

AN ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY

ENGAGEMENT OF MR. PASEWALK AND MISS NORTON.

PARTY GIVEN FRIDAY EVENING

Wedding Which Will Take Place in the Spring Will United Two Prominent Norfolk People—Other Events of the Week.

The feature of the week's social life in Norfolk was the announcement party given Friday evening for Miss Fannie Norton, when the announcement of her engagement to Mr. L. P. Pasewalk was made. These young people are prominent members of society and the forthcoming wedding will meet the approval of many friends.

Society as a whole has not been doing much during the past week, there being no large parties to engage attention, but a number of small gatherings have proved pleasant pastimes. The coming Thanksgiving, when family gatherings will be held in practically every home, is taking much of the thought of the socially inclined just now and outside of Thanksgiving gatherings it is not probable that there will be much stir for another week to come.

Pleasures of the Week.

"Maidens All Forlorn," a little drama cleverly carried out by six young ladies of Queen Esther circle of the Methodist church, pleased the audience that filled the auditorium of the church Friday evening. The drama was a prelude to a bazaar conducted during the evening in the church parlors. Those who took part in the little sketch were Misses Anna Fair, Mino McNeely, Willie Adams, Margaret Austin, Elsie Johnson and Mae Bickford. Prettily decorated booths in the church parlors were in charge of the following young ladies: Fanny work booth, Miss Ethel Doughty and Miss Jessie Drebert; candy booth, Miss Margaret Austin and Miss Ruby Macy; corn booth, Miss Edna Loucks and Miss Mino McNeely; lunch booth, Miss Lena Mills, Miss Anna Fair, Miss Ella Bland and Miss Willie Adams.

The ladies of the First Congregational church gave a chicken pie supper and bazaar at the church parlors Thursday evening, supper being served from 5:30 to 8. A great many business men and their families stopped for supper with the ladies and the entertainment was voted worth while. A nice fund was realized from the entertainment for the church treasury, and everyone who attended had a most enjoyable evening, from those who did the work to those who served.

The Lady Maccabees gave a chicken pie supper at the Junction Thursday evening which was a success in every particular. The attendance was large, the supper was fine and the entertainment gave the society a net profit of about $25.00.

Monday evening was the occasion of a lodge party and entertainment given in their lodge rooms by the Norfolk Tribe of Ben Hur. A special program was carried out and lunch was served in the latter part of the evening. About sixty people were present.

Mrs. C. W. Ray on Tuesday was given an opportunity to become acquainted with members of Dr. Ray's congregation and other Norfolk people at a reception given complimentary to her at the home of C. E. Doughty. About 150 people attended the reception.

Members of the clerks' association spent Tuesday evening at progressive high five, holding a social meeting in the city hall.

The recently organized "social circle" was entertained Monday evening at the state hospital by Miss Robb.

Miss Maude Clark entertained eight young ladies at an informal party Friday evening.

The Wednesday club met this week with Mrs. N. A. Huse.

Hymenial.

A dinner party given Friday evening by Mrs. P. F. Bell was the occasion of the announcement of the engagement of Miss Fannie Norton to Mr. Leo P. Pasewalk. Guests at the dinner party were told that the wedding would occur in the spring.

Announcement of the engagement was made informally during the evening. Those present at the dinner party were: Mrs. L. B. Nicola, Mrs. Bert Gentle, Mrs. G. A. Young, Miss Stella Luikart, Miss Fale Burnham, Miss Mattie Davenport, Miss Laura Durland and Mrs. Corl Jenkins of Madison, the latter a sister of Miss Norton to whom the party was complimentary.

Both Miss Norton and Mr. Pasewalk have been prominent in the social life of Norfolk. Miss Norton is the daughter of E. M. Norton, now of Wheatland, Wyo., but for many years a prominent resident of Norfolk. Mr. Pasewalk is cashier of the Norfolk National bank.

Mr. J. B. Hight of Norfolk but now living temporarily near Interior, S. D., and Miss Mabel Estabrook of Norfolk will be married at the Estabrook home in this city on Wednesday, December 4. It will be a quiet home wedding with a simple ceremony. Both young people are prominent in Norfolk.

