

GOVERNORSHIP A PUZZLE

MORTENSEN WILL PLAY NO FA
VORITES IN SELECTION.

JESSEN MAY ANNOUNCE SELF

There is Considerable Speculation
Around the State House at Lincoln
as to Who Will Get into the Game
First—Mortensen Impartial.

Lincoln, March 14.—Considerable speculation is indulged in around the state house as to what will be the outcome of the visit of Judge Paul Jessen to Lincoln today to discuss politics. A number of the state officers believe Judge Jessen will announce himself a candidate, while those who know the Otero county man best still maintain that he will not be a candidate. It is understood Senator George Sheldon has written to Judge Jessen that he will not stand in his way should he desire to be a candidate.

Should Judge Jessen decide to come out as a candidate it is claimed by his champions he will inherit considerable of the Mortensen strength, though Mr. Mortensen himself likely will take no part in the campaign in so far as selecting a candidate is concerned. The state treasurer feels that as his support came from all parts of the state and was in a way spontaneous, it would not be right for him to try to dictate who should fall heir to his strength.

The decision of Mr. Mortensen to relieve the party from any embarrassment by withdrawing from the race has met with the approval of republican leaders, and it has more than ever endeared him to the people, so the officers at the state house believe.

The visit of Judge Jessen today is likely to bring forth a number of other candidates, and politicians are looking now to see Charles Weston, former state auditor, get into the running. Weston was a witness in the railroad tax suit. Mr. Weston, who had been on the board of assessment for four years, told how the board had reached its conclusions and showed that all of the property of the railroads had been considered as well as the reductions submitted by the companies.

During his recent visit here Mr. Weston still refused to say whether he would be a candidate, though his admirers have begun to talk of his testimony in the railroad case, and this is taken to mean they are paying the way for his announcement.

NATIONAL LIVE STOCK COMMISSION CO.

View of Live Stock Markets at South Omaha, C. A. Mallory, Mgr.

South Omaha, March 15.—Cattle—While most of the other markets have been liberally supplied with cattle, the South Omaha market has not received any more than the trade demands; and with an active inquiry from both packers and shippers, the general cattle market continues in a satisfactory condition. Strictly choice cattle are not very plentiful, and with a growing demand for this class, we note a little further advance, this class selling at the best price of the season this week. There is but little of interest that we can add to our recent letters, and while we do not look for much permanent advance in the near future, we still have confidence in a healthy market throughout, and in higher prices for good cattle later on.

Hay fed cattle are arriving in more liberal numbers, and are meeting with a ready sale to both feeders and packers at prices well in line with Chicago. All kinds of butcher's stock are wanted at about the best prices of the season. We sold some hay fed beefers this week at $12.25. There is a wide range in prices on butcher's stock, but we look for strong markets right along, but advise shipping this class of stock as fast as it is ready.

Stockers and feeders are in liberal supply, but the demand continues good, and on the very best feeders prices are about as high as they have been any time, while other grades are selling from 10 to 25c lower than the high time last week. We took for liberal receipts of this class of cattle this month, and believe prices will be as low as they will be any time this season, and suggest that anyone desiring this class of cattle during the spring months should place their orders with us at the earliest opportunity.

We look for rather liberal receipts of cattle during the next week, and do not think it advisable to figure on any better market. In the absence of quotations on cattle, we quote butcher's stock and fat steers about 10 cents higher all around than last week. The best steers that were on the market this week averaged under 1400 lbs., and brought $5.60.

Hogs.—As we suggested in our letter last week, the packers have taken a decided stand against the market, especially in Chicago, where they have left over a large percentage of the receipts each day thus emphasizing the fact that there are still two sides to the market. The provision market was somewhat unsettled, but closed at about the best price of the season, although still under present prices for hogs. This action on the part of the packers caused an unsettled and uneven hog market, and prices fluctuated from 10 to 20 cents, although the average price is still within 15 cents of the extreme top of the market for this season.

Present prices for hogs are good, the bulk selling from $6.00 to $6.20, and while we may not have much further permanent advance in the near future, we have confidence in a strong average market and would not be surprised to see still higher prices later in the season. We believe good hogs ought to sell here from $5.00 to $5.10 and be all right the balance of this week and the fore part of next.

