

WILD ANIMAL REAL WILD

ONE WILD ANIMAL PLAY WAS REAL THING.

CARNIVAL PANTHER CLAWS MAN

Trainer Storms in Panther Den in Carnival Animal Circus Was Attacked by Large Panther—Man's Face Was Lacerated.

A stiff snarl and a flash of claws, a dash of blood down the trader's face and the quick return of his good right fist against the giant cat—one wild animal display of anger in the carnival circus was real.

Saturday afternoon Trainer P. Storms, the man who puts the carnival panthers through a series of reluctant stunts in the big iron cage in the Parker animal circus, was attacked by the largest of the panthers.

The panthers are arranged in a rising series along the front bars of the cage had been reached. The largest of the panthers, a sullen school of unwilling pupils, was placed at the top of the pyramid.

The attack came unexpectedly. There was a quick dash of the big cat's paw. The claws struck home in the man's face. Almost in the same instant Storms came back at the cat with his good right arm. Then he punished the panther severely.

When remained of the program was completed without further incident. Storms paid no attention to his face until the last panther was back in the wagon cage.

The panthers have not been in captivity long. A Norfolk audience, it is said, is not the first to have seen them attack their trainer.

GURNEY MAKES A HIT.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux City, June 15.—The bankers' convention is over and every train out of the city was packed with some of the 666 capitalists who helped to make the Sioux City meeting the biggest, busiest, and best convention in the life history of the association.

One of the speeches delivered which is worth more than ordinary mention is that of E. R. Gurney, vice president of the First National bank of Fremont, Neb., formerly of Winslow, who addressed the convention on the "Country Banker." His speech proved to be the most entertaining and wittiest address given during the two days' session.

He called the bankers the greediest men on earth and made them like it. His address was replete with unique figures of speech and throughout the discourse the big audience attested its appreciation of Mr. Gurney's remarks by frequent interruptions of spontaneous applause.

Mr. Gurney paid a pretty tribute to the retiring president, H. M. Carpenter in his opening remarks.

"I first met President Carpenter when I was a toddler knee high. It was my first business transaction and I beat Mr. Carpenter. I went into his bank with a $5 note to secure there five silver dollars. I not only got the five silver dollars, but I got a smile, a kind word and an invitation to return. All of which must be reckoned on my side of the books in that particular transaction. I will never forget my first meeting with President Carpenter. I wish you men to remember this. See the smiles and the kind words. They will go a long way.

"Andrew Carnegie says that we in America have the worst banking system in the world, but out of that worst system we have developed the best bankers in the world.

"There are bankers in every corner of the earth, doubtless some of them in heaven, and of the country bankers there are three in every two-bank town and two of them in every one-bank town.

"The country banker is the salt of the earth. He is democratic. He gets out in a cattle country and soon learns to cut a ball out of a herd of cattle from a broncho's back as easily as his banker friend in Wall Street learns to ball the stock market.

"But take by contrast the oriental banker. He is a god. He sits in impressive state. You go to him and try to make a touch and he will turn to you the face of a Sphinx. He will tell you to return in three months. The oriental banker is the greatest deliberative body on earth and as slow as the sixtieth congress.

"Not so your Iowa and Nebraska country banker. Who ever heard of a London banker who could work a Riverside car conductor with a 'Figure 8' ticket.

"We country bankers meet the horny handed ruralist as a brother. We take him by the hand and lead him into the inner sanctum. We don't care if he happens to have 'Peruna' on his boots or anything else. We fraternize with him.

"If a country banker lives in the corn belt he lives corn from daylight to dark. He thinks corn, talks corn, eats corn and drinks corn and corners wealth.

"The country banker distributes cheer and encouragement along with clearing house certificates. The country banker is the mightiest commercial power that this world has ever known. American through and through and a product of this great land of ours the country banker is more directly and sincerely interested in the welfare of the particular community in which he happens to reside than any other man. Suffering and loss to others are the bane of his life. Here is the unique spectacle of the only business or profession in the world

WILD ANIMAL REAL WILD

FLOODS HELP FISHING.

