Events of the Week in Norfolk

Pleasures of the Week.

The picnic season has started early in Norfolk. The warm weather the past week has really seemed like "the good old summer time," and tempted the families of Dr. and Mrs. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gow, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stadelman, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mathewson and Mrs. Margaret Johnson to indulge in a picnic supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Witzman on Monday evening.

Mrs. George Mather celebrated her birthday Friday afternoon in as pleasant a fashion as a birthday anniversary has been observed in Norfolk for some time. From 4 to 7:30 Mrs. Mather entertained her Sunday school class from the Baptist church at her home, eleven members of the class being present. The afternoon was spent in a jolly fashion. Light refreshments were served.

Seventeen girl friends of Miss Besse Williams gave her a granite shower on Monday evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. B. P. Pippin. The young ladies brought many useful articles to furnish the kitchen of the bride-to-be. Miss Williams will be married to Mr. Edwin Fisher soon after Easter. The guests who came unexpectedly, brought light refreshments with them.

The West Side Whist club was entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sol G. Mayer. This will probably be the last meeting of the club with Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Boas as members, as they expect to leave the first of May for their new home in Sioux City. The club presented them with a handsome set of spoons and many good wishes.

Mrs. J. K. Boas was the guest of honor at a 1 o'clock luncheon given on Thursday by Mrs. F. E. Davenport and Mrs. T. E. Odiorne at the home of Mrs. Davenport on Norfolk avenue. After the lunch, which was served very daintily in three courses, the twenty-five guests enjoyed a game of five hundred. Mrs. Jack Koenigstein won the honors.

The "merry widows" were entertained by Miss Nora Dixon Thursday evening. The members visited over their needle work until 10 o'clock, when the hostess served a light lunch.

On Monday evening the members of Queen Esther circle enjoyed a pleasant meeting with Miss Pearl Reese, in the home of her sister, Mrs. L. M. Beeler, on North Ninth street.

Mrs. A. H. Viele, assisted by Mrs. R. H. Reynolds entertained the ladies of the Congregational church on Friday afternoon.

The "Home Guards" gave a social at the M. E. church on Friday evening.

Coming Events.

Wednesday will bring the bankers of northeastern Nebraska to Norfolk for their annual convention. In the evening the local bankers will entertain the visitors at a banquet, to be held in Marquardt hall. The ladies' guild of Trinity church will serve the banquet.

Gov. Sheldon will attend the bankers' convention in Norfolk next Wednesday. On Thursday he will be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Young at the hospital.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. McGinnis Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

Mrs. S. M. Braden will entertain at a one o'clock luncheon on Monday, April 20.

Personal.

Miss Sinclair, superintendent of nurses at the Norfolk hospital, will leave Sunday noon for Cincinnati, O., to attend the fourteenth annual meeting of the American Society of Superintendents of Training Schools for Nurses, of which she is a member. Enroute Miss Sinclair will stop at Jacksonville, Ill., where she will visit mental institutions both private and state. After the meeting at Cincinnati she will go to Kankakee, Ill., for a few days' visit with Dr. and Mrs. Singer, formerly of the Norfolk hospital. While in Chicago Miss Sinclair will visit Hull House, and hospitals, then before coming on to Norfolk she will spend a short time in Kalamazoo, Mich., where she will visit the hospital for insane. Miss Sinclair will speak at the Cincinnati meeting, when she will advocate the placing of all mental institutions on a hospital basis.

Miss Michie of Denver, Col., who has been spending the past few weeks with her aunt, Miss Sinclair, superintendent of nurses at the hospital, will return home on Sunday.

Mrs. E. P. Weatherly went to Omaha on Friday to spend Easter with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Shoemaker.

Dr. and Mrs. Dishong and daughter Gretchen visited in Omaha and Lincoln the past week.

Dr. and Mrs. Campbell of Tilden called on Norfolk friends Monday afternoon.

FAREWELL OF SIWASHES

CHIEF TOMANAWAS AND TRIBE TAKE FINAL LEAVE.

GIVE UP HUNTING GROUNDS.

Final Pow-wow and Potlatch Closing with Tribal Salute to the Coming of the White Race—Passing of the Red Man From Washington Valley.