We take pleasure in announcing to be trade that we have succeeded in adding to our hog department, Mr. Carl Hibbard, who has been one of the foremost hog salesmen in this market for a number of years. Mr. Hibbard is a young, active, and up-to-date operator. With Carl Hibbard and "Bob" Martin giving their entire time and attention to each division in the hog department, and all under the management of Mr. C. A. Mallory, who had over twenty years experience in the hog business in Chicago, our readers will readily realize the favorable position the "National" occupies in this branch of the trade at South Omaha.

Sheep and lambs.—The sheep market is steady within 10c of the best prices of the season, while the lamb market continues dull at the lowest prices of the season.

What is probably the last snow of the season struck Norfolk late last night and continued during the early hours of today. The weather forecast predicted the snow and colder weather, which arrived. More snow, with not much change in the temperature, is predicted for tonight.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Chicago Lumber Co., N. B. Dolson, manager, and H. C. Sattler, for their donations to the firemen's fund, at the meeting of the city department last evening. The $100 given by the Chicago Lumber Co. and the $50 by H. C. Sattler have placed the finances of the department in the best shape they have been for some time.

Mrs. C. J. Howe of Sioux City, formerly of Norfolk and well known here, has suffered a nervous collapse, bordering on nervous prostration, recently and was very ill for a time. She is now at Ponca, resting up. The worst of the attack was brought on through the eating of headache tablets in excess.

Miss Valley Garlinger, who has been money order clerk at the postoffice for the past two years and a half, has given up her position in the postoffice, and will leave tomorrow for Excelsior Springs, Mo., where she will make her home with her mother. Deputy Postmaster B. C. Gentle will succeed Miss Garlinger as money order clerk and will still continue in charge of the mailing room as well. The vacancy left by the change will be filled by Floyd Freeland, who will begin on his new duties tomorrow.

The entertainment given last evening by the Highland Nobles in Odd Fellows hall was largely attended. The proceeds of the evening were about $40. During the course of the evening three quilts were raffled off. The second one was won by Mrs. A. D. Howe, who held No. 35, the lucky number. The holders of No. 243 and No. 300, the other successful numbers, were not present and so it is not known to whom they fell. There were instrumental and vocal music, solos and duets, readings, etc., and every one of the large crowd present enjoyed a thoroughly delightful evening.

A delegation of young ladies by invitation took the kitchen in the home of W. H. Bridge by storm yesterday evening and fed the starving widower and orphans a five course dinner. The kitchen was literally plastered with recipes for making palatable food, and the making of the five courses was parcelled out between the young women, with the exception of the biscuits. The art of making biscuits was the only one known by the men and so John Bridge produced the biscuits. The remainder of the dinner was all prepared by the young women according to the recipes on the walls and from food either in the house or in the neighbors' houses.

Valerian Gobler, an old man sixty-eight years of age, died of the grip in a room of the old creamery building during the evening. He had been living in the creamery building where he and his son, William Gobler, manufactured cement blocks, when he was taken sick the middle of February. His health was badly impaired and, as he grew worse, his son did not deem it advisable to move him to his home across the Northfork in Edgewater, and so cared for him there. He was suffering from a general breakdown and slowly grew worse until the time of his death. Mr. Gobler came with his son William from a farm near Battle Creek some years ago and has since been engaged in sidewalk contracting and cement work. The body was taken to Stanton for burial from the Catholic church there this morning.

A plant to manufacture ornamental bricks and artistic fronts for buildings out of cement is to be installed in Norfolk at once by Reynolds & Klug, contractors. They have already received the necessary machinery and are preparing to put up a building thirty by eighty feet in which to conduct the manufacturing operations. The location of the plant has not been definitely decided on as yet but probably will be today or tomorrow, when work on the building will begin at once. It is the intention of the owners of the plant to make nothing but ornamental brick to be used in the fronts of buildings, and not to make any of the cruder work in cement such as building blocks, posts, etc. They will operate the establishment in connection with their contracting business and develop a field for their product in the territory surrounding Norfolk and west and north.