Big Sioux Going Down and Big Bass Coming Up.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: The recent high water in the Big Sioux river is subsiding, and accordingly the water is leaving the bottom land along the river. It is estimated that about 100,000 acres of valuable farm land in the valley of the Big Sioux was flooded as the result of the excessive rains of the first part of June and latter part of May. Fishermen are taking advantage of the receding of the waters to angle for bass and other fish.

William Paulsen, a Sioux Falls fisherman, a day or two ago hooked and landed a four and one-half pound black bass. This is believed to be the largest ever captured in this vicinity. In going back to its normal condition the water is leaving thousands of fish in holes, where they are easily captured. In some instances fishermen capture large numbers of them with their hands.

The president having removed from the district Mrs. C. J. Lindstrom of Norfolk, corresponding secretary, has active charge of the convention preparations.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual convention of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association, which will be held in Sioux Falls on June 26 and 27.

One of the features of the convention will be a great parade of traveling men, which will take place on the evening of June 26, and which is expected to be the grandest affair of the kind that has taken place in Sioux Falls for a number of years.

Funds have been provided for the offering of prizes, as follows: For best industrial floats, 1st, $25; second, $15; third, $10. For the best decorated carriage or automobile, 1st, $25; second, $15; third, $10.

GURNEY MAKES A HIT.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux City, June 15.—The bankers' convention is over and every train out of the city was packed with some of the 666 capitalists who helped to make the Sioux City meeting the biggest, busiest, and best convention in the life history of the association.

One of the speeches delivered which is worth more than ordinary mention is that of E. R. Gurney, vice president of the First National bank of Fremont, Neb., formerly of Winslow, who addressed the convention on the "Country Banker." His speech proved to be the most entertaining and wittiest address given during the two days' session.

He called the bankers the greediest men on earth and made them like it. His address was replete with unique figures of speech and throughout the discourse the big audience attested its appreciation of Mr. Gurney's remarks by frequent interruptions of spontaneous applause.

Mr. Gurney paid a pretty tribute to the retiring president, H. M. Carpenter in his opening remarks.

"I first met President Carpenter when I was a toddler knee high. It was my first business transaction and I beat Mr. Carpenter. I went into his bank with a $5 note to secure there five silver dollars. I not only got the five silver dollars, but I got a smile, a kind word and an invitation to return. All of which must be reckoned on my side of the books in that particular transaction. I will never forget my first meeting with President Carpenter. I wish you men to remember this. See the smiles and the kind words. They will go a long way.

"Andrew Carnegie says that we in America have the worst banking system in the world, but out of that worst system we have developed the best bankers in the world.

"There are bankers in every corner of the earth, doubtless some of them in heaven, and of the country bankers there are three in every two-bank town and two of them in every one-bank town.

"The country banker is the salt of the earth. He is democratic. He gets out in a cattle country and soon learns to cut a ball out of a herd of cattle from a broncho's back as easily as his banker friend in Wall Street learns to ball the stock market.

"But take by contrast the oriental banker. He is a god. He sits in impressive state. You go to him and try to make a touch and he will turn to you the face of a Sphinx. He will tell you to return in three months. The oriental banker is the greatest deliberative body on earth and as slow as the sixtieth congress.

"Not so your Iowa and Nebraska country banker. Who ever heard of a London banker who could work a Riverside car conductor with a 'Figure 8' ticket.

"We country bankers meet the horny handed ruralist as a brother. We take him by the hand and lead him into the inner sanctum. We don't care if he happens to have 'Peruna' on his boots or anything else. We fraternize with him.

"If a country banker lives in the corn belt he lives corn from daylight to dark. He thinks corn, talks corn, eats corn and drinks corn and corners wealth.

"The country banker distributes cheer and encouragement along with clearing house certificates. The country banker is the mightiest commercial power that this world has ever known. American through and through and a product of this great land of ours the country banker is more directly and sincerely interested in the welfare of the particular community in which he happens to reside than any other man. Suffering and loss to others are the bane of his life. Here is the unique spectacle of the only business or profession in the world

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

NEXT WEEK'S CONVENTION A METHODIST CONVENTION.

IT CONVENES HERE SATURDAY

Norfolk is Recognized as Convention City of North Nebraska—Each Fortnight Adds to List of Conventions Held Here.