Spokane, Wash., April 18.—Chief Tomanawas and his tribe of Siwashes have said their farewells and taken formal leave of their favorite hunting and fishing grounds on the Columbia river, near what is to be the town of White Bluffs, in Douglas county, southwest of Spokane. The final pow-wow and potlatch took place at night, and closed with the tribal salute to the coming of the white race. Graceful in his gestures and eloquent in tongue, Tomanawas delivered the farewell oration, holding his people literally spellbound for a quarter hour, while he glorified their deeds of valor, told of their struggles against the white man and of their battles with other tribes who sought to invade the rich valley, where he and his tribesmen and their forebears held sway for many years.

The ceremonials were witnessed by a number of Yakimas, one time the bitterest foes of the departing tribe, also by a large gathering of settlers, who came into the valley in advance of the trans-continental railroad now building through Washington.

The farewell was preceded by three days of dancing, during which the chief and headmen visited the old stamping ground which marked the scenes of their victories in the Yakima Indian wars. This was followed by twelve hours of fasting, during which the squaws and girls prepared the camp for the final leave taking.

At dusk the heads of the bands visited the tribal burial grounds, requesting the newcomers to permit the remains of their departed brothers to rest undisturbed. This rite being carried out with much ceremony and pomp, the Indians assembled at the water's edge, where small fires had been started and the flames smothered. Chief Tomanawas impersonated the war god to salute the newcomers.

When the moon appeared at a certain point in the sky, the squaws began a death chant, which was weird and wild in the extreme, their voices mingling with the howling of the coyotes. Winneshlu, declared to be the oldest squaw in the Pacific northwest, prostrated herself before the central fire at the beginning of the chant and as her voice gave expression to tones like the wail of a lost soul, the fires, in turn, were uncovered and the squaws formed a circle about them.

At points between the fires the headmen took positions, each decked in the war paint and head-feather of the old days.

Squaws and girls, with old-fashioned pestle and mortar, ground grain for the food. The corn and wheat had been charmed by the medicine men. The chanting of the squaws continued twenty minutes, when Chief Tomanawas arose from a crouching position in the center of the big circle, and giving a shout which echoed along the hills, commanded those assembled to harken to the last voice of the warriors which would ever be heard in the Columbia river valley.

At the close of his address, which was largely of historical character, the veteran chieftain squatted on the ground, and the Indians joined the chant of the aged squaw, who during the early part of the ceremony and the chief's big talk, prostrated herself, squirming to free herself from the bands which bound her and the others of the tribe to this part of the river lands. When all was quiet the squaw uttered a terrifying scream and swooned, striking the ground with force.

Without the slightest heed to the woman, the chief and his tribesmen, disregarding all formalities, gathered around the caldron of steaming "mulligans," and during the following fifteen minutes they did full justice to the dish. At the close of the feast there was a dance, several of the Indians doing the torture dance with their war clubs. When this was over Chief Tomanawas and his men knelt at the water's edge on the bank of the river, and raising their faces to the heaven they voiced another dirge-like song.

At midnight, when the moon had reached the point in the sky for which the farewell had been timed, the fires on the river bank were smothered, canoes were pushed into the water, the aged squaw was placed on a rudely built litter and shoved into one of the skiffs, and with blankets around their heads and shoulders, Chief Tomanawas and the Indians took their places in their craft. At a signal from the chieftain the canoes were paddled out into the swift waters of the Columbia river and the passing of the red men from the valley became a matter of history.

MOVING WEST.

Three Prominent Families to Leave Pierce For South Dakota.

Pierce Call: Mrs. H. C. Morey and little sister, Hildred Goff, left Wednesday noon for Cottonwood, S. D., near where Mr. and Mrs. Morey have a homestead. This is the preliminary to the removal of three of Pierce's old families to South Dakota. Mrs. J. C. Morey will go there next month to establish her residence and then return for a few weeks, or until after the graduation of her daughter, Miss Leona, from our schools. After that Herbert Morey and his mother and sister will go to South Dakota for good. The family of G. W. Goff is the third family that is making arrangements to go to South Dakota with the Moreys. Upon Mr. Goff's return from Cottonwood last fall he informed the Call editor that he had made arrangements to take up a homestead or relinquishment in that country in the spring, but we have been hoping sincerely that he would change his mind ere the time came to go. Mr. Goff made that country another visit last month and returned more pleased than ever with the country and fully determined on carrying out his original plan. Mr. Goff has been a resident of this place for the past twenty-five years. He is a well known and successful contractor and has been intimately acquainted with him for seventeen years past and we can say without fear of successful contradiction that no other town in northeast Nebraska has so able and efficient an officer as Mr. Goff. His reputation for enforcing the law and fearlessness in dealing with the cowboy, rowdy and tough was well known throughout the state. In those "wild and woolly" days of the west the position of marshal meant grave responsibilities. The tenderfoot from the east who has come out into Nebraska in recent years cannot fully appreciate the lawlessness of those times nor the danger surrounding those men who were selected to "preserve law and order." It was under Marshal Goff's administration, the editor clearly remembers, that Pierce was brought out of the "wild and woolly" stage and transformed into a town of law and order, whose neatness, cleanliness, push, progress and pride was commented upon most favorably by all visitors as well as the daily press. We believe we voice the sentiment of the great majority of the people of this community in expressing sincere regret over the intended removal of Mr. Goff and his estimable family, as well as that of Mrs. Morey and her children.