The new Congregational church at Stanton, which is to rise from the ruins of the one burned last Sunday, is to transcend it in several ways, according to Rev. J. J. Klopp, pastor of the church. Rev. Mr. Klopp was in the city yesterday and said, "While the church met our fondest hopes as it stood before the fire, there were some things that could have been done better. Now that we are going to build it over we will make these changes. They will not be of a radical nature, but they will make the church just a little better than the one we have just lost. It certainly was a very fine church. The acoustic properties were well high perfect. Besides that it was good to look at both from the inside and outside. The contract for the rebuilding will be let immediately if we can secure an adjustment of the insurance quickly. I think the contractor who built the other building is willing to build our new church if we can give the contract immediately. Besides him there are several other contractors anxious to figure on the work. So we will probably be in our new church in a few months despite the fire. Perhaps that time may be no further off than the Fourth of July."

DEMOCRATS IN THE FIELD

MUNICIPAL TICKET IS NAMED BY THEIR CONVENTION.

MAYOR FRIDAY RE-NOMINATED

Democratic Candidates for City Officers
Were All Placed in the Field at the City Hall Last Night—Police Judge Holds Over.

For mayor—John Friday.
For city clerk—Julius Hulff.
For city treasurer—Julius Haase.
For city engineer—H. H. Salmon.
For members of the board of education—H. C. Matrau and Thomas Shively.

Democratic candidates for city officers were all nominated on the first ballot last night. All of the nominations were made by blanket ballot, no names being brought out before the convention except in the case of board of education nominees.

An error in the call for the convention stated that a police judge was to be nominated but it transpired that Police Judge Westervelt holds over for another year and therefore there was no nomination for his office.

Thirty-eight delegates were present at the meeting, which was held in the city hall while the firemen adjourned their meeting until after the convention. This did away with the expected conflict of authority to use the hall. In the absence of Mayor Friday, Herman Gerecke presided over the meeting, and Carl Wilde acted as secretary. John Friday and Julius Hulff were nominated for mayor and city clerk respectively with but a few scattering votes against them. Then followed the nomination for city treasurer, in which Julius Haase received twenty-four votes against twelve for E. J. Schorregge, and the nomination was given to Mr. Haase. H. H. Salmon was given the nomination for city engineer without any vote being taken. Three names were put up for nomination on the school board ticket, H. C. Matrau, S. G. Dean and Thomas Shively. Matrau received thirty-one votes, Dean fifteen, and Shively twenty-one, with three scattering votes. Matrau and Shively were then made the nominees.

At the close of the convention the democratic city central committee for the ensuing year was announced as follows: John Friday, First ward; A. D. Howe, Second ward; H. C. Matrau, Third ward; and Fred Koerber, Fourth ward.

WANTS A HUSBAND.

Letter in Organ Box Tells of a Young Woman Desiring a Mate.

In Detroit, Michigan, there is a young woman with a patrician name, wavy, raven tresses, and lustrous, brown eyes, who wants a man, and wants him very badly. She works in the Farrand Organ company and sent her missive into the world of men secreted in an organ, which brought up the other day at the Sturgeon music store. In overhauling the organ here it was found tucked away in a cranny of the organ's case. As a love letter, or even a request for an opportunity to become acquainted with the finder of the letter, it is not a pretentious looking affair, for it is written on the rear sheet of a calendar page. But her handwriting is excellent and her questions are well to the point. Last but not least among the things she desires to know is how rich the young man may be who is to answer her letter. Besides she wants to know his name, his address, the color of his eyes and hair, his occupation, and whether he is marriageable. Presumably she has certain requirements to be met by the man she is to marry, even though she writes her requests on the rear of calendar pages. This is the letter:

To Whom Concerned: If any young men in the family receiving this organ I would be pleased to open a correspondence with them. I am nineteen years old with black hair and hazel eyes. Would be pleased to learn the young man's address. Also name color of hair and eyes, occupation, if eligible to marriage. Also financial standing. My address is Gladys Van der Lip, Care Farrand Organ Co., Detroit, Michigan.

PREPARE FOR TEACHERS.

