

FARMER SHOTS NEIGHBOR

WILLIAM COLLINS, NEAR LYNCH, VICTIM OF CHARGE.

WAS FIRED BY JEFF HALLETT

Trouble Growing Over a Fence Resulted in a Shooting in Boyd County Last Night Which Has Left Collins in Serious Condition Today.

Lynch, Neb., April 26.—Special to The News: William Collins was shot through the face by Jeff Hallett with a shotgun, receiving the entire charge in the fact, and is at present in a rather serious condition, though it is impossible to tell this morning whether it will be a fatal wound.

The two men are near neighbors and it appears that they have had some trouble over a line road or fence, out of which the shooting grew.

One report has it that Mr. Hallett had closed a road crossing a corner of his field by fencing it, and that Mr. Collins proceeded to chop it down when finding it, and in the quarrel that followed the shooting resulted.

Another story places Mr. Collins on his own land when shot.

However, it is a very deplorable affair and will lead to considerable litigation and no end of trouble.

Albion Commercial Club.

Albion, Neb., April 26.—Special to The News: H. M. Bushnell of Lincoln was present last evening at the annual banquet and meeting of the Albion Commercial club. Mr. Bushnell being the president of the state association gave a very instructive and interesting talk to the club and about 150 of the citizens of Albion listened to this address with a great deal of attention and the city will certainly undergo many improvements the coming year through the effort of this organization. Elder Deam of Emmet, Idaho, who is in town in the interest of his state, gave an eloquent address on the lines of commercial clubs and civic improvement. The wives of some of the members of the club superintended the banquet part of the program and a splendid three-course supper was served.

Mrs. W. A. Hosford of this city died at her home here Tuesday morning and was buried today at Saint Edward, Nebraska. The Hosford family were among the first settlers of the county.

Consumption is a Germ Disease. How Can it Start With a Cold?

This is a reasonable question and one that must arise to the mind of almost everyone when the claim is made that consumption starts with a cold. The cold simply prepares the system for the reception and development of germs of that disease, that would not otherwise have found lodgement. It is the same with diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles. They are most likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. That is why a cold should never be neglected. The longer it hangs on the greater the danger. As a quick cure for colds Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be relied upon. It's remarkable cures have won for it a world wide reputation and an immense sale. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Leonard the druggist.

BIG RAILWAY TRANSFER

HARRIMAN GETS ILLINOIS CENTRAL IN OCTOBER.

WILL BE AN IMPORTANT MOVE

Deeds of Construction, Extension and Management to be Undertaken That Will Rival Hill's Purchase of the Burlington.

Facts have come to light that point indubitably to the conclusion that in October, 1906, E. H. Harriman will take control of the Illinois Central out of the hands of Stayvenant Fish, says a New York dispatch.

This is by far the most important fact in the railway world at the present time. The truth about it has been carefully concealed by the Harriman interests, because it is recognized that at this time such an acquisition would be the most unpopular move that could be made. But in the meantime the practical though not the actual control of the Illinois Central has been picked up in the London and Wall street markets.

Facts are Startling.
The Wall Street Journal has recently published a series of articles concerning this matter. The articles have attracted much attention on account of the intimate tone adopted by the writer. Facts startling in their essence have been written through these articles in the most intimate and off-hand way. For instance, a simple sentence near the end of a long paragraph contained the information, since corroborated only with the greatest difficulty, that Speyer & Co. have sold their one-third interest in the Railroad Securities company to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

The story, as told by this writer, is a bigger story than the acquisition of the Burlington by the Hill roads in 1901. The Harriman bankers have bought in the open markets of the world in the last two years over $25,000,000 out of $95,000,000 Illinois Central stock. The control of the Railroad Securities company gives them about $12,000,000 more, making about $37,000,000 in their hands.

Harriman in Saddle.
This is not actual control. It is, however, so big a block of stock that not even the immense confidence of Stayvenant Fish can be counted upon to stem the tide. It is now practically recognized by the owners of other railroad properties in the southwest that a Harriman control of the Illinois Central may be expected to be announced at the annual meeting next October.

Harriman wants the control of the Illinois Central railroad for two reasons. The first is that, by the expenditure of about $20,000,000 it could be made the most feasible line from Omaha to Chicago. The second, and most important, is that it can become a greater weapon of conquest for Harriman in the next five years than the Union Pacific has been in the last eight years.

Company Will Expand.
It is intended that the Illinois Central shall expand. It is also intended that it shall become a holding company. Its expansion will be west of the Mississippi. Possibly it will make a cutoff between Galveston and St. Louis. It might even create a new short route from St. Louis to Kansas City. With the credit of the Illinois Central anything can be accomplished.