In Stanton on last Saturday evening Mr. Earle J. Blakeman of Norfolk and Miss Lillian Johnson of Los Angeles, Calif., were married in the Congregational parsonage by Rev. W. J. Turner of Norfolk, who had accompanied the bride party to Stanton. A wedding trip to Lincoln and other points in the southern part of the state preceded the return of Mr. and Mrs. Blakeman to Norfolk.

John Loch and Miss Caroline Dreesen of Norfolk will be married on the afternoon of Wednesday, November 27, the ceremony taking place at St. Paul Ev. Lutheran church. Rev. John Witte will perform the ceremony.

Invitations were issued during the week to the marriage of Mr. Ray Benish and Miss Anna Matilda Skiff at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Skiff on Thursday, November 28.

Coming Events.

On Friday of next week the first banquet of the new North Nebraska School Folks club will be held in Norfolk. The banquet will be held at the Pacific hotel and will be preceded by a business meeting for organization purposes.

The next Elk dance will be given December 20.

Earrings.

The message comes from the east, and it is flashed over the wire because a matter of so much importance as this could not endure the tedious delay of Uncle Sam's mail pouches, that the "Four Hundred" are now having their ears pierced and getting out grandmother's earrings. And when the "Four Hundred" adopt a new fad or revive an old one, all the rest of the world, or anyway so much thereof as is included in the domain of the stars and stripes, is expected to at once follow and give thanks to the grand dames for giving them something new to do. Earrings of the nineteenth century are fashion's latest craze. The longer the pendant the better; the more oddly designed the more desirable.

Mrs. Glyn started New York society at a dinner party given by Mrs. John Jacob Astor wearing a pair of earrings set with massive pear-shaped pearls and topped by bow-knots of diamonds. It is her favorite set, worth $4,000.

The "Four Hundred" fell quickly into line. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Herman Oelrich, Mrs. Harry Lehr and Miss Gladys Vanderbilt were among the first to adopt the fad.

The new earrings differ from those of our grandmothers in that they are lighter and longer, but the old style is copied as closely as possible. If anything, though, heirlooms are given preference.

Miss Gladys Vanderbilt is wearing a striking set executed in Austrian workmanship, a gift from her fiancé, Count Szechenyi. They are finely wrought gold with pearl settings.

Mrs. Fish wears sapphires and pearls, Mrs. Lehr a solitaire diamond with pink pearl pendant, and Mrs. Oelrich a gold leaf design with a topaz setting.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Following is the Thanksgiving day proclamation by Gov. Geo. L. Sheldon of Nebraska:

This has been a busy and fruitful year. Our granaries and our storehouses are filled with the products of our farms and our factories. Our pastures and our feed-lots contain cattle, hogs, and sheep without number. Our commercial and business institutions are solvent. Our people, realizing that they must go up or down together, have full confidence in each other's honesty and integrity. The industry and frugal for a decade have been well rewarded for their labor. This has enabled them to provide their families with the comforts of life and build beautiful homes in our cities and throughout the country.

For all things that have promoted our peace, prosperity and happiness, it is fitting that thanks should be rendered unto Him whose invisible hand controls our destiny.

The president of the United States has appointed a day of general thanksgiving and prayer. Under the authority vested in me by law, and in accordance with the established custom, I, George Lawson Sheldon, governor of the state of Nebraska, do hereby proclaim the same day, Thursday, November 28, 1907, as Thanksgiving day in this commonwealth.

No business will be transacted on that day in any departments of the state.

The people of this state are earnestly urged to refrain from unnecessary labor on that day and to assemble in their homes and in public places of worship to render thanks unto the Supreme Ruler of the Universe for the blessings we have received as a state and nation, and to implore Him to give us inspiration and wisdom to do nobly the work that lies before us. "Let us come before His presence with Thanksgiving—"For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations."

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the state of Nebraska.

Done at Lincoln this 19th day of November, A. D. 1907.

George L. Sheldon, governor.

HISTORY OF LAND CASES

PIONEERS SETTLED BEFORE THE COUNTRY WAS SURVEYED.

HELPED TO DEVELOP COUNTRY

Land Was Thrown Open to Settlement in 1889 But Was Not Surveyed Until 1896—in the Meantime the State Was Given Odd Numbered Sections.

