

EXPECTS TRIPP OPENING

JOY M. HACKLER OF GREGORY HOME FROM WASHINGTON.

HE TALKED WITH PRESIDENT

Southern South Dakota Man Says That He Expects the Tripp County Opening to Come Next Fall—Interviewed Interior Department.

"I look for the Tripp county opening to come next fall," said Joy M. Hackler, cashier of the Gregory state bank, an Norfolk yesterday. Mr. Hackler has just returned from a week in Washington, where he met President Roosevelt and interviewed the interior department.

"The opening as every one knows hangs upon the allotment of the Indians' share in the Tripp county land. From what I could gather at Washington this ought to be completed sometime in the summer. This would bring the drawing in the fall and the great incoming of the actual settlers the next spring. I think every thing points to the drawing occurring in 1908 and not 1909.

"Of course there will be a rush that will exceed the Gregory county rush but this much is to be said: that the Indians are showing more judgement in picking their land. Some of the Indians are getting away from the streams and many are clustered west of Dallas.

"Washington is a pleasant place to spend a few days. I was introduced to President Roosevelt by Senator Gamble and was won by the president's open friendship for the west. The president declared that he was an ex-citizen of the Dakotas, having once spent some time on a Dakota ranch. It was quite apparent that Senator Gamble stands well with the president.

"Of course I tried to speak a good word for Gregory while in the east. To come back home, however, I am glad to see the place that The News is holding in our section of South Dakota, through its special news service and telegraphic scoop. We are all interested in the development of southern South Dakota. And we have certainly had a prosperous year."

Mrs. George La Farge, who lives with her father, Abram White, underwent an operation Thursday for appendicitis. In addition to appendicitis it developed that Mrs. La Farge was suffering from gall stones, which were also removed. The operation was performed by Dr. Salter, who was assisted by Dr. Mackay and Dr. Brush. The operation was a very serious one and while the woman stood the effects of the operation well, it was said that the critical period would be the next two or three days.

Mrs. H. E. Owen, of the library board soliciting committee, has appointed a sub-committee to interview L. M. Gaylord regarding property owned by him on Madison avenue, adjoining the Warneke property. The board wants to know if Mr. Gaylord would agree to exchange the front half of his lot for the south half of the Warneke lot. In case he would, the library could stand, if the Warneke site were bought, on a lot having 132 feet frontage on Madison avenue and eighty-eight feet on South Fifth street. Mr. Gaylord, in turn, would have a lot with eighty-eight feet frontage on Fifth street and 132 feet deep. The arrangement would make a better site, in the opinion of the committee. This proposition has struck the library committee very favorably.

D. Mathewson, chairman of the entertainment committee for the Y. M. C. A. convention, and his committee have begun their work of preparing for the entertainment of the delegates during the days they will be in Norfolk. Three sets of cards are used in the work of the committee. Cards were sent out to all prospective delegates to get a line on the attendance. These cards are beginning to come in. Twelve Y. M. C. A. delegates from Wayne have already written. Another set of cards is used in ascertaining how many delegates various Norfolk women will agree to care for during the convention days. A third set of cards have been prepared and will be given the delegates as they arrive, the cards serving to introduce the delegate to the home where he is to be entertained.

There was every indication Friday afternoon that Norfolk would greet Phyllis Daye in the "Wizard of Wall Street" with a big audience at the Auditorium Friday night. Not only is there attraction in the fact that Miss Daye is a former Norfolk girl but the play and company have the reputation of being very creditable. Miss Daye is a very clever little girl who has been winning recognition the last year or two. The "Wizard of Wall Street" is a musical play, a comedy with dancing and music. Among the musical numbers which hold several hits are "When We Go Automobileing;" "I'm the Kid That Built the Pyramids" sung by Ben Krampe; "A Little Dutch Girl" by Phyllis Daye; "School Days" by Frank Kelly; "Bye, Bye My Caroline;" "Short Stories in Tune" by the Kelly-Walters-Krampe trio; "Polly," by Fred Walters; "Soubrette Songs and Dances" by Phyllis Daye; "Rube Song" by Uncle Lou Coleman; "Tipperary Nora," by Cleo Lamphere; "Reed Bird" by Fred Walters; "Many's the Time;" "Bronco Buster" by Phyllis Daye; "Song of America."

A preacher under arrest for fishing illegally will not be prosecuted by the game warden. This, according to a Lincoln dispatch, is the ruling in the case of Rev. T. A. Carpenter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Alnsworth. The ruling does not apply generally to preachers, but to Rev. Mr. Carpenter in particular. He was with a party of four or five men on Clear lake when the deputy swooped down upon them and found holes cut in the ice and a gill net staked in the water beneath. It has been explained that the reverend gentleman was an innocent bystander and Deputy Hyers has been instructed by Chief Game Warden Carter to dismiss the case as to him. Butler and others in the party are believed to have made a practice of taking fish with a net and they will be prosecuted. It is understood they will set up the defense that the lake is not public water. As the land on which the water stands is owned by several parties, the state warden does not believe the defense will be good.