ALTER BADLY BURNED

WELL KNOWN NORTH NEBRASKA LODGE MAN IN PRAIRIE FIRE.

AT HIS FARM IN HOLT COUNTY

Mr. Alter is One of Three Men Who Were Caught in the Flames in the Prairie Fire Monday—Reminiscences of Early Fires.

L. W. Alter of Wayne, well known in Norfolk and one of the state trustees of the A. O. U. W., was caught in the recent prairie fire in Holt county. According to the Wayne Democrat he was badly burned. Mr. Alter was recently in Norfolk in connection with the class initiation of the local lodge of the A. O. U. W. Of his experience the Wayne Democrat says:

There got off the 7:05 train Tuesday morning a small man completely enveloped in lint and handkerchiefs, whom nobody would ever recognize as I W. Alter. Atty. Berry had rode from Norfolk, in a seat opposite him and when close to Wayne assisted the man in putting on his overcoat, remarking: "you must have got badly hurt or burned." "Yes, I got burned some," answered the injured man, who had only his eyes visible, "but I guess you don't know me?" Mr. Berry said he did not, and then was informed of the man's identity. Mr. Alter has a half-section of land ten miles south of O'Neill. Monday afternoon noticing a prairie fire sweeping over the country he and three other men got a plow and jumped into a wagon, expecting to plow a furrow or two and stop the oncoming conflagration, but they were too late. The fire drove them into the corner of a wire fence and they were compelled to drive through it. One man got out and followed at the rear of the wagon but the other three were horribly burned about the head and hands. Mr. Alter escaping with the least injury of the three. The team was badly burned. While no serious results are looked for Mr. Alter has a badly burned face, head and hands, and it will be some weeks before he looks or feels like himself again.

Mr. Alter had a bad night of it Tuesday, falling in a faint to the floor and has been in bed since. The Democrat is told that one of the men in the fire with Mr. Alter has since died from his injuries.

PRAIRIE FIRE OF 1879.

Wayne Pioneers Tell of a Terrible Fire of the Early Days.

Reminiscences of a prairie fire of 1879 were suggested to two Wayne citizens by the recent series of disastrous prairie blazes. The two stories of the '79 fire as given in the Wayne Democrat are:

Speaking of prairie fires reminds Spire Feather of a terrific fire that swept this entire country from the Elk-horn to the Missouri river in forty-eight hours. It was Oct. 6, 1879, the year of an immense growth of grass. Mr. Feather, his son Ed, and another man had driven to Norfolk from Laporte to get a load of lumber to build on the "squire's" homestead. Coming home the fire overtook them at Hoskins, or where Hoskins now is. They took refuge at Jim Elliott's place, assisting in saving Jim's house and barn from the flames.

At Vanderburg's, now the Perrin Long estate, the fire had burned up all the buildings, hogs and stuff except the shanty that stood in the piece of breaking. Mr. Feather says all that saved them and their outfit was having a blind horse, which they were forced to drive through the flames, ten feet high, at least five different times, the hair being burned off the animal.

Pioneer Jas. Britton also tells a harrowing tale of this big fire of '79. He and Mr. Bressler were returning from a political convention at Norfolk. Frequently they drove across the lines of flame, but the cattle having pastured along the road made that an easy matter. Settlers homes had been burned up, but a family, named Durin, near Laporte suffered the worst. The fire jumped the breaking and Mrs. Durin and daughter, scared to desperation, ran into a cornfield, the fire raging through the stalks and burning them to death.