Next week's convention in Norfolk will be the district convention of the Women's Home Missionary Society in the Norfolk district of the Methodist church. It will convene in the Methodist church at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon and will be in session two days. About thirty delegates are expected.

Miss Nellie Snider of Geneva, Ill., general organizer of the society, will be the principal speaker in connection with the meeting. She will speak Saturday evening and Sunday morning and evening.

The president having removed from the district Mrs. C. J. Lindstrom of Norfolk, corresponding secretary, has active charge of the convention preparations.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual convention of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association, which will be held in Sioux Falls on June 26 and 27.

One of the features of the convention will be a great parade of traveling men, which will take place on the evening of June 26, and which is expected to be the grandest affair of the kind that has taken place in Sioux Falls for a number of years.

GURNEY MAKES A HIT.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux City, June 15.—The bankers' convention is over and every train out of the city was packed with some of the 666 capitalists who helped to make the Sioux City meeting the biggest, busiest, and best convention in the life history of the association.

One of the speeches delivered which is worth more than ordinary mention is that of E. R. Gurney, vice president of the First National bank of Fremont, Neb., formerly of Winslow, who addressed the convention on the "Country Banker." His speech proved to be the most entertaining and wittiest address given during the two days' session.

He called the bankers the greediest men on earth and made them like it. His address was replete with unique figures of speech and throughout the discourse the big audience attested its appreciation of Mr. Gurney's remarks by frequent interruptions of spontaneous applause.

Mr. Gurney paid a pretty tribute to the retiring president, H. M. Carpenter in his opening remarks.

"I first met President Carpenter when I was a toddler knee high. It was my first business transaction and I beat Mr. Carpenter. I went into his bank with a $5 note to secure there five silver dollars. I not only got the five silver dollars, but I got a smile, a kind word and an invitation to return. All of which must be reckoned on my side of the books in that particular transaction. I will never forget my first meeting with President Carpenter. I wish you men to remember this. See the smiles and the kind words. They will go a long way.

"Andrew Carnegie says that we in America have the worst banking system in the world, but out of that worst system we have developed the best bankers in the world.

"There are bankers in every corner of the earth, doubtless some of them in heaven, and of the country bankers there are three in every two-bank town and two of them in every one-bank town.

"The country banker is the salt of the earth. He is democratic. He gets out in a cattle country and soon learns to cut a ball out of a herd of cattle from a broncho's back as easily as his banker friend in Wall Street learns to ball the stock market.

"But take by contrast the oriental banker. He is a god. He sits in impressive state. You go to him and try to make a touch and he will turn to you the face of a Sphinx. He will tell you to return in three months. The oriental banker is the greatest deliberative body on earth and as slow as the sixtieth congress.

"Not so your Iowa and Nebraska country banker. Who ever heard of a London banker who could work a Riverside car conductor with a 'Figure 8' ticket.

"We country bankers meet the horny handed ruralist as a brother. We take him by the hand and lead him into the inner sanctum. We don't care if he happens to have 'Peruna' on his boots or anything else. We fraternize with him.

"If a country banker lives in the corn belt he lives corn from daylight to dark. He thinks corn, talks corn, eats corn and drinks corn and corners wealth.

"The country banker distributes cheer and encouragement along with clearing house certificates. The country banker is the mightiest commercial power that this world has ever known. American through and through and a product of this great land of ours the country banker is more directly and sincerely interested in the welfare of the particular community in which he happens to reside than any other man. Suffering and loss to others are the bane of his life. Here is the unique spectacle of the only business or profession in the world

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

FLOODS HELP FISHING.

Big Sioux Going Down and Big Bass Coming Up.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: The recent high water in the Big Sioux river is subsiding, and accordingly the water is leaving the bottom land along the river. It is estimated that about 100,000 acres of valuable farm land in the valley of the Big Sioux was flooded as the result of the excessive rains of the first part of June and latter part of May. Fishermen are taking advantage of the receding of the waters to angle for bass and other fish.

William Paulsen, a Sioux Falls fisherman, a day or two ago hooked and landed a four and one-half pound black bass. This is believed to be the largest ever captured in this vicinity. In going back to its normal condition the water is leaving thousands of fish in holes, where they are easily captured. In some instances fishermen capture large numbers of them with their hands.