J. W. Ransom, E. B. Kauffman and W. A. Witzigman, representing the Norfolk creamery company are home from Columbus, where they inspected the Columbus plant. A Norfolk school teacher perpetrated a pun this week.

Creighton Band Seeks Honor.

The Creighton band, which took a prominent part in the recent minstrel show of the Norfolk fire department at the Auditorium and which won favor with the Norfolk audience has applied to Governor Sheldon for official recognition from him as the "Civilian State Band of Nebraska." The request is supported by several residents of north Nebraska who are not members of the band. The officers of the organization say if this recognition is given by the governor they will play on public and official occasions without compensation from the state. There is no hint that the band desires to accompany the governor and his staff to San Francisco in the spring to be present at the presentation of the state's silver set to the battleship Nebraska, and few can believe that the band is willing to pay its own expenses on such a trip. The governor and his staff will be obliged to pay their own expenses. As there are one or two regimental bands, a part of the organization of the Nebraska national guard, there may be considerable strife over the honor of appearance on public and official occasions. The guard bands have generally insisted on a little remuneration, along with the honor, and even then it has been almost impossible to keep regimental bands in the service of the guard. The Creighton band has twenty-four pieces and is skeletonized for forty-eight pieces. It is composed of business men of the town. It has already assumed the name "Nebraska State band."

Wilson for presidential elector at the general election held November 8, 1904, giving one delegate for each 150 votes and the major fraction thereof so cast for said H. H. Wilson. BATTLE CREEK CONVENTION.

Republicans Call County Convention For February 29.

The republican county convention to select delegates to the state convention at Omaha and the congressional convention at Norfolk is called to meet at Battle Creek on Saturday, February 29.

The county central committee, meeting Friday afternoon in the office of Mapes & Hazen in Norfolk, decided to have an old fashioned county convention select the delegates to the conventions which select national delegates to the Chicago convention. The committee members were: A. L. Carter, Norfolk; Burt Mapes, Norfolk; A. B. Richardson, Valley; Robert Reynolds, Norfolk; M. D. Tyler, Norfolk; C. A. Smith, Jefferson; William Isenbender, Union; S. C. Blackman, Madison; S. O. Davies, Madison.

Delegates to the county convention were apportioned as follows: Norfolk, First ward, 7; Second, 10; Third, 7; Fourth, 5; outside, 6; Valley, 5; North Deer Creek, 3; South Deer Creek, 2; Meadow Grove, 6; Jefferson, 8; Grove, 4; Highland, 4; Battle Creek, 7; Warneville, 4; Union, 7; Fairview, 3; Schoelcraft, 3; Emerick, 4; Shell Creek, 18; Kalamazoo, 4; Green Garden, 3; Madison precinct, 5; Madison city, 12.

It was recommended that the precinct caucuses be held on February 22, the previous Saturday to the convention.

The snow storm cut down the attendance at the committee meeting.

At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon it began to look like something similar to a blizzard might develop. The wind was blowing and snow was being driven, though not seriously. Northwestern railroad reports in Norfolk showed that the same condition prevailed over the entire territory as here, though there was no snow in the Black Hills. A strong wind was blowing, however, in that territory.

Trains in and out of Norfolk during the day ran on schedule time practically, not being affected by the snow.

ARBUCKLE BROS., New York City

The aldermen might put their feet in it much further by revoking the license than by leaving it alone, and at the very best that the law made it discretionary with the council to revoke the license even when a saloonman had been legally found guilty of selling to minors. In cities of the first class, he says, it is mandatory, but in towns and villages optional.

MANY FARMERS WILL COME.

Next Tuesday Will be the Banner Exchange Day. They Say.

"A banner attendance of farmers at the February exchange day next Tuesday will show to the people of Norfolk that we appreciate the compliments of their invitation to lunch Tuesday, as I am sure we all do," said Ernest Raasch who has been prominently identified with the "exchange day" movement as a member of the farmers' committee.

"In making arrangements for the big lunch—which is going to be a good deal more than the word "lunch" usually implies—Norfolk business men are showing a splendid bit of feeling. It's an act that ought to be appreciated.

"The exchange day is growing." It's popular enough itself to draw the crowds. But the promise of a big time Tuesday, when Norfolk will get out and entertain the farmers at lunch ought to bring a great big crowd here and get still more people acquainted with the merits of the exchange day plan.

"Speaking as a farmer I want to say that the farmers ought to turn out, for it will be worth it."

FAREWELL TO "PIE BOOKS."

Northwestern Railroad Discontin
