WILLIS WRITES POETRY.

Battle Creek Postmaster Moved to Send Verse to Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., June 26.—When Postmaster F. H. L. Willis of Battle Creek, Neb., received an invitation to attend the postmasters' convention in Omaha yesterday and today the prospect of coming to Omaha moved him to reply in poetic phrase.

His poem which he sent in reply to Secretary Cook is as follows:

I want to go to Omaha, And see some things I never saw; To see Jim Dahman and his rope, To see him throw it, too, I hope;

To see the jury I'd not refuse, With which the gambler bled the News;

I would like to view them, one by one, And gaze awhile on Dennison;

To see the saintly Patrick Crowe, And the jury, too, that let him go; I'd like to see King Ak-Sar-Ben, And beard the lion in his den;

And now, friend Cook, 'tween you and me, There is lots of things I'd like to see, And with the P. M.'s to commune, There on the twenty-fifth of June.

CAUGHT HER TRAIN.

Chief Dispatcher Proves Railroad Man Has a Heart.

Fremont, Neb., June 26.—Persons who happened to be at the union passenger station yesterday afternoon saw a sobbing woman with her two infant children placed in the cab of a switch engine to be hurried east in pursuit of a train that had just pulled out. The conduct of the woman and the railroad men who cared for her indicated something unusual was "up" but the passengers were left to guess what it was.

The Missouri Valley train which had preceded the engine out of the yards was overtaken at East End station. There the woman was transferred to the passenger.

She and the children had come here from Hot Springs, S. D., by way of Grand Island and had missed the Blair connection by one minute. The woman was hurrying to the bedside of her dying mother at Blair, so she said afterwards. She was in a convulsion of sobs when Chief Dispatcher "Billy" Golden happened to pass through the waiting room, and was attracted by her apparent distress. The woman told Mr. Golden of her predicament and renewed her crying. It happened that the switching engine was passing at the moment, and Mr. Golden stopped it. Putting the woman and children aboard it, he hurried them to East End station. He wired ahead to the operator there to hold the train for the switch engine.

The woman was profuse in her thanks to the railroad men when she was able to realize what had been done for her. "I had always been told," she said to a passenger, "that railroad men did not have hearts. I guess I never knew any of them very well before."