The president having removed from the district Mrs. C. J. Lindstrom of Norfolk, corresponding secretary, has active charge of the convention preparations.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual convention of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association, which will be held in Sioux Falls on June 26 and 27.

One of the features of the convention will be a great parade of traveling men, which will take place on the evening of June 26, and which is expected to be the grandest affair of the kind that has taken place in Sioux Falls for a number of years.

Funds have been provided for the offering of prizes, as follows: For best industrial floats, 1st, $25; second, $15; third, $10. For the best decorated carriage or automobile, 1st, $25; second, $15; third, $10.

GURNEY MAKES A HIT.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux City, June 15.—The bankers' convention is over and every train out of the city was packed with some of the 666 capitalists who helped to make the Sioux City meeting the biggest, busiest, and best convention in the life history of the association.

One of the speeches delivered which is worth more than ordinary mention is that of E. R. Gurney, vice president of the First National bank of Fremont, Neb., formerly of Winslow, who addressed the convention on the "Country Banker." His speech proved to be the most entertaining and wittiest address given during the two days' session.

He called the bankers the greediest men on earth and made them like it. His address was replete with unique figures of speech and throughout the discourse the big audience attested its appreciation of Mr. Gurney's remarks by frequent interruptions of spontaneous applause.

Mr. Gurney paid a pretty tribute to the retiring president, H. M. Carpenter in his opening remarks.

"I first met President Carpenter when I was a toddler knee high. It was my first business transaction and I beat Mr. Carpenter. I went into his bank with a $5 note to secure there five silver dollars. I not only got the five silver dollars, but I got a smile, a kind word and an invitation to return. All of which must be reckoned on my side of the books in that particular transaction. I will never forget my first meeting with President Carpenter. I wish you men to remember this. See the smiles and the kind words. They will go a long way.

"Andrew Carnegie says that we in America have the worst banking system in the world, but out of that worst system we have developed the best bankers in the world.

"There are bankers in every corner of the earth, doubtless some of them in heaven, and of the country bankers there are three in every two-bank town and two of them in every one-bank town.

"The country banker is the salt of the earth. He is democratic. He gets out in a cattle country and soon learns to cut a ball out of a herd of cattle from a broncho's back as easily as his banker friend in Wall Street learns to ball the stock market.

"But take by contrast the oriental banker. He is a god. He sits in impressive state. You go to him and try to make a touch and he will turn to you the face of a Sphinx. He will tell you to return in three months. The oriental banker is the greatest deliberative body on earth and as slow as the sixtieth congress.

"Not so your Iowa and Nebraska country banker. Who ever heard of a London banker who could work a Riverside car conductor with a 'Figure 8' ticket.

"We country bankers meet the horny handed ruralist as a brother. We take him by the hand and lead him into the inner sanctum. We don't care if he happens to have 'Peruna' on his boots or anything else. We fraternize with him.

"If a country banker lives in the corn belt he lives corn from daylight to dark. He thinks corn, talks corn, eats corn and drinks corn and corners wealth.

"The country banker distributes cheer and encouragement along with clearing house certificates. The country banker is the mightiest commercial power that this world has ever known. American through and through and a product of this great land of ours the country banker is more directly and sincerely interested in the welfare of the particular community in which he happens to reside than any other man. Suffering and loss to others are the bane of his life. Here is the unique spectacle of the only business or profession in the world

RAIN HEAVIEST IN YEARS

DOWNPOUR TOOK OUT TRACKS BOTH SIDES OF STANTON.

HAIL NORTHEAST OF STANTON

Creek Running Through Stanton Highest in Thirty-Five Years, Taking Out Two Wagon Bridges and All Foot Bridges.

Stanton, Neb., June 15.—Special to The News: The north half of Stanton county was visited Friday night by the heaviest rain that it has had for years. Makenethen creek running through the city of Stanton was swollen beyond its banks and reached the highest water mark known in thirty-five years. All the foot bridges across this stream as well as two wagon bridges were carried away.