For the purpose of inducing the state board of public properties to scale down the appraisements on Boyd county lands which have been in controversy between the state of Nebraska and so-called "squatters" who settled upon them in an early day, says the Lincoln News, arguments were made before that body Saturday by Attorneys Sanford Parker and M. F. Harrington of O'Neill. The hearing took place at the office of Governor Sheldon, who is not a member of the board, but was desired by the officials who are members to participate in it.

Beginning at 10 o'clock, two hours time was taken up in going over the questions that have been so long in litigation. The lands in controversy, aggregating 2,200 acres, were assessed in 1905 by the Boyd county commissioners at $7 to $15 per acre. On review by the state land commissioner's office, these figures were raised to a minimum of $20 and a maximum of $32 per acre. The occupants of the tracts do not wish to pay these higher prices and have appealed to the state board to date the appraisement back several years, when lands in north Nebraska were not worth as much as now. They said this should be done because they were ready to buy at that time, but could not do so because the matter was in litigation and it could not be told whether the state of Nebraska or the United States held title. The final result of the litigation was a decision by the courts that the land belonged to the state.

The governor and the board of public lands and buildings listened to what the attorneys had to say, asked questions and discussed what should be done, but arrived at no definite conclusions. Land Commissioner Eaton stated that he thought the date of the 1905 appraisement might be set back several years and the squatters allowed to pay at the rates prevailing in 1901 or 1902. A dozen or more of the men who are living on the disputed domain were present at the hearing.

Attorney Parker, who is receiver of the United States land office at O'Neill declared that this was the thirty-seventh trip he has made to Lincoln on business connected with the Boyd county land cases. He said the matter was one of the legacies handed down to the present state board from previous administrations.

The history of the affair was reviewed at length by Parker, who said that the tracts which the settlers now wish to purchase were originally part of an Indian reservation and later included in the old Fort Randall military reservation, during war times. In 1889, congress passed a bill throwing the Indian lands open to settlement, and in 1893 the military reservations were added to this territory by another act. At the same time, the state of Nebraska was given authority to select lands from the odd numbered sections within the region specified to indemnify it for other lands which had been lost through squatters obtaining prior rights.

In defense of the men who are now seeking to purchase the lands they occupy, Parker declared that they were pioneers who came before the country was surveyed and helped to develop it. He stated that the government survey was not made until 1896, so that these settlers had no foreknowledge where to locate and could not tell in advance what tracts were reserved for the state. He further pointed out that the government surveyors placed the names of the settlers on the official plats, to that extent recognizing their rights.

It was shown that former Land Commissioner J. V. Wolfe of Nebraska made selections for the state in 1897 and filed them in the land office at O'Neill, which was instructed by the government at Washington to accept no applications for homesteads on the same lands. A letter written by Wolfe at the time was read, showing that he had endeavored to pick lands not occupied by settlers but unwittingly chose some on which the men now interested had made their homes.

Land Commissioner Follmer, who succeeded Wolfe, suggested legislation allowing the state to sell to the squatters, and a bill was passed authorizing the governor to make deeds. This was declared unconstitutional, as the Nebraska constitution provides that no state lands shall be relinquished for a less consideration than $7 per acre.

Another bill was passed by the legislature of 1905 authorizing the state to sell at appraised valuations. This is the act under which the settlers hope to acquire the lands they are on. The only difference between themselves and the state at this time relates to the prices at which the state will sell.

A talk was given by Attorney Harrington, who said Land Commissioner Wolfe made a trip to Boyd county on O'Neill, driving forty-five miles overland to view the tracts, but that he got only "as far as Jim Malone's" and never saw the lands in controversy.

"I guess the land commissioner was having too good a time to make the rest of the journey," remarked Harrington, who said he would not enter into details as to what the good time might have been like.

He gave the settlers credit for going into a new country, forty miles off the nearest railroad, and there laboring to convert it into a producing region. The land was originally held by the United States, he asserted, at not more than $1.25 to $3.50 per acre. The fact that these men were the victims of Wolfe's mistake, thought Harrington, should not deprive them of the chance to buy at the first appraised value of $7 to $15 per acre, which he said was high enough, considering that they had developed the lands themselves and endured all the hardships of pioneers.

As a further reason for selling the lands and getting them off the state's hands, Harrington declared that the state is now getting no rents for them as the law requires an intending lessee to deposit the cash value of improvements which have been made by the settlers. The county commissioners have the province of determining what improvements are worth, and as they would place the figures higher than anyone might care to pay. The attorney intimated that the settlers have the state at a disadvantage and could keep it there until there is some final settlement and a transfer of the titles.

