division superintendent at Sioux City, becomes assistant general superintendent for this division and his headquarters will be at Norfolk. Superintendent Reynolds went to Omaha yesterday to meet Mr. Walters and to accompany him on a trip of inspection over the entire division this week.

C. F. King, formerly in charge of the bridge construction work, has been promoted to the position of general roadmaster for the Nebraska & Wyoming division with headquarters at Norfolk.

New Division.

The following bulletin is from the office of General Manager George F. Bidwell at Omaha:

"J. P. Cantillon is appointed superintendent of the company's lines with headquarters at Casper, Wyoming."

It is understood that Mr. Cantillon will have charge of the line from Chadron to Casper and of the new line from Casper to Lander. Superintendent Harmon will have charge of the line between Long Pine and Chadron and between Pierre and Rapid City.

Mr. Hughes Stays Here.

It had been rumored in Omaha and Lincoln that C. C. Hughes, general superintendent, would be transferred from Norfolk to Omaha but there is nothing to indicate such a change and the rumor is denied in Norfolk. The following clipping from the State Journal shows the rumor and other pre-appointment talk:

Lincoln Journal: The building of the line west of Casper and the line from Pierre to Rapid City, and the appointment of an assistant to General Superintendent Hughes of the Nebraska & Wyoming division of the Northwestern, with the taxing of the facilities of the road by the great amount of traffic now being handled, will be followed, it is said, by a change of districts formed for operating purposes. In fact these changes may be made in the near future. It is said that another district superintendent will be appointed and that Superintendent Harmon at Chadron will lose that part of his district between Chadron and Casper, but that he will gain the new line from Rapid City to Pierre, which will be placed under Manager Bidwell's charge. These things have not been officially announced, but they are believed by a great many Northwestern men.

For the operating district to be made up of the Casper line from Chadron to Casper, 192 miles, and from Casper to Lander 160 miles, a new superintendent will be appointed. A gentleman named Cantillon, said to be a brother of W. D. Cantillon, is mentioned for the place.

It is not known whether the changes in contemplation will affect the South Platte or the eastern districts of the road. Some believe that it will result in General Superintendent Hughes removing his headquarters from Norfolk to Omaha, and a rumor to that effect is current in Omaha.

It is believed that the ten miles between Fremont and Arlington will be double tracked this fall or winter, as business over this narrow neck of railroad is so heavy now that it is the next thing to impossible to get trains over it. It is denied that the line from Missouri Valley to Fremont will be double tracked, because between Arlington and Missouri Valley the road now has a double track, one line via Omaha and the other via Blair. With a double track between Arlington and Fremont the congestion would be relieved.

The company is now handling a heavy run of stock from the northwest which is expected to reach its climax some time this week. The run has been heavier this fall than usual.

HOME TALENT PRODUCTION

A CROWDED HOUSE GREETED NORFOLK ENTERTAINMENT.

THE NET PROCEEDS WERE $97.15

The Local Talent Entertainment at the Auditorium Last Night Was Patronized by a Flatteringly Large House and the House Applauded.

Norfolk people did nobly in their attendance Friday at the local talent entertainment given under the auspices of the Ladies Guild of Trinity church, and the Auditorium was packed with one of the biggest houses that has been known in the history of the theater. And the audience was so liberal with its applause and appreciation that the managers of the entertainment felt justified in complimenting every individual member of the company. The guild committee will net $97.15 as the result of their venture.

Credit for the entertainment is due Mrs. Dolsen and Mrs. Maylard, who composed the committee which undertook and carried out the plan.

It was precisely 8:30 o'clock when the curtain was rung up on the first number, a chorus by the entire company, which had been preceded by a pretty orchestra overture. The opening chorus was a medley.

The second number on the program, a fancy drill given by sixteen stunning little girls, was one of the hits of the evening and the tiny tots, so graceful and so becomingly gowned, were called back and applauded again and again for their cute work.

Miss Lola Lintecum very cleverly gave a dialect reading which was well received by the house. Miss Lintecum is an exceedingly able elocutionist and her work, graceful and consistent, bespeaks high art.