North and east of Stanton the rain was even greater than in the city. It was also accompanied by hail. The hail did a great deal of damage and Saturday morning was piled in drifts over the fields. The railway tracks both east and west of town were washed out and Saturday were impassable to trains.

The president having removed from the district Mrs. C. J. Lindstrom of Norfolk, corresponding secretary, has active charge of the convention preparations.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual convention of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association, which will be held in Sioux Falls on June 26 and 27.

One of the features of the convention will be a great parade of traveling men, which will take place on the evening of June 26, and which is expected to be the grandest affair of the kind that has taken place in Sioux Falls for a number of years.

GURNEY MAKES A HIT.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux City, June 15.—The bankers' convention is over and every train out of the city was packed with some of the 666 capitalists who helped to make the Sioux City meeting the biggest, busiest, and best convention in the life history of the association.

One of the speeches delivered which is worth more than ordinary mention is that of E. R. Gurney, vice president of the First National bank of Fremont, Neb., formerly of Winslow, who addressed the convention on the "Country Banker." His speech proved to be the most entertaining and wittiest address given during the two days' session.

He called the bankers the greediest men on earth and made them like it. His address was replete with unique figures of speech and throughout the discourse the big audience attested its appreciation of Mr. Gurney's remarks by frequent interruptions of spontaneous applause.

Mr. Gurney paid a pretty tribute to the retiring president, H. M. Carpenter in his opening remarks.

"I first met President Carpenter when I was a toddler knee high. It was my first business transaction and I beat Mr. Carpenter. I went into his bank with a $5 note to secure there five silver dollars. I not only got the five silver dollars, but I got a smile, a kind word and an invitation to return. All of which must be reckoned on my side of the books in that particular transaction. I will never forget my first meeting with President Carpenter. I wish you men to remember this. See the smiles and the kind words. They will go a long way.

"Andrew Carnegie says that we in America have the worst banking system in the world, but out of that worst system we have developed the best bankers in the world.

"There are bankers in every corner of the earth, doubtless some of them in heaven, and of the country bankers there are three in every two-bank town and two of them in every one-bank town.

"The country banker is the salt of the earth. He is democratic. He gets out in a cattle country and soon learns to cut a ball out of a herd of cattle from a broncho's back as easily as his banker friend in Wall Street learns to ball the stock market.

"But take by contrast the oriental banker. He is a god. He sits in impressive state. You go to him and try to make a touch and he will turn to you the face of a Sphinx. He will tell you to return in three months. The oriental banker is the greatest deliberative body on earth and as slow as the sixtieth congress.

"Not so your Iowa and Nebraska country banker. Who ever heard of a London banker who could work a Riverside car conductor with a 'Figure 8' ticket.

"We country bankers meet the horny handed ruralist as a brother. We take him by the hand and lead him into the inner sanctum. We don't care if he happens to have 'Peruna' on his boots or anything else. We fraternize with him.

"If a country banker lives in the corn belt he lives corn from daylight to dark. He thinks corn, talks corn, eats corn and drinks corn and corners wealth.

"The country banker distributes cheer and encouragement along with clearing house certificates. The country banker is the mightiest commercial power that this world has ever known. American through and through and a product of this great land of ours the country banker is more directly and sincerely interested in the welfare of the particular community in which he happens to reside than any other man. Suffering and loss to others are the bane of his life. Here is the unique spectacle of the only business or profession in the world

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

FLOODS HELP FISHING.

Big Sioux Going Down and Big Bass Coming Up.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: The recent high water in the Big Sioux river is subsiding, and accordingly the water is leaving the bottom land along the river. It is estimated that about 100,000 acres of valuable farm land in the valley of the Big Sioux was flooded as the result of the excessive rains of the first part of June and latter part of May. Fishermen are taking advantage of the receding of the waters to angle for bass and other fish.

William Paulsen, a Sioux Falls fisherman, a day or two ago hooked and landed a four and one-half pound black bass. This is believed to be the largest ever captured in this vicinity. In going back to its normal condition the water is leaving thousands of fish in holes, where they are easily captured. In some instances fishermen capture large numbers of them with their hands.

The president having removed from the district Mrs. C. J. Lindstrom of Norfolk, corresponding secretary, has active charge of the convention preparations.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—Special to The News: Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual convention of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association, which will be held in Sioux Falls on June 26 and 27.