"If these men are not paying rent or taxes, what kink have they on the way things now stand? Why do they want us to do anything?" inquired Treasurer Brian.

"Well, some of them might die and their relatives could not inherit the property, so they would like to get title to the lands and insure their families from being evicted," Harrington replied.

The hearing concluded without any further progress being made, and the state officials will consult among themselves as to what course shall be pursued.

Land Commissioner Eaton during the forenoon got word from Washington that 1,065 acres of government land in Cherry county has been allowed the state in lieu of lands lost through washing of streams and miscellaneous other causes. The selections were made by the state several years ago, since which time its application for their approval has been on file at the national capital.

BUSINESS WAS SLOW.

Reasons Why a Customer Was Not Ready to Pay.

Following is a reply received by the Sturgeon Music company to a rather urgent request for payment of an old bill that had been standing some time: Sturgeon Music Comp., Norfolk, Neb.—Dear Sir: I have received your letter in regarding to pay my agreement and will say I will send you the whole amount 16.35 soon I can. PENNY ROBBER AT NELIGH

SECURED ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY COPPERS.

THEN HE MADE A GETAWAY

Pursued by the Nightwatchman, Who Fires Several Shots at the Retreating Penny Thief—Escapes in the Trees Along the River.

Neligh, Neb., Nov. 23.—Special to The News: A burglar entered the grocery and furniture store of A. H. Phillips at 6 o'clock this morning and made a haul of 160 pennies that had been left in the till last night. The burglar escaped.

Entrance to the store was effected by pushing in a cracked glass in the front door. As the man was leaving the store the night watchman discovered him, but was too far away and the man was too good a sprinter to be captured. The watchman followed him a mile up the river, firing at him several times as they were footing it over the country, but apparently not doing any damage to the robber. Finally the fugitive dodged among the trees along the river bank and got away. It was still quite dark at that hour in the morning and it was impossible for the watchman to see his man at any great distance.

When in the store the robber missed a slot machine that contained several dollars' worth of nickles, that he might have had if he had been a little more inquisitive. Money was evidently what he was after as nothing else was disturbed so far as can be ascertained.

Mr. Phillips is now in Excelsior Springs, Mo., for his health and the business is being conducted by the clerks.

Entertainments.

The O. M. C. club was entertained Saturday evening by Miss Erna Wilde. The chess club was entertained at high five Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Biersdorf on South Tenth street. Miss Hattie Lichtenberg and Will Lichtenberg attended the party from Hadar.

Son at Max Wilde's.

Norfolk relatives have been informed of the arrival of a little son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Wilde in Bazile Mills, where Mr. Wilde is cashier of the First National bank.

CORRESPONDING MEMBERS

MANY WILL ATTEND THE Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

IN NORFOLK NEXT FEBRUARY

Important Branch of the Work of the Y. M. C. A. is Carried on by Correspondents—Who They Are in North Nebraska.

The state convention of the Y. M. C. A. in Norfolk next February will bring a good many men to this city from points other than the cities where regular associations are maintained.

An important branch of the Y. M. C. A. work is embraced in the work of the corresponding members. The association has corresponding members in most of the towns of the state and these members can come as delegates to the Norfolk convention.

The work of the corresponding members is to keep the state association in touch with the state as a whole and especially to give the city associations notice of young men who are leaving their home towns for the larger cities where associations are maintained and where they may be of much service to the young man who is a stranger in the city.

A good many men, especially north Nebraska men, who are corresponding members have signified their intention of coming to Norfolk this winter for the convention.

ROOSTER STARTS SOMETHING.

Country Bird Comes to Town Mixes Up Two Families.

Pilger, Neb., Nov. 22.—A skinny rooster with hardly enough feathers to cover its nakedness, has caused a heap of trouble in Pilger this week.

G. H. Mahlpe bought it in the country, brought it home and turned it in with the rest of his flock. But the rooster, not feeling at home, meandered across the alley where it found more congenial company among John Foy's bunch. Soon after Mahlpe missed it and followed after the rooster. Foy refused to acknowledge Mahlpe's ownership and wouldn't give it up, but that night Mahlpe's hired man went over and got the rooster without Foy's knowledge or consent.