Next came a tramp specialty by Charles Gerecke, which brought down the house. Garbed in the ragged robes of a Weary Wanderer, with red nose and torn slouch hat, Mr. Gerecke was a most excellent character and his songs, bright and well sung, took so well with the audience that he was brought back for more.

One of the very best numbers of the whole program, and one which delighted every auditor in the vast theater, was the "Operetta Song," in which J. B. Maylard, Fritz Asmus, May Durland and Madame Patti participated. Mr. Maylard, as master of the king's "navée" and dressed as such with high silk hat and cravat to match, had advertised for singers. And he drew a mixed up hand. First came the American girl, Miss May Durland, who sweetly sang for the master and won his admiration.

Shortly after entered the "Flying Dutchman," (Mr. Asmus) with red, fat face and a black chin beard, huge wooden shoes, and the coat of a comedian. He sang, "Oh Where, Oh Where is My Little Dog Gone?" in such a comical way that the house laughed till its sides shook, though the king's master didn't like the idea. Madame Patti closely followed the Dutchman. She was garbed as an Irish maid and sang, "My Father and Mother Were Irish," until she was green in the face. She was clever, too. And just as the master began to sing his replies to their requests, each one of the three musical applicants began his or her character song. The four of them, each singing a different tune and song, sang their way clear down deep into the hearts of their hearers and the rafters of the playhouse rang with the applause.

A pretty little duet was given by Harry Dignan and Edith Vail, two little people who took the roles of an old, old man and his old, old mate. Their voices were sweet and clear, their acting was cunning and they were called back for an encore.

After a Riley reading by N. A. Huse the first part of the program ended in a solo and chorus given by Graham Humphrey and six young ladies—Marie Tracy, Edith Stear, Vera Troutman, Lily Marquardt, Josephine Tappert and Corrine Saunders. This was another ten-strike. Graham Humphrey, in stunning black double-breasted coat and immaculate white duck trousers, with a very late hat and a brilliantly colored band about it, took the role of the young society swell who falls in love with every girl he meets. And the six girls, all in white and with mammoth, effective white hats, were worth falling in love with, too. First he fell in love with Polly, till Bessie came to town; then dropped them both for Dolly, etc., through the entire line until he reached Ophelia, who was the "best of all." The idea of the thing was unique and the execution was rich. The stunt made a great tear with the audience and Graham and his six girls had to come back and do it all over again.

The second part of the play was given over to a farce, entitled, "Thirty Minutes for Refreshments." The part of Joe Downley, a bachelor, was taken by N. A. Huse. W. F. Hall as "Clarence Pitts, His Colored Servant," was a star actor and made good with the audience from start to finish. His jokes, many of which were original, were decidedly funny and kept the house in uproar.

John Foxton, a Young Married Man, as taken by Charles Gerecke was clever. Mr. Gerecke took well the difficult part of a newly married man and was at perfect ease throughout. Fritz Asmus as "Major Pepper, U. S. A.," garbed in an officer's uniform and with black beard and black moustache, made the sort of an officer that women fall in love with. He was stern in the protection of his "elderly sister."

Miss Lola Lintecum took the role of Mrs. Foxton, the bride, and was, of course, very clever throughout, doing the blushing act as it should be done and screaming when she ought to scream in a voice that almost frightened the bachelor. She was very good.

One of the best characters in the play was that of Miss Arabella Pepper, the elderly sister of the major, as taken by Miss Ethel Hartley. Her make-up was simply rich—"the limit," in fact—with a great plume hat, tied with long red ribbons, and with one of the old fashioned lace shawls, lace mitts and a gown that would have been a winner back in the seventies. Miss Hartley's expression of face and gesture were done with a rare art and she won a home with the audience.

Polly, a waiting maid, as done by Miss May Durland was also a star part. Miss Durland was gowned in the neat white of a waiter, her acting was of a high order and every possible feature was well brought out in a difficult role. She was the first to appear, and she made a hit with the house.

The story of the farce was simple. The bachelor engaged a room at a hotel. Wives and sisters, by mistake, got into his room and kept him in hot water because he couldn't get dinner.