One of the features of the convention will be a great parade of traveling men, which will take place on the evening of June 26, and which is expected to be the grandest affair of the kind that has taken place in Sioux Falls for a number of years.

Funds have been provided for the offering of prizes, as follows: For best industrial floats, 1st, $25; second, $15; third, $10. For the best decorated carriage or automobile, 1st, $25; second, $15; third, $10.

GURNEY MAKES A HIT.

North Nebraska Banker at Iowa State Association Meeting.

Sioux City, June 15.—The bankers' convention is over and every train out of the city was packed with some of the 666 capitalists who helped to make the Sioux City meeting the biggest, busiest, and best convention in the life history of the association.

One of the speeches delivered which is worth more than ordinary mention is that of E. R. Gurney, vice president of the First National bank of Fremont, Neb., formerly of Winslow, who addressed the convention on the "Country Banker." His speech proved to be the most entertaining and wittiest address given during the two days' session.

He called the bankers the greediest men on earth and made them like it. His address was replete with unique figures of speech and throughout the discourse the big audience attested its appreciation of Mr. Gurney's remarks by frequent interruptions of spontaneous applause.

Mr. Gurney paid a pretty tribute to the retiring president, H. M. Carpenter in his opening remarks.

"I first met President Carpenter when I was a toddler knee high. It was my first business transaction and I beat Mr. Carpenter. I went into his bank with a $5 note to secure there five silver dollars. I not only got the five silver dollars, but I got a smile, a kind word and an invitation to return. All of which must be reckoned on my side of the books in that particular transaction. I will never forget my first meeting with President Carpenter. I wish you men to remember this. See the smiles and the kind words. They will go a long way.

"Andrew Carnegie says that we in America have the worst banking system in the world, but out of that worst system we have developed the best bankers in the world.

"There are bankers in every corner of the earth, doubtless some of them in heaven, and of the country bankers there are three in every two-bank town and two of them in every one-bank town.

"The country banker is the salt of the earth. He is democratic. He gets out in a cattle country and soon learns to cut a ball out of a herd of cattle from a broncho's back as easily as his banker friend in Wall Street learns to ball the stock market.

"But take by contrast the oriental banker. He is a god. He sits in impressive state. You go to him and try to make a touch and he will turn to you the face of a Sphinx. He will tell you to return in three months. The oriental banker is the greatest deliberative body on earth and as slow as the sixtieth congress.

"Not so your Iowa and Nebraska country banker. Who ever heard of a London banker who could work a Riverside car conductor with a 'Figure 8' ticket.

"We country bankers meet the horny handed ruralist as a brother. We take him by the hand and lead him into the inner sanctum. We don't care if he happens to have 'Peruna' on his boots or anything else. We fraternize with him.

"If a country banker lives in the corn belt he lives corn from daylight to dark. He thinks corn, talks corn, eats corn and drinks corn and corners wealth.

"The country banker distributes cheer and encouragement along with clearing house certificates. The country banker is the mightiest commercial power that this world has ever known. American through and through and a product of this great land of ours the country banker is more directly and sincerely interested in the welfare of the particular community in which he happens to reside than any other man. Suffering and loss to others are the bane of his life. Here is the unique spectacle of the only business or profession in the world

DOCTOR IS BOUND OVER

DR. BRACKING FACES TRIAL IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

DID NOT HAVE CERTIFICATE

Dr. Bracking, Charged With Practising Medicine Without Required Certificate, Was Bound Over to District Court by Justice Lambert.

Dr. T. C. Bracking, a physician of this city, was bound over to the district court Saturday by Justice Lambert for practicing medicine without a state license. The evidence seemed to show that in this respect the doctor had practiced in violation of the state law. Justice Lambert bound him over to appear before the next session of the district court. The amount of his bond has not been fixed.

The case was closely contested and has been in the courts for sometime. A stipulation was taken from Justice Bracking to Justice Lambert. The law fixes the penalty for the offense at a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500.

Dr. Bracking has practiced medicine for more than fifty years. He is a graduate of the medical college of the University of Pennsylvania.

Yale Campus