The next morning on learning that Mahlpe had regained possession, Mrs. Foy went to Stanton to consult an attorney. He advised her to let some disinterested party settle the question. Mrs. Foy returned home, and after a consultation with Mahlpe, it was agreed that Justice of the Peace Antlers should decide.

The judge was loath to make any decision, finally saying he would take the rooster down the alley fifty yards from each place, turn it loose, and with which coop it returned there it would stay as far as he was concerned, that it would stand as the decision of the court.

When the rooster was released from the custody of the court it picked up a few kernels of corn about, and then made a beeline for Mahlpe's. Foy then filed a bill of exceptions alleging that Mahlpe had scattered the corn to induce the rooster to return to him and also made a few other remarks on the side for which Mahlpe proceeded to knock him down a couple of times. Foy promptly had him arrested for assault and battery. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs, and then had Foy arrested for provoking the assault. Foy pleaded guilty, drew $1, and costs and a few hours later meeting Mahlpe's hired man, he made a few more remarks and caused his arrest again and another fine of $1 and costs was taxed up against him.

Peace has been restored and the little skinny rooster still crows and circulates in the alley. The school treasury is $20 richer because of him.

Alnsworth Ladies Entertained.

Alnsworth, Neb., Nov. 23.—Special to The News: Something like a half hundred of the ladies of this city were most delightfully entertained at a musical recital at the parlors of The Osborne yesterday afternoon, given by Mrs. A. W. Scattergood who is a student of the musical department of the state university. Mrs. Scattergood was assisted by her daughter, Miss Mildred, violinist, Mrs. Sadie A. Smith, vocalist, and Miss Jeannette Sison, a talented reader, who is a student at the Wesleyan university at Lincoln. The parlors of the hotel were especially decorated for the occasion.

The following was the program, which was frequently encored: Kwant.....Etude A Major Rubinstein.....Kammenol Ostrow Leschetzky.....Intermezzo in Octaves

Mrs. Scattergood DeBeriot.....Fifth Air Varie op. 7 Schumann.....Traumerel

Mildred Scattergood Field.....Little Boy Cry Field.....There Little Girl Don't Blue Janette Sison

Denza.....Sing On Greene.....Sing Me to Sleep Sadie A. Smith

Hensell.....If I Were a Bird, op. 2, No. 6 Schumann.....Nachtstucke, op. 23 Moskowski.....Waltz, op. 34, No. 1 Mrs. Scattergood

Refreshments were served after the program had been concluded.

NELIGH'S NEW AUDITORIUM

HANDSOME NEW BUILDING COSTING $16,000 IS FINISHED.

TO BE OPENED DECEMBER 2

Constructed by the Odd Fellows, the New Structure is One That the Whole of Neligh Takes Commendable Pride in.

Neligh, Neb., Nov. 23.—Special to The News: Neligh's new auditorium and lodge hall that has been built and completed by the Odd Fellows is now ready for occupancy, or will be ready by Tuesday of next week, when the final connections are made in the heating system.

This building is an ornament to the city and gives much credit to the order that has constructed it. The entire cost will approximate $16,000, and it is considered one of the best constructed buildings in this section of Nebraska. Mr. J. C. Stitt of Norfolk is the architect and Messrs. Kellner & Woerth of Scribner the builders.

The new auditorium will be formally opened to the public on the evening of December 2, by the Arlington Comedians, a company of twenty-two people, who will play an entire week's engagement. This company features the famous Polmatier Sisters Ladies' orchestra, which has drawn so much attention during their western tour.

Messrs. Jenkins & Payne, the managers of the auditorium, have been shelling the woods for many weeks trying to secure the best possible attraction to open the house, and they are convinced that the Arlington Comedians will fill the bill. They pay this company $1,000 for the week's engagement, and if indications count for anything, they will have a nice surplus at the end of the week. The following is the repertoire for the engagement:

Monday evening—"An American Girl;" Tuesday evening—"Jim, the Westerner;" Tuesday afternoon—Free matinee for children; Wednesday evening—"The Parish Priest;" Thursday evening—"Sandy Bottom;" Friday evening—"A Texas Ranger;" Saturday afternoon—Matinee; Saturday evening—"The Black Flag."

