ANOTHER SEVERE STORM

LIGHTNING AND WIND TEAR UP THINGS FOR A TIME.

SEVERAL POINTS WERE STRUCK

Lightning Struck Western Union Wire and Melted Regulator-Third Bolt of Week Struck at C. G. Miller Corner-Barns Blown Over

[From Friday's Dally.]

Another storm fell upon Norfolk late last evening, bringing a deluge for a moment. Only a balf inch of rain fell in all, but the storm was accompanied by severe bolts of lightning, which struck frequently about town and in the country. A terrific gale blew for a few moments, tearing down trees, blowing over barns and shattering chimneys. Many people were caught out in the rain unprepared for the storm, and were soaked through and through before they could seek shelter,

The third bolt of lightning to strike at the C. G. Miller house, corner Madison avenue and Eighth street, this week, came down and shattered one of the big trees in the front yard. The limbs were simply shredded into ribbons by the electricity.

Lightning struck a Western Union telegraph wire near the office, melting a regulator in front of the saloon of John Weidenfeller. Mr. Weidenfeller was standing in the door of his place and was slightly shocked by the bolt. A team belonging to Belerly Bros., which was hitched to a dray near by, started to run. Frank Radfield of South Fourth street caught the hind stake of the dray wagon, swung in, took the reins and stopped the runaway horses.

Two barns on South Fourth street were blown over.

A telephone pole on South Fourth street was shattered by lightning.

Wind blew off the chimney of the Morris Mayer house on Norfolk avenue, occupied by the Anthes and Smith families.

A half inch of rain fell in all.

Many farmers in that section sought their cellars in fear of the funnel-shaped cloud. At the farm of Joseph Krucka two large barns and a corn crib were demolished, three horses killed and a hired man's leg broken in two places. Some new lumber was brought across the river from somewhere.

People coming into Norfolk from the north say that they could see the funnel shaped tornado from the railroad track yesterday afternoon as it swept along the country. It was also seen from Ewing. Sheds on farms near Orchard were destroyed.

Ed Haley, a commercial traveler, came in on a train from Ewing. The train stopped for the tornado to pass and the travelers were all ready to tie down in a hollow along the right of way, filled with water, M. D. Tyler says that there was ng, in his bedroom. The pocket knife was found near his side. Coroner Kindred of Meadow Grove was notified by County Attorney Koenigstein and arrived in Norfolk on the noon train from the west, to hold an inquest this afternoon.

Seefeldt was a bachelor of some fifty years, and suffered with a large growth in the back of his neck, as a result of which affliction he had become lately totally blind. It is supposed that despondency over his condition in life, led him to kill himself. Also Deaf.

Seefeldt, besides having been blind for four or five months, had been deaf for the past four or five years.

He had frequently expressed a desire to end his life, as he said he was tired of living. He formerly worked for C. H. Krahn as bushelman. Seefeldt retired as usual last night and nothing was known of his death until he was called for breakfast by Mrs. John Seefeldt. He had made his home for some time with his brother. When Mrs. Seefeldt received no answer to the call, she opened the door and found the man lying in a pool of blood. At first no knife was found,
