

BASE BALL TOURNAMENT

IDEA IS GAINING FAVOR AMONG NORFOLK BUSINESS MEN.

WOULD HAVE THREE DAYS BALL

A Leader is Wanted Who Will Make Canvass for Funds For the Event, Which May be Had for the Asking. Championship to be Determined.

A north Nebraska baseball championship tournament for Norfolk is gaining favor among Norfolk business men. A number of business men are ready to raise a fund to guarantee the necessary purses. All that seems needed to bring the tournament to Norfolk is the willingness of some organization or baseball "fan" to take charge of the movement.

North Nebraska this season has a number of fast lines who are playing close to league ball and among whom a healthy rivalry exists. Norfolk as the railroad center of north Nebraska ought to be the place for some of the fastest of these teams to meet in a real championship tournament. The remarkably fast ball games pulled off during racing week demonstrated that Norfolk has a good baseball atmosphere.

With Norfolk avenue business men willing to raise a guarantee fund, trusting to the gate receipts to equal the fund, with some of the fastest teams in the northwest available, a big base ball tournament for Norfolk is substantial enough to be worked up.

The coming of the Barnum & Bailey circus to Norfolk on September 10 will strike one week from the baseball calendar. Of the other weeks available the first week in September has been viewed with favor.

The baseball tournament as outlined would run three days. At least four teams would contest.

R. Thlem is building a handsome bungalow on his place a mile east of the city, which when completed will be one of the neatest residences in this section.

H. E. Hardy says that the best way to visit the Yellowstone park is to enter the park by way of Cody. He enjoyed his trip very much and found good fishing, though the fish are afflicted with worms and are not good for eating purposes. Guns are not allowed in the park so that there is little shooting done there.

Campbell Brothers' circus is not going to Fremont on August 28. Persons who had contracted with Campbell Bros. show to haul its baggage and furnish its supplies have received notice that the concern has decided not to fill its date here on August 28. It is said the management decided to cancel the date when it learned that Ringlings had been in Fremont.

Another long distance toll operator has been added to the force of girls in the Norfolk exchange of the Nebraska Telephone company. The employment of the additional operator was authorized as a result of the increase of long distance business through the Norfolk exchange. This increase has been very noticeable during the summer both in Norfolk and north Nebraska.

The telegraphers' strike has had no appreciable effect in increasing the volume of the long distance business out of the Norfolk telephone exchange. While a number of people may have turned to the telephone in preference to the strike burdened telegraph wires, the fact that Nebraska service was maintained by the telegraph companies prevented any considerable transfer of business to the telephone exchange.

Yesterday for another time J. C. Rothe, a Clearwater business man, passed through Norfolk on a funeral journey to Humphrey, the former home of Mr. Rothe and his family. This time it was the body of his wife who was carried through the city for burial at Humphrey. In two years Mr. Rothe has been deprived of death of a wife and three children, the tragic drowning of one little son starting all north Nebraska. A son of Mr. Rothe, for some months a student of the Norfolk business college, was one of the funeral party yesterday.

W. M. Rainbolt will leave tomorrow morning for Omaha, where he goes to make his future home and to become secretary of the new Peters Trust company of that city, which will begin business September 1. Mr. Rainbolt has lived practically all of his life in Norfolk and his many friends here very much regret the city's loss in his departure, though anticipating and sincerely wishing for him splendid success in his new venture. He has an extensive acquaintance over the north-west which will be of advantage to him in this new work. Mrs. Rainbolt will not go to Omaha immediately but will follow shortly.

Two new vacancies in the Norfolk teaching force has brought another touch of grief to the Norfolk school authorities. Miss Householder of Bladen, who was elected sixth grade teacher last week, has this week notified the board of her election to another position. The second resignation came from Miss Neigh of West Point, who was added to the teaching force this summer. These two resignations will force an emergency meeting on the board of education as soon as two new teachers are located. The difficulty of the Norfolk board this year in getting a full list of teachers for the approaching school term has not been paralleled in recent years but the same situation is said to exist in many other Nebraska cities.

SYNOD COMES TO AN END

NORFOLK HAS HAD 300 GUESTS FOR PAST WEEK.

BEEN A PROFITABLE SESSION

Not Many Churches in the State Are Large Enough to Handle the Synod Convention—Guests Have Been Hospitably Entertained Here.

The Tuesday session of the state convention of the Lutheran churches of the Missouri synod brings the meeting of the state synod to a close.

Many business items of importance such as the election of delegates to the national synod and the selection of a meeting place for the synod two years hence, were left over to the Tuesday afternoon session.

The program of the state gathering provides for a final adjournment Tuesday evening. Most of the 300 delegates who have been in attendance remained over for the closing sessions and will leave for their homes Wednesday morning and noon.

The doctrinal discussions ran over from last week and occupied Monday and Tuesday mornings. The business session of Monday afternoon was largely concerned with mission matters. The mission work of the synod was shown by reports to be making splendid headway and securing gratifying results. The state synod supports different places in Nebraska.

Monday evening special services were held in Christ Lutheran church for the visiting ministers. Rev. C. Brommer of Beatrice preached the confessional sermon. The regular sermon of the evening was delivered by Rev. Mr. Dramelov of McCook. His subject was from First Tim. 4:16.

The state synod which is closing in Norfolk is characterized as a very profitable session. The visiting guests have been hospitably entertained in the Lutheran homes of Norfolk and have been guests whom Norfolk was glad to entertain. No session of the state synod will be held next year on account of the meeting of the national synod next year in Fort Wayne Ind. Once in three years the national synod meets and once in three years the state synod meets north of the Platte and once south. The state synod of recent years has grown so that there are not many churches capable of caring for the big gathering.