Primarily it will strike the Missouri Pacific and the Rock Island squarely and strongly. At the present time all its neighbors are at peace with the Illinois Central. There is keen rivalry, but not destructive competition of any kind. The Illinois Central has kept its place on the eastern bank of the valley and kept it strongly. It has not reached out to tap the preserves of the lines on the other side.

Blow at Gould.
George Gould has projected and will build the Western Pacific in direct rivalry to the Central Pacific. Last week the Rock Island announced that it will go into Galveston and from Galveston into New Orleans, right alongside the Southern Pacific lines. The Southern Pacific cannot fight back. It is not strong enough. The Illinois Central in the hands of Harriman could not only meet and block the ambitious plans of the Rock Island along the gulf by paralleling the Frisco main line from St. Louis southwest, but could also strike directly at the Missouri Pacific, the heart and center of the Gould power.

This is the true railway situation southwest. All signs point to rapid developments. The next two years will see some of the liveliest railroad hustling that has been seen west of the river in years.

Croup Quickly Cured.

A few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy bring surprising results when a child shows symptoms of croup. There is no cause for alarm when this medicine is in the house as it rarely takes more than three or four doses to bring about a complete cure. It has never failed even in the most severe and dangerous cases and no home where there are small children can afford to be without it. For sale by Leonard the druggist.

ment Commander, L. C. Mittelstadt; Generalissimo, Joseph Albery; Captain General, C. E. Burnham; Senior Warden, J. B. Maylori; Junior Warden, S. G. Dean; Prelate, A. H. Viele; Recorder, W. R. ## QUEER LOCOMOTIVE TALES

SOME OF THE SUPERSTITIONS THAT LINGER STILL.

THE THIRTEENERS ACTING UP

The Sum of the Digits of the Engine Which Went into the Hole at Merriman, is Equal to Precisely Thirteen Cats and Fridays.

"No. I am not superstitious in regard to locomotive numbers," said Engineer O. P. Masters of Norfolk, who this week escaped death in most miraculous fashion while riding in the cab of engine No. 1318 on train No. 116, coming east at Merriman. His mate, Fireman Leroy E. Day of Chadron, met death in the accident, and when Mr. Masters got home, looking, as he expressed it, like the victim of Jim Corbett, someone called his attention to the fact that the sum of the digits in the number of his locomotive, 1-3-1-8, is equal to precisely 13.

"I don't believe in thirteens and I don't believe in Fridays and I don't believe in black cats running across the track and I don't believe in one, two three and out," declared Mr. Masters. His last remark referred to a former superstition that when a railroad engineer had been in two wrecks, the third was fatal.

"The day of superstition around engineering has pretty largely passed away," said Mr. Masters. "I have seen men who would positively refuse to take out a new engine on a Friday, and I have seen others who, if a black cat crossed their track, would become suddenly ill and be unable to go out on their runs that day. But my escape from death in the wreck at Merriman was due to some miraculous fate of which I have no conception and for which I am unable to offer any explanation. It is the biggest wonder in the world that I wasn't killed, and it is my theory that it simply wasn't my time to die. The wreck which I was in at Fremont years ago was just as close an escape."

It was rather a touching thing, the day after Mr. Masters had returned, his face all cut up, to see the railroad men around the round house walking up to him and shaking his hand, as though he had come from a long journey. For those railroad boys knew the danger that he had been in, and their hearts went out in welcome to him when they saw him safe and sound once more at home.

Man Killer Engine, 202.
"Speaking of superstitions," said an engineman at the Northwestern roundhouse, "there is that old man killer, No. 202 which is wrapped in a cloak of superstition as thick as the smoke from a smokestack just after you've shoveled in coal. She has killed several men in her time and has done a lot of other queer things."

"Not long ago she was down at the Valley, in the roundhouse. Engineer Gene Joyner crawled under the big machine to repair something. When he went under, the engine was standing still and the starting gear was all shut down. Suddenly 202 took a notion to start and, while Joyner was underneath, did begin to move, ran over his legs and cut both limbs off."

"Another time she turned a somersault the other side of Missouri Valley and in her day she has killed several men."

"Thirteeners Make Trouble."
"Another queer fact," remarked a fireman, "is that every one of the big Q engines, all numbered in the thirties hundreds, has made some sort of trouble since being taken up on the Black Hills territory. Not all of it has been serious, but each engine has done some stunt out of the ordinary. One of them was run into here Wednesday night by a switch engine and bruised. She was at the head of train 116 and stood on a side track but not quite in the clear. A switch engine came along and rapped the front end."

But these points are merely related by the engine men today as bits of interesting gossip, and most of them declare that superstitious belief in numbers and signs is all folly.
