It would be hardly justice for the city of Madison to have two county commissioners and the western end of the county none.

the importance of agriculture in the prosperity of any country or any portion of a country, and the positive necessity of diversification for continued productivity of the soil.

Mr. Hill told of his efforts to induce the farmers of the northwest to raise cattle and hogs and of his free distribution of 800 thoroughbred bulls of the best breeds and from 6,000 to 7,000 head of highly-bred hogs.

With arrangements perfected for such performances, Mr. Frohman would bring his companies from New York without interfering with any engagements playing in Washington theaters.

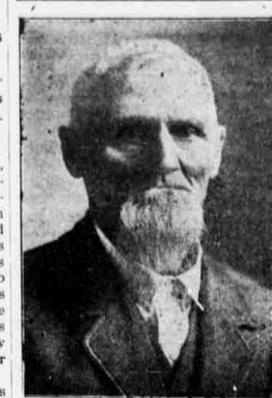

that the republican organization in New York is working with Hearst in order to undermine the president, is a riddle.

It is rather remarkable, in view of the efforts of college faculties to mitigate the rigors of football by the adoption of rules favoring open play, to find that Minnesota is classed as inferior to Chicago because, in her Nebraska game, she won by field goals instead of by touchdowns.

A Sturdy Pioneer of Norfolk Many Times on the City Council

JULIUS DEGNER

What more could man desire than to have helped in the founding of a town as one of its pioneers, to have learned while young to work with the hands and to have thus made an honest living, to have been one of the founders of the first church in a new frontier, to have reared a family of highly respected sons and daughters, to have built his own home with his own hands and, in maturer years, to dwell in peace and quiet, taking an active interest in the public affairs of the community and enjoying the friendship and good will of one's neighbors?

wagon shop of August Pasewalk. In fact, Mr. Degner taught his trade to August Pasewalk as well as to Otto Buchel.

Eighteen years ago, after he had retired from active work, Mr. Degner built the home on South Fourth street in which he still lives today.

Many Times on City Council. Many times has Julius Degner been called upon to serve as a member of the Norfolk city council.

One significant fact stands out in Mr. Degner's service as a city councilman. During all of the years that he has been a member of the council, he has at all times been chairman of the street and alley committee.

Golden Wedding in 1909. In 1909 Mr. and Mrs. Degner will celebrate their golden wedding. It was in 1859 that they were married in Germany and they contemplate a large celebration two years hence.

This golden wedding will be in line with the family custom, as Mr. Degner's father and mother celebrated their golden wedding in Norfolk some years ago.

Julius Degner was born in Cramondorf, Germany, June 30, 1834. His father was Chris Degner. On the day that Julius Degner was confirmed, Oct. 29, 1848, he started in upon his apprenticeship as a blacksmith.

In October, 1867, Mr. Degner came to America. His father had preceded him a year. He at first went to Lebanon, Wis., near Watertown and started a blacksmith shop. He got the Nebraska fever and came to Norfolk two years later.

Mr. Degner was here when the first church in northern Nebraska was founded, the Christ Lutheran church of Norfolk. In fact he was one of the original founders.

Both brothers took homesteads east of the town—on part of the Julius Degner homestead Fred Schwede lives at the present time.

Julius Degner was the father of ten children. Of these, six are living today and all are well known in Norfolk. Al Degner, the eldest, is one of the most substantial business men in the city.

Mr. Degner at that time built a home on North Third street. Today part of that old house serves as the NEBRASKA CORN. Nearly one hundred million dollars is the farm value placed by experts upon the corn crop which Nebraska has produced this year.

In comparison with the wealth plucked from Nebraska cornfields in one year, the figures of the mineral wealth of Alaska, California and Colorado, which figure largely in the imaginative literature of the day, are pitifully small.

Grain men estimate Nebraska's corn crop for 1907 at 190,000,000 bushels, or one-fourth less than the yield of the state last year.

Few who have not studied the subject realize that there is but a limited area of land in which the big yellow ear of American corn can be raised.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING. Diversified farming as the key to successful agriculture was given stimulation in a speech at St. Paul the other night by James J. Hill.

Pointing to France, "a nation of agriculturists, a frugal, plodding people," he said that the farmer is going to have no idea that a farmer is going to be best by taking them, wrapped in

As an example of profit in cattle raising Mr. Hill relates one of his own experiments. "When wheat was selling at 55 cents in Minnesota," said he, "I thought I would try what wheat would do to feed steers.

Speaking of natural resources, Mr. Hill said: "All you have in the northwest—in Minnesota and the two Dakotas at least—is soil and climate. Everything of value comes from four sources. The seas is one of them, but it only contributes about 2 1/2 per cent of the whole, and the other 97 1/2 per cent is contributed by the farm, the forest and the mine.

"Without the farm," said he, "the state of Minnesota would be practically a desert, and if you go on cultivating the land without renewing it, without fertilizing it, it will in time be as much of a desert as the valley of the Euphrates that once held (as far as we know) the Garden of Eden."

But the corn crop is far from being Nebraska's only source of wealth. Winter wheat has become one of the state's staple crops, and the annual harvest for several years has averaged 50,000,000 bushels.

The great basis of all your business and your prosperity and your wealth comes out of the cultivation of the soil, and in that you are particularly favored. No part of the United States today stands as well, stands on as safe a basis as the northwest.

FOOD AND DRUG LABELS. Henceforth all food and drug labels having to do with commodities sold in interstate commerce, must fill all requirements of the federal regulations.

There was an effort made by some of the wholesale grocers to avoid full compliance with the regulations and some encouragement of success had been found in the fact that the government allowed the use, up until Oct. 1, 1907, of old labels, even though incorrect, which had been printed prior to Oct. 16, 1906.

A strange political tie-up down in New York is amazing both the sober minded folk of that town and the people of the country at large.

Without the farm, said he, "the state of Minnesota would be practically a desert, and if you go on cultivating the land without renewing it, without fertilizing it, it will in time be as much of a desert as the valley of the Euphrates that once held (as far as we know) the Garden of Eden."

Editor Accidentally Kills Himself. Boise, Ida., Oct. 24.—R. E. Lockwood, a well known Idaho newspaper man, accidentally shot and killed himself at Regis. He had planned to leave for Boise to assume the position of managing editor of the Idaho Sentinel, a weekly paper being started by former Senator Dubois.

Following the action of the Associated Banks of New York last Friday in deciding to issue clearing house certificates for balances due them in clearing house settlements and their decision to pay no currency, the Associated Banks of Chicago found themselves obliged to adopt the same course and in consequence all banks in financial centers, such as Minneapolis, St. Paul, Sioux City, Omaha, Lincoln and Fremont have been compelled to take like action.

The relations of the Norfolk banks with New York are not extensive and are mainly confined to an exchange business. Their chief correspondents are in Chicago, Omaha and Sioux City, and if the disturbance had been confined to New York, Norfolk would only have had a casual interest in the matter, but the action of the Chicago, Omaha and Sioux City banks, from whom the currency for the movements of grain and cattle is obtained, in refusing, temporarily, to pay more currency against deposits, has made it necessary for all banks in the territory tributary to those cities to take a similar position.