It is announced that on Wednesday and Friday evenings after the performance a ball will be given, and music will be furnished by the Polmatier Sisters' orchestra. This is done to please those who enjoy dancing, which goes to show that the management has tried to furnish a week's entertainment that would be pleasing and acceptable to all.

Neligh people feel proud of their new auditorium, and the Odd Fellows throughout the district are rejoicing that they now have a hall where district meetings can be held, and the indications are that all will turn out at this opening and give the management hearty support.

KILLED UNDER A WAGON.

E. G. Johnson, a Ranchman Living Near Inman, Meets Death.

Dr. E. L. Brush was called to Inman Saturday to attend the funeral of his uncle, E. G. Johnson, a ranchman living seven miles from Inman, who was killed in a runaway.

Johnson was hauling lumber and was taking two wagonloads from Inman. When the horses became frightened at a passing passenger train, he brought the two teams together and tried to hold all four horses.

One team broke away but the second team plunged forward, throwing him beneath the wheels of the heavily loaded wagon.

The wagon passed over Dr. Johnson's body, crushing his side. He lived only a few hours after the accident.

The funeral was held Saturday at Inman. The body was taken to Ashland for interment.

DR. PARKER RE-ELECTED.

Retains Old Place of Vice-President of State Dental Board.

Dr. C. S. Parker of this city was elected vice-president of the Nebraska state dental board at a meeting of the board held in Lincoln during the week.

The new officers of the state board are: Dr. J. H. Wallace, Omaha, president; Dr. C. S. Parker, Norfolk, vice president; Dr. H. C. Brock, North Platte, secretary; Dr. W. T. Smith of Geneva was elected delegate to Boston next year to represent the Nebraska board at the national meeting of state dental boards.

WRESTLERS ARE HERE

WASEM OF LINCOLN AND CARROLL, ENGLISH CHAMPION.

AUDITORIUM MONDAY EVENING

Interest in the Event Has Been Great Because of the Reputation of the Two Principals—Men Meet for the First Time.

[From Monday's Daily.] Oscar Waseem of Lincoln, Nebraska, heavy-weight wrestler, and Joe Carroll, the English wrestler who took the English belt a couple of years ago, were in Norfolk early for their match at the Auditorium Monday evening. The men meet in Norfolk for the first time.

Interest in Monday's event has been great because of the reputation of the two principals and the fact that Norfolk is to see a straight match wrestle. Men are coming in from away. Jack O'Leary, Omaha's crack wrestler who has been seen in Norfolk, stopped over the Waseem-Carroll performance on his way to get a match at Dallas. O'Leary said that being in this territory that he couldn't afford to miss the match Monday evening for two of the best men in the country were to be on the mat.

Carroll not long ago took two straight falls away from Prof. M. J. Dwyer, the Denver athletic club man. Arrangements were made Monday for a fast preliminary between two Norfolk men.

Gentleman Jack.

Atkinson Graphic: From the nice write-up given Jack Sullivan of O'Neill in the Sioux City papers and the Norfolk News, he can deservedly be called Gentleman Jack, to which we say amen.

YALE SUPREME IN EAST.

Saturday Brought Victory to Yale, Carlisle and Ames.

Saturday's football contribution to the season's statistics did not lessen Yale's football supremacy in the east this year, Yale defeating Harvard on old line football by the score of 12 to 0.

Carlisle trimmed Chicago 18 to 4. This game, with the two eastern victories of the week before when Pennsylvania beat Michigan 6 to 0 and Carlisle beat Minnesota 12 to 10, is not cheerful dope for western football "rooters."

Nebraska Saturday ran up eighty-five points against Doane college, Thanksgiving the cornhuskers play in St. Louis against St. Louis university.

In Iowa Ames won the state championship by defeating Iowa university 29 to 14.

The Nebraska interscholastic championship was further muddled Saturday by Omaha defeating Lincoln 12 to 0. Omaha has already been defeated by York while Lincoln won from York in a close game.

Wisconsin sprang the surprise of the day by playing Minnesota to a tie, 17 to 17.

QUEENER BACK AGAIN.

Norfolk Queener Begins to Trim Up His Mitts Again.

"Our own" Queener is warming up to the boxing game again. On the Friday after Thanksgiving he will leave Norfolk to take on a bout