Half Thousand Pedagogues Expected to be in Norfolk.

Between 300 and 500 pedagogues from the territory of northern Nebraska will arrive in Norfolk April 4 to attend the annual meeting of the North Nebraska Teachers' association and the annual declamatory contest which is held in connection with the convention. Superintendent Bodwell of this city, acting as chairman of the committee on arrangements, is preparing to start a systematic effort Monday by which to ascertain how many of Norfolk's homes will be thrown open to the visiting half thou-and school matrons. Preparations are being made by President Wilson of Wayne for the biggest and most successful meeting that has ever been held in the district. On Wednesday night, April 4, the annual declamatory contest, in which orators and humorists and dramatists from all over this territory will compete, takes place in the Methodist church. On other nights there will be lectures by Dr. Green, a speaker of nation-wide renown, Mrs. Carter of New York and Dr. Condra, from the Nebraska university.

The morning and evening sessions will be held in the Methodist church while the various departmental or sectional meetings will be held afterwards at the high school building.

Norfolk business men have already contributed $100 to make the affair a success.

CATTLEMEN WILL SHOW UP.

Some Enter Appearance in Cases to Compel Unfencing.

Omaha, March 14.—Through their attorneys Bartlett Richards and William G. Comstock have entered appearance for April 1 in the suit brought by the government to compel the removal of fences alleged to inclose about 400,000 acres of government land in Sheridan and Cherry counties. Subpoenas have been served by Deputy Marshal Sammons on some of the other defendants in this action.

Those who have been officially summoned are James Ostrander and David P. Gorley of Rushville, Edward C. Harris of Chadron and William A. Margrave.

Those who waived the issuance of subpoenas and have entered their appearance besides Richards and Comstock, are Charles C. Jamison, Charles Tulley, Christopher Mosler and Emil Comstock.

Jamison is secretary of the Nebraska Land and Feeding company, of which Bartlett Richards is president. Several weeks ago Jamison was arrested upon a charge of suborning homesteaders to swear falsely to affidavits when making filings for Richards and Comstock.

LEARY ON GREY WOLVES.

Deputy State Auditor Says He Thinks They are Big Dogs.

Deputy Auditor Cook yesterday ran across three more vouchers for wolf bounty, the applicant for the warrant stating he had killed three grey wolves in Nemaha county, says the Lincoln News. Some time ago Auditor Scarle stated that before he would honor a voucher for the killing of a grey wolf the man filing the same would have to bring the carcass to the state house as proof.

"It is my impression there are no grey wolves in Nebraska," said the auditor, "and especially in that section of the state where the population is thick. A grey wolf runs from civilization. There are still plenty of coyotes but I don't believe Nebraska is infested with the grey wolf."

"Out in the west end of the state we used to have lots of trouble with grey wolves, for there is no way to get rid of them except to hunt them down. They range over counties covering an area of a hundred miles or more. It is impossible for a grey wolf to be killed by putting out poison, because they will not eat a dead carcass. When they become hungry they kill a cow or anything that comes along, but I have never run across an instance where they have eaten a dead carcass. They want fresh meat."

"A coyote will not attack a cow or any big animal. In fact a half dozen of them will not molest a cow. They are too cowardly. When I see a voucher setting out that a grey wolf has been killed I look upon it with suspicion and wonder if the animal killed wasn't a big shepherd dog."

Quit "waiting"—advertise for that new tenant or boarder now!

Party For C. of A.

A very delightful party was given last evening at the home of Mrs. H. D. Buehner in the Junction to the members of the C. of A. and their friends. Mrs. H. D. Buehner and Mrs. G. F. Castle were the hostesses of the evening. Whist and flinch were played during the evening and delicious refreshments served after the play.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

Two Young Men Said to Have Worked Many Business Men.

Grand Island, Neb., March 15.—Special to The News: Two young men giving the names of W. F. Pickering and D. Graham were arrested here today charged with wholesale forgeries at Ravenna, in this city and at other points. At least a half dozen local business men were worked in amounts ranging from $15 to $25.

Numerous forgeries were also committed by them at Ravenna, to which point they will be taken for trial. There is no doubt as to the identity of the parties.