DEPOSITIONS WERE TAKEN.

Suit in Which the Estate of Albert Stark Seeks Damages. Depositions in the $25,000 damage suit brought against the Northwestern by the Albert Stark estate were taken Friday before County Attorney Jack Koenigstein as notary public. The suit was filed as a result of the death of Albert Stark at the Norfolk roundhouse about a year and a half ago. Stark was supposed to have been struck by an engine "jack" while at work about a locomotive. The suit was brought in the district court at Pierce in the interest of the widow and children. C. C. Wright of Omaha represented the Northwestern in Norfolk Friday. K. W. McDonald of Pierce, the administrator of the estate, Judge Van Wagonen of Sioux City and County Attorney J. A. Van Wagonen of Pierce looked after the interest of the prosecution.

Mrs. Mary Elliott.

Neligh Leader: Mrs. Mary (Toussard) Elliott of Norfolk, formerly of Rochester, Minn. The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, this city, last Sunday afternoon, and the remains interred in Laurel Hill cemetery beside her husband, who died about twenty years ago. The deceased grew to womanhood in Willow township, but since the death of her husband has lived the larger portion of the time at Norfolk engaged in dressmaking. She was highly respected, a member of the Rebekah lodge, and had a large circle of warm friends, not only at Norfolk but also among the older residents of Neligh and the vicinity of her childhood home.

Card of Thanks.

To the kind friends, both in Norfolk and Neligh, who took such an interest in mother's troubles, both before and after she went to the hospital, and who so willingly assisted in the last sad token to the grave, and also to those who sent beautiful flowers, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks. Albert Elliott.

FIRST FREMONT DROWNING

GEORGE JOHNSON, A POPULAR YOUNG FARMER, DROWNED.

IN FULL VIEW OF COMPANIONS

Was Out With a Fishing Party in an Overloaded Boat, Which Dipped and Precipitated the Men into the Water—Johnson Never Came Up.

Fremont, Neb., April 20.—George Johnson, a popular young farmer living seven miles northwest of Fremont is the first victim of the season's drowning record.

Mr. Johnson drowned in full view of his frenzied companions at Diers' lake about 4:30 Saturday afternoon. With Andrew Paulson he was in a boat which, loaded too heavily astern, dipped, and precipitated the men into the water.

The details of the tragedy seem to show that Johnson and Paulson were alone in the boat when some netting in the stern filled the boat and Mr. Johnson fell into the water. He sank immediately, and his body did not rise until recovered by his companions an hour later.

The sad accident occurred when the boat was in perhaps ten feet of water and fifty feet from shore.

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE

STRANGER SNAPS HIS REVOLVER AT HENRY KENNEDY.

BUT GUN FAILS TO EXPLODE

Night Foreman of the Northwestern Encounters a Stranger in the Yards at an Unseemly Hour, Who Shows Disposition to Murder.

The failure of a revolver cartridge to explode may have saved the life of Henry Kennedy, night foreman of the Northwestern's yards, at an early hour Friday morning.

Some unknown man drew a gun on Kennedy while he was out in the railroad yards checking up cars. Who his assailant was, what motive was back of the gun play, or just how serious the whole affair really was is a good deal of a mystery. Kennedy naturally didn't stop to investigate. He was unarmed and did not wait for a second snap of the gun.

It was about 2 o'clock in the morning. Kennedy was out with a lantern checking over a string of about twenty-five cars. Down near the west of the track he came to a flat car. It was at this spot that the unknown, dimly outlined in the rain by Kennedy's lantern and standing on the other side of the flat car, brought his revolver into play.

One pop of the gun was enough for Kennedy, who was without any weapon of defense. He heard the gun snap and ran east to where Carl Russell, a switchman, stood some fifteen cars away. The whole affair was over in an instant and no words were exchanged between Kennedy and the unknown man of the dark.

Kennedy and Russell went around the end of the line and saw a man, probably the stranger, standing some four car lengths away. He had followed Kennedy down, keeping on the other side of the track.

When a Kiss is Stolen.

Cleveland, O., April 17.—Police Judge Levine today held that kissing is assault and battery, when the kissing is objectionable to the maid. On that charge he fined Jacob Gideon $25 and costs and sentenced him to thirty days in the workhouse. The complaint was made by his divorced wife.