NEIGHBORS IN TROUBLE.

Farmer of Holt County Under Arrest Charged With Shooting.

O'Neill Frontier: There was trouble at the farm of John Rotherham in Emmet township and leaden shot flying last Thursday, according to the story of Cornelius O'Connell related to the guardians of the peace and dignity of the state of Nebraska in Holt county. On the strength of his story, County Attorney Whelan caused the arrest of Mr. Rotherham the first of the week and placed him under bonds to appear in the county court for a preliminary hearing next Tuesday.

The story of Mr. O'Connell relates that on Thursday of last week while he and his helpers were at work in the hay field near the Rotherham place he sent a young boy by the name of Farr whom he has employed, to the Rotherham place for a jug of water.

An hour or more elapsed after the boy's departure and he not having returned, Mr. O'Connell took a team and wagon and drove to the Rotherham place to ascertain what had become of the boy. He says he met Mr. Rotherham near the house and asked if the Farr boy had been there. Mr. Rotherham replied that he was there some place about playing with his boy, of about the same age. O'Connell says he requested Rotherham to call his boy but this he refused to do. After some parleying O'Connell was asked to go into the house, he states, and was followed by Rotherham, who, as they entered the door, reached for his shot gun and undertook to strike with it. O'Connell says he warded off the blow by raising his hand and caught the gun as it descended between the thumb and fore finger.

At this he made for the door to get away, exclaiming as he went, "My God! John, what do you mean?" He states that Rotherham shot as he ran out. When outside, Mr. O'Connell says he demanded to know what the attack meant and told his assailant that if there was "anything between them" to put his gun down and come outside and settle it. Rotherham, he says, set his gun down and started after him. At this juncture, Rotherham's daughter picked up the gun and started to run away with it. Her father caught her and after a struggle succeeded in getting the gun again. In the meantime, O'Connell made for his wagon and drove away as fast as he could, and alleges as he was driving away Rotherham shot the second time, some of the shot striking him in the hand and side near the waist line. Some of the charge of shot also lodged in the wagon box and a few scattering missiles struck one of his horses.

Mr. O'Connell's story is the only side of the case the Frontier has heard. He says he is at a loss to account for the assault as they never had trouble before and Rotherham has always been accounted a peaceable citizen, unless it was because the Farr boy declined to leave him and go to Rotherham's to work. He says the Farr boy was held a prisoner by Rotherham when he went for the jug of water. Rotherham asked the boy, he tells, to leave O'Connell and come and work for him and when the boy declined he tried to induce him to go into the cellar to get some beer. Failing in this and the boy becoming frightened he put both the Farr boy and his own boy in the closet and locked the door. It was during their alleged imprisonment that O'Connell appeared on the scene and the affair, he relates, is then said to have taken place.

TWO CIRCUS PERFORMANCES

First Barnum & Bailey Car Bills the Town.

Two performances will be given in Norfolk on September 10 by the Barnum & Bailey circus. The first advance car of the world's biggest circus arrived in Norfolk Monday evening to spread the delights of the big show by poster and delight.

The circus advance car which was in Norfolk Tuesday, coming in from Omaha and leaving Tuesday afternoon for Grand Island, is one of the three cars that precede the big show and which will visit this city within intervals of one week.

The car carried twenty-eight men. Five teams were sent out from here following the car's arrival in the city. Loaded with circulars and posters, the men from the circus car starting out in five different directions are bringing messages of joy to the children of the countryside about Norfolk.

Norfolk's bill boards and many of the store windows are filled with brightly colored lithographs giving the glad tidings of the circus' coming. This first car limited its attention to Norfolk and the surrounding country. The two cars that follow will include the surrounding lines of railroad, billing north Nebraska towns.

"From the first time I ever saw the town, I have thought Norfolk was one of the liveliest cities of its size anywhere in the country," said F. G. Simmons of Seward, who was in town between trains yesterday. Mr. Simmons commented particularly upon the enterprise and push of Norfolk business men as a whole and said that the progress of the town was due to untiring zeal and energy on the part of the business people. Norfolk business men, he said, are as up-to-date and progressive a crowd as can be found anywhere.

The first of next month material alterations will be made in the storefront of the Wilkinson building occupied by the A. L. Killian company. The changes are intended to give the store a front modern in all respects and to afford greater facilities for window display work. The two side entrances are to be combined into a center entrance. This will economize on space, especially in the matter of giving greater window room in the big double store frontage. Prism glass will be used to give better lighting facilities to the store.

Two new modern machines rarely ever found in a city of this size have just been installed in The News plant—a big power paper cutter and an automatic mailing and addressing machine such as is used on the largest magazine publications. The new power paper cutter is a Sheridan's new model with every known quick-acting appliance, a self clamp, 36-inch blade, etc. The big cutting machine weighs 4,500 pounds. By merely touching a lever an operator on this machine sends the big sharp knife automatically down through a stack of paper many inches high. So smoothly does the machine work that the blade goes through the hardest kind of paper like a cheese knife and the resulting shave is as perfect as perfect can be. And not only can a tall stack of paper be cut or trimmed, but the mammoth knife will drop down and slice in two the thinnest sheet of tissue. It is impossible on a hand cutter to trim just exactly, but with this power machine the finest of finishing can be given to any job, and particularly books. The new automatic addressing machine is the finest type made and does away with much hand work. It is an interesting machine to watch in operation, turning out addressed wrappers at the rate of 100 per minute. The addresses are printed by this machine in stencil letters such as are to be found on any magazine wrapper. The machine prints the addresses and cuts off the wrappers from an endless roll of paper, coupling completely addressed envelopes, etc., at a marvelous rate of speed.
